State Aid to Help All Young Couples to Own Their Homes Advocated

KANSAS CITY, May 17—(INS)—State aid to help all young married couples in establishing and owning homes was advocated by William Lloyd Harding, former governor of Iowa, in an address here today.

Speaking before a group of mothers and daughters at the Twentieth Century Republican club, Mr. Harding suggested the creation, by special tax, of a state fund from which young married couples could obtain loans to pay for homes.

The state should not seek to make a profit from such a fund, he said, but should charge just enough interest to make the enterprise self supporting.

The Minnesota Supreme court upheld the injunction against the paper as "a malicious, scandalous and defamatory newspaper" and therefore a nuisance.

Many prominent publishers are supporting Near in his appeal.

HARRIS PRAISED FOR GIVING CITY PIONEERS PARK

WORK ON TRACT PLEASES DONOR

Development Admirable He Declares After Inspection.

Rain which forced an alteration in the plans for the dedication of Pioneers park failed to dampen even slightly the enthusiasm with which Lincoln citizens, gathered Saturday noon at the chamber of commerce, expressed their sincere appreciation to the donors, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Harris.

The formal presentation of the park by Mr. Harris was brief and very modest, but it contained the announcement of an unexpected gift of an additional one hundred acres which brought a storm of applause from Lincoln folks who were already more than pleased with the previous gift of five hundred acres.

"I have learned that the city is need of some additional land in order to complete a lake that is being built in the park. I shall be glad to give another one hundred acres," Mr. Harris said at the conclusion of his talk.

From E. M. Westervelt, land commissioner of the Burlington, it was later learned that the new gift which adjoins the park on the southwest was purchased Saturday morning by Mr. Harris for the express purpose of presenting it to the city.

Crowd Attends Program.

Original plans were to hold the ceremonies at the park, but these were changed Saturday morning because of rain. The program was held in the main dining room of the chamber of commerce, which was crowded almost to capacity. Tables were decorated with pink and white peonies, and place cards in the form of the park tablet marked the seats of the many guests. At the speakers table were two dozen prominent Lin-

EXAMINING FEES TOTAL $47,773

Report Of Collections By State Bureau Is Submitted.

Nearly Half of Receipts Are Expended For Office Expenses.

Collections made by the state bureau of professional examining boards during a period of eighteen months from November 1. 1928, to April 30. 1930, reached a total sum of $47,773, State Accountant C. A. Sommer reports to his official superior, Auditor L. B. Johnson, after making a detailed audit of the bureau's accounts for that time.

The receipts included original examination and license fees paid by applicants for the various professions, reciprocity fees paid by those from other states who enter without examination, annual renewal fees of all practitioners, and such other charges as the laws of the state authorize.

Half Goes To Administration.

There was retained by the bureau itself for salaries and expenses of its office the sum of $22,081, or not quite half of gross collections. The remainder was credited to the different boards, giving each the returns from its own activities.

While taking in $48,773 for the eighteen months, the bureau and the boards paid out $41,351, of which amount the bureaus alone spent $19,679. There was a previous balance of $22,513 to draw upon. At the close of business April 30, the cash balance remaining on hand was $29,935.

Nurses Take In Most.

Leading the list of boards in amount of money received was the nurse examiners' group, whose revenue totalled $8,181.50, of which $4,556.50 went to the three members of the board as compensation and $3,625 was renewal fees for licenses.

The dental examining board, which has five members, took in only $1,710 of regular fees, an in-

FAIL TO LOCATE MISSING GIRL ON WESTBOUND TRAIN

Mysterious 'Julia Otis,' Who Befriended Needy Chicago Family And Then Disappeared With Child, 2, Believed Hiding Somewhere In Kansas---Definite Clue Obtained At Kansas City, But Search Of California-Bound Limited Fails To Produce Couple.

WICHITA, Kas., May 17—(UP)—Hungry for mother love and years of yearning for chubby baby arms about her neck, a rich young Chicago woman was thought to be in hiding somewhere in Kansas today clutching to her bosom a kidnaped 2-year-old child.

THE WEATHER.

The weather outlook for the period from May 19 to May 24, inclusive, follows:

Upper Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys: Rather frequent precipitation likely; temperatures mostly normal or below first of week, probably warmer latter part.

Nebraska: Snow or rain in west and central portions, rain in extreme east portion, not quite so cold in west portion Sunday; Monday probably unsettled with local showers, rising temperature.

Kansas: Rain Sunday, except rain or snow in northwest portion; mostly fair Monday with rising temperature.

The pretty blonde woman, who was the object of a search that carried into the wake of the Golden State Limited of the Rock Island lines, California bound, was last seen as the train pulled out of the Kansas City union station.

Officers armed with a warrant wired from Chicago boarded the flier at Hutchinson and made a thorough search of every compartment, which added nothing to the mystery surrounding the strange abduction. Hutchinson police were of the opinion that "Julia Otis" left the train somewhere between the two cities and went into hiding when she became alarmed by activities of police and newspaper reporters in Kansas City.

CHICAGO, May 17—(UP)—The mysterious "Julia Otis" and 2-year-old Mary Agnes Moroney, whom she took out to clothe and never returned, were speeding westward tonight toward California on a transcontinental train, police here learned.

PAIR BURGLARS ESCAPE OFFICER

Eight Shots Are Exchanged by Robbers and Policeman.

(Special to The Star.)

FALLS CITY, Neb., May 17—An attempt by a burglar pair to loot the Falter Clothing company store here was averted by Miss Bertha Putnam telephone operator Saturday morning and resulted in a running gun fight between Policeman Claude Asendorf and the bandits.

Gaining access to the building through a window, the robbers overturned the automatic telephone. Miss Putnam, suspecting something was amiss, immediately called the police station. Asendorf answered the summons and hastened to the store. As he arrived the pair leaped through a window. He called for them to halt, but they ignored the command and started to run. Drawing his revolver he fired first at the pavement, but when the burglars returned the fire the officer shot directly at the fleeing fugitives.

Although eight shots were exchanged, none of them hits its target. The bandits escaped on foot.

BITTER PRIMARY FIGHT IS CLOSED IN PENNSYLVANIA

Three G. O. P. Factions In Race, With Wets As Deciding Factor.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 17—(I. N. S.)—Pennsylvania's mad, tempestuous primary campaign came to a close tonight in a hurricane of rival charges and claims.

From the Schuykill to the Monongahela the air is filled with rumors of trades, of deals, of combines, of cutting and knifing of candidacies in next Tuesday's balloting.

The rumors may or may not have any foundation. But their wide currency and the many preplexing features of this most unusual republican strife in Pennsylvania have operated to make the managers and the leaders extremely skittish and uneasy as the battle ends.

TWELVE ENTER MUSIC CONTEST

High School Orchestras Already In Assure National Scope.

More Than 1500 Students Expected to Compete In Lincoln.

With twelve organizations definitely entered, and five others tentatively listed, local officials express confidence that the 1930 national high school orchestra contest to be held in Lincoln May 29-31, will greatly surpass in size that held at Iowa City last spring. Among the orchestras which will be heard in the University of Nebraska coliseum are those from East Orange, N. As Rogers Sees It

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 17—Democratic leader of the house, John Garner of Texas, and ordinarily a mighty smart man, wants to divide Texas into five states, giving it ten senators, so it would get us folks in the south a little more equal representation. Instead of getting eight more for the south I would trade all I did have for Senator Joe Grundy. Uncle Joe would fix us up a tariff down there that would soon have us so well off we would all turn republicans. Numbers don't get you nothing. It's individuals that get you something.

Yours, WILL.

NEW BUILDING PLANS ON FILE

Largest Lincoln Project Will Be Final Section Of State Capitol.

Much Construction Now Underway in Nebraska Towns.

Wet weather of the past month apparently has had little if any influence on contemplated building this spring and early summer, if plans now on file with Lloyd Beans, executive secretary of the Lincoln Builders bureau are any indication. Not since the bureau was openend has there been as many plans on file as now, Mr. Beans said Saturday. He has eight, the estimates of cost on which aggregate from a few thousand dollars to as high as six figures as will be the case in the contract for the fourth section of the new Nebraska capitol, bids for which have been called for June 19. With the exception of one other the bids are all called for the latter half of May.

The fourth section of the capitol is the largest project for which the builders bureau has plans. What the cost will be was not stated in the plans and specifications. These show, however, that the new house of representatives is to be built, and that the old power house is to be demolished. There also is to be a large amount of excavating and grading, laying of sidewalks and building of curbs along with the laying of the tile in the interior courts which, it is indicated, are to be the beauty spots of the entire structure.

Other buildings on which bids are being asked and plans for which are oe file with the bureau, include four schools, a church and an addition to a hospital at Friend. The church will be at Paxton and the schools at North Platte, Cameron, Wakefield and Sidney. A residece is to be erected in Lincoln.

Several Churches Planned.

Contracts awarded within recent weeks far outnumber those that will be let from the plans now on file, Beans said. Among the buildings now under way are two residence, a Y. M. C. A. addition, a sorority house and a store in Lincoln. Churches will be built at Stratton and Shelby, and Merriman, Farnam, Hastings, Oshkosh and Ogallala are to have schools. A combined office and store building will be erected at Grand Island. A power plant also is to be built there. Kearney is to have a dormitory built by the state at the normal college.

Buildings in prospect, but for which plans have not been completed, include a new school at Tecumseh, for which $100,000 in bonds were recently voted. A new bank is contemplated at Norfolk, and a new garage is to be built in Lincoln for E. M. O'Shea. The cost is to be $18,000. A school addition to cost $20,000 is being planned for Royal. A four-story building for the Western Public Service Co., at Scottsbluff will cost $100,000, and plans for a new high school at Wilber are expected to be ready fos bidders about the middle of June. The cost is to approximate $100,000.

New Lincoln Apartment.

Lincoln architects are completing plans for a new high school to cost $50,000 at Neligh, and an apartment house to cost $25,000 is being planned for Twentieth and Park street in Lincoln. An Emanuel Lutheran church at Columbus is to cost $60,000, and a school at Scottsbluff, $20,000. An addition to a hospital will cause the expenditure of another $40,000 at Columbus.

Tekamah has voted $15,000 for a municipal swimming pool, and Alliance is to have a Masonic temple at a cost of $25,000. Edison has torium and gymnasium to cost $25,000. The C. S. Warren residence at Beatrice will cost $20,000 and a chapel at Axtell will entail an outlay of $50,000.

While keeping in touch with building operations in all parts of the state, the bureau the past week has been stressing the importance of purchasing materials of Lincoln dealers. "Only once in the past has anything been said about employing home labor and buying materials from local merchants,' 'a recent letter to the members stated. "It has been assumed that one's loyalty to home enterprise would prevail," the letter added. "However, the bureau still believes that the home concern should get the breaks."

A meeting of the bureau has been called for the evening of May 21. At that time a credit policy will be submitted for approval and the members will discuss an approaching meeting having to do with safety codes. The meeting has been called by J. H. Jeffrey, chief of the state labor bureau, and is to be for two days, June 12 and 13. Employers, employes and representatives of insurance companies have been invited. It also is open to the public.

SHURTLEFF WILL OPEN FURNITURE STORAGE HOUSE

Opening in the near future of an exclusive furniture storage house in the quarters at 1335 L street, formerly occupied by the Shurtleff Furniture store, was announced Saturday by W. Bruce Shurtleff.

The two floors used for furniture sales will be slightly remodeled, Mr. Shurtleff stated Saturday, to handle general furniture storing. Household effects which people wish to store during absences from the city or when moving to smaller locations or for other reasons, can be handled adequately, he stated. The building is entirely fireproof and will provide unusually high-class storage facilities he said Saturday.

His purpose in entering this field, he said, was to keep the building occupied and to retain a few old employes at a time when employment is scarce.

Public Works Plank Wins Oregon Primary

George W. Joseph of Portland Gains Big Lead As Republican Gubernatorial Candidate.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 17—(I. N. S.)—Triumphant on a platform that calls for public development of waterpower and abolishment of the state public service commission, George W. Joseph of Portland was conceded the republican nomination for governor in the Oregon state primaries this afternoon, with complete returns from 1,549 of the state's 1,912 precincts giving him a plurality of 5,000 votes.

Edwards Bailey, democratic candidate for governor from Lane county, continued to lead a tight race with George W. Wilbur by a margin of 800 in 1,515 precincts. His selection was believed certain.

Ralph E. Williams, republican, and Walker M. Pierce, democrat, were elected by substantial majorities as national committeemen of their respective parties.

There was no contest for United States senator, both Charles L. McNary, republican, and Elton Watkins, democrat, running unopposed.

Franklin F. Korell took the only contested republican nomination for United States representative in the Third district. W. C. Hawley and R. R. Butler were unopposed in the First and Second districts, as was W. A. Dazell, democratic nominee in the First district.

The prohibition question played no part in the primary election. But one nominee, L. X. Sandblast, running for United States representative in the Third district, voiced his disapproval of the Eighteenth amendment. He was running a poor second to Korell.

EYES OF NATION ON JERSEY RACE

Wets Pinning Hopes On Morrow to Win Senatorial Nomination.

Fort's Entry On Dry Platform Casts Some Doubts on Outcome.

WASHINGTON, May 17—(INS)—The eyes of the nation, both wet and dry alike, were most forcibly focused today on New Jersey, where the anti-prohibitionists are seeking to bring forth, in the person of Dwight W. Morrow, a messiah to lead them from the arid wilderness.

Decision of Representative Franklin Fort to enter the New Jersey republican senatorial primary as a dry and make it a three-cornered fight between Morrow and former Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen has stirred up interest nationally such as have few primaries before. forback of the mere winning of the senatorial nomination by one of the three lies the one big issue of importance to voters throughout the country.

Morrow Now Leader of Wets.

Morrow, by declaring himself in favor of repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, automatically made himself the national wet leader, it is generally conceded. His background as a financier, ambassador to Mexico and delegate to the recent London naval conference was such that anti-prohibitionists immediately pinned their hopes on him to win the New Jersey senatorial fight and go on possibly even to become their national candidate.

Fort's candidacy, however, as viewed by Washington politicians from long range, has cast some doubt on the outcome of the June primary. So long as Morrow had only Frelinghuysen to contest they were in preety generally agreement that the former would win easily, as Frelinghuysen while in the senate had voted for the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act and turned wet only when he entered the present fight.

Possibility of a Split.

With Fort in as a dry, however, they foresee the possibility of a split of the wet vote that might be sufficient to let the congressman in and they are conceding him a little more than an outside chance.

The situation between Morrow and Fort is curious from an administration point of view. When Walter Edge resigned from the senate to become ambassador to France, it was arranged that David Baird should be appointed to his place, but remain there only until Morrow returned from the London conference, at which time Baird would resign and the ambassador appointed in order to pave the way for the candidacy for the naminations.

The lengthy duration of the London meeting upset this arrangement, but at the time Morrow—who had never committed himself publicly on prohibition—was hailed generally as the forthcoming spokesman for President Hoover in the senate. He and the executive are the closest of friends.

Fort Even Closer Friend.

On the other hand, Fort is regarded as perhaps even a closer friend of the president, having been an outstanding figure in the Hoover campaign of 1928 and always an administration stalwart in the house. In addition, he is making his run for the senatorial nomination on a dry, law enforcement platform which parallels the Hoover policy. In his announcement of candidacy, Fort disclaimed any administration support, pointing out that all three candidates were "friends" of the president, but the manner in which he outlined his stand on prohibition was such as to make some think he would not be averse to having it regarded as the Hoover mantle.

It was pointed out in one quarter that the president knew several days in advance that Fort intended to contest for the nomination and could have called him off had he wished to leave the field clear for a Morrow victory, but spokesmen for Mr. Hoover promptly and loudly reiterated the white house policy of keeping hands strictly off of all primary fights.

The morning meeting is being held due to the difficulty of getting members of the board together with examinations approaching. At that meeting, the board will continue its elimination of candidates for positions on the staff of the Daily Nebraskan.

Whether a summer Nebraskan will be published was not decided at the meeting. The matter was turned over to Gayle C. Walker, director of the school of journalism, at a previous meeting, for investigation, but other matters at the Saturday afternoon session prevented attention being given to that question.

TO INVESTIGATE MATTERS RECORD

Committee of Omaha Bar Association To Take Action.

OMAHA, May 17—A committee of the Omaha Bar association will investigate the record of Thomas H. Matters, veteran Omaha attorney, recently convicted of embezzlement, and report its findings to District Judge Fitzgerald. The investigation, it is said, may lead to possible disbarment of Matters.

Attorney D. W. Swarr is chairman of the group. Other members are Thomas Dysart, Raymond Young, Kenneth Finlayson and Deputy County Attorney Yeager. The first meeting was held Friday afternoon.

Matters has appealed the verdict of a District court jury which several months ago found him guilty of embezzling a small sum from an Omaha woman. He is at liberty pending a review of the case.

Matters once was convicted in connection with the alleged fraudulent sale of $10,000,000 in stocks and bonds of the Colonial Timber and Coal Co., but later the conviction was set aside.

Retrial of the case is still pending in Federal court.

Farmers of County Reporting Damage From Hessian Fly

Thirty acres of wheat on the Sullivan farm about eight miles southwest of Lincoln have been completely destroyed by ravages of the Hessian fly, it was reported to J. F. Purbaugh, county extension agent, Saturday afternoon.

The county agent has received numerous reports during the past week from farmers of damage done to their wheat which has been identified as caused by the Hessian fly.

The farmer who reported the damage to his wheat Saturday questioned the county agent as to the advisability of plowing it up immediately and replanting the ground to corn. Mr. Purbaugh advised him to let the wheat stand another couple of weeks before plowing it under as that would still give time for planting corn. The field was filled with eggs of the fly at various stages of development, the county agent was told.

The county agent fears that many farms in the county, largely in the southwestern sections, will be badly damaged by work of the Hessian fly this year, as the result of reports coming into his office. He hesitated Saturday to make any dire predictions pointing to the splendid condition of wheat that had not been touched. Where the Hessian fly has struck, however, he said heavy damage was being done.

In all cases where Mr. Purbaugh has investigated, the wheat had been sowed early last fall. In answer to questions as to what could be done for relief, the county agent is advising farmers to keep down all volunteer wheat this summer after plowing out their destroyed stands and to plant later in the fall.

SUITS FILED FOR $40,550 DAMAGES

Three Actions Brought As Result of Recent Auto Accidents.

Three damage suits asking a total of $40,550 were filed Saturday afternoon in District court seeking recovery for injuries alleged to have been suffered in automobile accidents this year. Two were for accidents which occurred in April while the other was from a January accident.

Suit was brought by Clyde Hickerson, father of Thomas Albert Hickerson, 16, against Edward G. Lanphere asking $15,000. Hickerson claims that his son was riding a bicycle north on Twelfth street on January 11 when he was hit by Lanphere's car about 100 feet north of H street. The boy suffered a shattered hip fracture which necessitated a bone graft, the petition claims.

In the other suit asking $15,000, Hazel Matson is suing George Marion for injuries she received when the car in which they were riding turned over three and one-half miles east of Waverly on April 24. She was a guest of Marion, according to her petition, and suffered back and body injuries when the car in which she was riding went into a deep ditch. She has had to wear a steel brace since the accident, she claims.

The third suit was brought by Clark P. Gallagher asking $10,550 damages of John S. Knepper as the result of a collision on highway 38, two and one-half miles west of Greenwood on April 11. Gallagher claims his car was hit from the rear and pushed into a ditch and against a telephone pole where it was turned on one side. He claims he suffered a concussion of the brain, and body and internal injuries in the accident.

One of Three Suits Filed As Result of Wreck Is Settled

Settlement of one of the three automobile damage cases which arose out of an accident in Iowa early last summer when a car driven by Cora E. Higgins upset, injuring three companions who were with her, has been effected, F. B. Baylor, counsel for two of the injured persons, announced Saturday.

Settlement was made in the case of M. Lina Shirley, whose damage suit had been scheduled to go to trial in District court before the new jury which comes in Monday morning. The case will be dismissed Monday morning according to Mr. Baylor. Amount of the settlement was not stated.

In a previous case arising out of the same accident, Kate E. Graham got a verdict for $5,000 by a jury in District Judge Shepherd's court. A new trial was asked, arguments being heard on that matter during the past week. Judge Shepherd still has the matter under advisement.

The other suit pending in District court is that of Marjorie Stuff against Miss Higgins. It has not yet been set for trial.

BEATRICE, Neb., May 17—Mrs. Mary Noakes of this city was granted a divorce Saturday from Thomas Noakes and awarded the custody of their nine-year-old daughter, Dorothy, with $15 a month support money. Mrs. Noakes sued on grounds of non-support and cruelty. The defendant did not appear.

Petition Will Be Filed Requesting Banning to Run

A petition signed by fifty or more democratic voters of Cass county asking that the name of W. B. Banning be placed on their party's primary ballot as a candidate for state senator in the second district to succeed himself, will be filed in the secretary of state's office Monday or Tuesday. It was circulated by Ed Van Winkle, whose name heads the list.

The filing fee of $5 was paid to the treasurer of Cass county by friends of Mr. Banning who are desirous of having him run. Mr. Winkle was assisted by other leading democrats in and around Plattsmouth in obtaining the signatures after the dedication of the Missouri river bridge Friday afternoon. When the petition and the receipt are delivered, it will require only Banning's written acceptance to place him in the race.

The present state senator lives at Union and is in the banking and fruit raising business there. He has served a number of terms in the state senate, and two years ago was elected wtihout opposition on either ticket.

Several weeks ago, a nominating petition for W. H. Pitzer of Nebraska City, as a republican candidate, was filed at the capitol, but his acceptance has not been received as yet.

ASSERT OMAHA ESTATE ROBBED

Administrators Have St. Louis Instructor Arrested.

OMAHA, May 17 — Governor Weaver will be asked to issue extradition papers for the return to Omaha of Mariano Maya, formerly of Omaha, now instructor of Spanish at Soldan high school, St. Louis, who is charged with having stolen property worth $1,785 from the estate of his father-in-law, the late George E. Turkington, Omaha attorney.

Maya was arrested in St. Louis Friday on a fugitive complaint signed by the administrators of Turkington's estate, his daughters, Mrs. Isabelle Brodersen and Mrs. Helen Rosekranz.

Their complaint, which is held by Omaha police, charges that on the day of Turkington's death two months ago, Maya broke into Turkington's downtown office, pilfered the will and two diamond rings, and later stole two shotguns from the home.

Then, it is alleged, he drove back to St. Louis.

Mrs. Brodersen says that $25,000 worth of Liberty bonds which her father was believed to have kept in his office, have not been found.

She told Beal that Maya wrote a letter to a friend in Omaha recently, announcing that he had inherited $25,000 from the estate of his mother, whom he said died in Spain.

SLOW GAIN IN U. S. BUSINESS IS CONTINUING

BY W. S. COUSINS.

NEW YORK, May 17—(I. N. S.)—The recovery in business and industry, although not showing the expected momentum so confidently looked forward to in earlier months, today continues its slow but steady pace toward normalcy. Despite disappointing developments in many fields of endeavor, definite forward strides in certain phases of activity more than offset the balance in favor of the upturn.

One of the outstanding recent features of improvement has been the sudden revival of heavy purchasing of copper, brought about by successive reductions in prices to a basis which prompted buyers to make large commitments for both immediate and future needs.

In contrast to recovery in copper prices, and increased firmness in lead and tin, quotations on both pig iron and steel have receded further. Easing of the markets not unnaturally tends to restrict forward buying, and the general demand has not been of sufficient proportions to maintain the output at last week's rate. Car loadings have shown a decided increase, with the total for the week ending May 3 showing an increase of 35,725 cars above the preceding week, but 109,036 below the like week of 1929.

Give and Take Trading.

The stock market has quieted down considerably from the heavy activity which was a daily feature in price movements of some weeks back. The volume of turnover has been at a low ebb, with most of the trading activity confined to the mere give and take of the professional trading element. For the time being, the market seems to be registering in the general sagging tendencies which are being evidenced in the main body of stocks. The bulk of speculative activity has been confined to the utility group in which plans for huge consolidations and combines have brought sharply higher quotations for the companies involved.

One of the distinctive features of the report of domestic cotton consumption in April is narrowing of margin of decrease from last year's figures.

Foreign, like domestic, trade decreased heavily from a year ago in the first quarter the decrease in both exports and imports being slightly over 20 per cent. Unusually large exports in the first quarter of 1929 make for a rather poor showing this year, while lower prices for raw materials account for a good deal of the decrease in imports this year.

Wheat Closes Higher.

CHICAGO, May 17—(I. N. S.)—Active short covering and buying by shorts enabled wheat prices to close higher today after a listless start. Prices touched the highest points in several weeks. May was up to $1.06½; July $1.07¼; September $1.10¼ and December $1.14¾. The feature in the trade was the lack of selling pressure, although the run of news was bearish.

Crop news was favorable. Offering of Argentine wheat were heavy, checking buying on the Liverpool market. The latter market closed ⅝ to ¾c higher. Corn was uneven with a mixed trade. Oats and rye acted much the same as corn.

Compared with the previous close, wheat was ⅝ to ¾c higher, corn ¼c up to ¼c off and oats ⅛ to ¼c lower. Rye finished ¼ to ⅜c up.

For the week wheat was 2¼ to 3⅞c up, corn 2⅜ to 3⅜c higher and oats ⅝ to 1¼c up.

Wheat averaged generally higher during the week with strength in foreign markets and moderate receipts factors. Fairly active export demand and bullish foreign advices in regard to stocks running lighter there, also were instrumental in elevating prices.

Crop advices from this country were generally favorable, but the general trade paid little attention, selling pressure being light except on huge bulges. Crop prospects in Europe are for smaller yields than last season. Clearances the past week were the largest in quite some time from North America, being 7,813,000.

Canadian visible stocks are decreasing, while a shrinkage in domestic visible stocks also was noted, due to redistribution of wheat by the farm board.

Corn ruled strong most of the week under the influence of strength in wheat and moderate receipts. Country offerings were light. The visible supply of stocks is running light compared to last year, but with planting over early it is expected there will be a fair run of corn. Foreign corn news was featureless.

Hog Trade Slow.

CHICAGO, May 17—(INS)—Trading in hogs was on a slow basis today with values steady with Friday, but 10 to 15c under a week ago. Receipts were liberal the past week and demand slack, especially from shipping sources. The market is as much as 75c below last year's values.

Choice light hogs were quotable up to $10.25 late while best heavy classes barely reached $10.10. Most of the desirable hogs of all weights ranged from $9.75 to $10.20. Receipts for the week were 129,000 against 122,000 last wek and 108,000 a year ago.

During the week 39,000 cattle arrived, compared with 44,000 last week and 40,000 a year ago. In spite of the shrinkage in the supply values eased 25c. There was an absence of buying power, low prices having practically no affect. Prices for all fat steers are $2 to $2.50 lower than a year ago and the lowest since 1927. Cows and heifers dropped 25c, while calves gained 50c.

Most of the good steers sold at $13 to $14, while choice grades up to $14.50. The bulk of the week's run moved at $10 to $12.50, lowest of the year. Cows ranged from $6 to $9.50 and heifers at $7.50 to $10 for the bulk. Calves topped at $12.50.

Lambs followed other classes of livestock, with prices as much as 75c to $1.50 down. Arrivals for the week were 77,000 again st 85,000 last week were 77,000, against 85,000 last Colorado lambs moved at $10 to $10.75. Shorn lambs closed at $1 and $10. California spring lambs topped at $11.00.

Chicago Cotton Uneven.

CHICAGO, May 17—(INS)—Final cotton prices were unchanged to 10 points higher today, with trade mainly of a commission house character. May closed at 15.93; July 16.19; October 15.20 and December 15.26.

Compared with a weke ago, values are 22 points lower to 42 higher, with May displaying the weakness.

The market was rather uneven during the week, with interest centered in new crop positions and weather news is apparently the chief factor.

Reports from dry goods centers early in the week indicated unsatisfactory business conditions. The consumption report for April was announced by the census bureau at 532,282 bales, or almost 10,000 bales less than the corresponding date last year. Export business continues lighter than last year.

Light rains were reported over some sections of the belt late in the week, with temperatures slightly cooler.

KEARNEY GETS ENDEAVOR MEET

State Convention To Be Held In That City In June.

(Special to The Star.)

KEARNEY, Neb., May 17—The Nebraska Christian Endeavor convention will be held in Kearney on June 20, 21 and 22, it has just been announced by the president, N. C. Anderson. It was at first thought that it would be necessary to change the location because of conflice of dates with the anniversary celebration of the teachers' college, but a co-operative arrangement has been made and the convention will be held here as originally scheduled.

The plans as now arranged call for a big double program to be held at Harmon field on the evening of June 20. At that time Dr. Daniel A. Poling of New York City, president of the International Christian Endeavor union, is to give an address. Dr. Poling is known all over the United States because of his Sunday afternoon addresses broadcast over the radio.

Following Dr. Poling's address, the teachers' college will put on its big historical pageant.

The Man who
Y-A-W-N-S
when wills are discussed
You probably know him.
He says, "Oh, there's plenty of time. I can't be bothered right now." Or,
"What's the use—my wife will get everything, anyway."
If you have a friend who is putting off making his will, you will do him a good turn by urging him to make one without delay.
Point out that those men who "can't be bothered" often leave bother-a-plenty for their families.
Remind him that without a will his wife, under the law, may receive only a portion of the estate.
And you might urge him to go a step further and appoint us as executor and trustee under his will. This, you know, is the modern way of insuring the faithful carrying out of men's plans for their families.

1930 Is Better
In every way 1929 was a record breaking year for our company. However, we have experienced during the first part of 1930 a volume of business even larger and more satisfactory.
We feel justified, therefore, in the thought that our institution possesses the confidence and good will of the people of this territory in a most exceptional degree. Nebraska is fundamentally sound and justifies our optimistic view of the potential possibilities.

coln citizens and officials besides Mr. Harris, Governor Weaver, and officials of the Burlington railroad.

Frank Woods, a member of the park advisory committee, presided and introduced Mr. Harris, the speakers and the special guests. Park Commissioner E. M. Bair introduced Mr. Woods. Mayor Don Love accepted the park in behalf of the city, and Governor Arthur J. Weaver expressed the appreciation of the state for the gift to the capital city.

Explaining that Mrs. Harris had been as deeply interested in the presentation of the park as he, Mr. Harris asked that her name be included on the tablet if one is erected at the park.

"She signed the deed with me, and she shared in the struggles of our life that have made it possible for us to make this gift," he said.

Lived Here Ten Years.

Referring to his former residence in Lincoln as a youth, Mr. Harris said.

"I lived in Lincoln only ten years as a boy, but ten years is a big part of life when one is young. I left here with regret and come back with gladness. I owe Lincoln much for those boyhood years that gave me my start in life."

Jokingly he recalled the adage, "It is more blessed to give than to receive," commenting that the reason was that the vanity of the giver was tickled by the appreciation expressed by the recipients.

"However," he added, "I doubt if anyone who uses the park will derive more real pleasure from it than we have from giving it."

Pleased With Development.

Later in the day he told newspaper reporters that he had seen the park as it has been developed and is highly pleased with what has been done.

"The development by the city has been admirable and the city should be commended more than I."

He said he hoped to try out the new golf course Sunday afternoon. He and Mrs. Harris will leave Lincoln Sunday evening to return to their home in New York City.

"This is indeed a memorable day for the city of Lincoln," Mayor Love said in accepting the park in behalf of the city.

"It is many years since you left this city to make your home elsewhere. Fortunate it is for us that you have carried in your heart during these years a loving interest in the home of your boyhood and youth, which has culminated in this gift.

"A year ago this tract of land was mostly in its original state, a piece of prairie, as it had lain for ages. Now there are thousands of trees and shrubs and plants just beginning to show the tender green of growth. Roads and paths have been built, lakes have been made, and there are many other evidences of what the future will be.

"All this is but a beginning. You see what a year has done. Let the imagination picture what the future years will bring.

"I have the honor, Mr. Harris of accepting this park on behalf of the city of Lincoln, and of pledging to you that the city will forever hold it in trust for the use and enjoyment of all our citizens, and of the people at large, and that the city will in good faith develop it in a way worthy of your generous gift."

Woods Says Name Fitting.

Introducing Mr. Harris, Frank Woods, toastmaster, said:

"It is especially fitting that our splendid new playground, the most generous addition to the parks of Lincoln, has been named Pioneers Park. So named, in the years to come, as it does this afternoon, it will stand as a monument to those sturdy forebears who braved the unknown and faced unflinchingly the privation of early life on the frontier. It will remind this generation and those to come who will enjoy it of the debt mankind has always owed to those who carry the torch and break the trails.

"To those pioneers, I wish today to pay special honor. George S. Harris was one of Lincoln's first citizens, both in point of time and personal eminence. He came to this state in 1872 as land commissioner for the Burlington railroad. He was a man in the strong vigor of life and with colorful background of experience.

"So zealous was he for the future of the great west that he typified it in person and prophecy. He loved the land and saw its future. Perhaps more than any other did he secure for Nebraska the best possible settlers. He helped the right men to tide over the first hard years and the wrong men to go back to home and friends. In spite of the parching winds, grasshoppers, sod houses and blizzards, he kept faith with the land of his enthusiasm.

"By his personal guidance and friendship, literally thousands of families were brought to this territory to remain and lay with him the foundations of the greatness of this agricultural empire. For nearly sixty years he has slept upon the quiet hillside at Wyuka, but we are here today as witnesses that his soul is marching on."

Tribute To Mrs. Harris.

Mr. Woods also paid tribute to Mrs. Harris, the mother of John F. Harris, the honor guest.

"For many years the family home on K street was the center from which radiated the kindly neighborliness of those days. It was in that home that most of the children who graced this family grew to manhood and womanhood. One of them is the man whose generosity and favor we owe our presence here on this occasion."

Governor Arthur J. Weaver praised the character and philosophy of life which prompted the gift, asserting that a gift to Lincoln is a gift to the entire state. He described the park as a valuable addition to the capital city, which he said is the greatest capital city in the nation.

"Here we have the inspiration of education, the inspiraton of nature, and the inspiration of the pioneers which also is a memorial to the pioneers of Nebraska.

State Indebted To Pioneers.

"Nebraska can never pay its debt to the pioneers. They met the challenge of hardships, and stayed through that this state might thrive and progress. From a few settlers and straggling villages it has progressed until it has more than a million people and produces annually a billion dollars worth of products from its soil and factories."

Mentioning the value of recreation to the citizens of the state, he told of the work being done by the state game and parks commission in acquiring public lakes and recreation grounds and in encouraging the planting of trees.

Among the two dozen special guests at the speaker's table were three former mayors of Lincoln, Frank Zehrung, J. E. Miller, and Verne Hedge, two former governors of Nebraska, S. R. McKelvie and Charles W. Bryan, and F. E. Williamson, of Chicago, president of the Burlington, and C. E. Spens of Chicago, executive vice president. Among the other Burlington officials present were L. B. Lyman, superintendent and E. M. Westervelt and F. R. Mullen of Lincoln, General Freight Agent Montmorency and General Passenger Agent Rohwitz.

The interest shown by the Burlington officials was in recognition of the years of service Mr. Harris' father gave to the company, and the fact that the land included both in the park and the new gift was formerly Burlington property.

Travels On Special Train.

The Burlington had also made arrangements for a special train from McCook to Lincoln to bring Mr. and Mrs. Harris to Lincoln. Mr. Harris has just completed a tour of inspection on the Southern Pacific lines. Mr. Harris is a member of the board of directors of that company.

During the dinner the boys glee club of Everett Junior high school presented three selections. The glee club was directed by Miss Helen Miller, music supervisor, and was accompanied at the piano by Miss Alice Hussong.

Among the special guests who sat at the table arranged for Mrs. Harris were the wives of the city commissioners, Mrs. Arthur Weaver, Mrs. A. S. Raymond, Mrs. Frank Woods, Mrs. Samuel McKelvie, Mrs. Charles Bryan, Mrs. E. M. Westervelt, Mrs. Frank Zehrung, Mrs. Verne Hedge, Mrs. J. C. Seacret, and Mrs. Ernst Herminghaus.

Included among the out-of-town guests, old friends of Mr. and Mrs. Harris, were Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Kilpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Robertson, and Frank Parks of Beatrice.

Vain Search For Missing Coast Judge

Oakland Jurist, Ill From Strain of Graft Trial, Disappears.

OAKLAND, Cal., May 17—(I. N. S.)—The greatest man hunt in the history of Alameda county—and one of the strangest—had failed late today to find any definite trace of Superior Judge Edward W. Engs, missing for thirty-one hours since he slipped from his home at dawn yetserday shortly before he was to deliver final instructions to a jury in a rum graft trial.

Airplanes swooped low over the wooded hills near his home, every available Oakland policeman was thrown into the hunt, hundreds of Boy Scouts of Oakland, Berkeley and Piedmont and numerous friends of the missing jurist followed every faint clue—in vain.

Waters of Lake Temescal, a municipal power reservoir two miles from the judge's home, were being dragged on report he had been seen wandering near there.

But not even a shred of clothing or other convincing evidence had been found to disclose the trail of the judge, who was on the verge of a nervous breakdown as a result of the long, sensational graft trial.

SNOW FALLS IN WEST NEBRASKA

Snow at Broken Bow.

Broken Bow reported two inches of snow early in the afternoon Saturday, with the temperature hovering around 33 degrees. Sidney and McCook, with temperatures around 35, were blanketed under almost two inches of snow before nightfall. At Lexington, Sargent, and Burwell, snow was falling late in the day. North Platte and Valentine reported snow, with precipitation of .84 and .36 inches respectively.

Omaha reported a rainfall of .22 inches for Saturday. The highest temperature was 48 degrees above zero. Central City, with a temperature of 35, Holdrege 32, and Hastings 35, all reported rain falling throughout the day Saturday.

Cold rains were accompanied by temperatures in the 40's in contrast to a 90 and 100 heat wave of several weeks ago, through many parts of Kansas and Missouri, extending to Oklahoma and Texas with comparatively low readings. Frost damage was minimized outside the snow areas unless low-hanging clouds lifted. The mercury was expected to go down to around 30 throughout Kansas and adjoining sections Saturday night.

K. C. RATE HIGHEST.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 17—(U. P.)—The highest insurance rates against burglaries and holdups in the United States prevail in this city, it was revealed by the Federation of Justice. The ne t highest rates prevail in Los Angeles and Detroit.

VALUE OF STATE INSTITUTIONS IS OVER $8,000,000

been completed in the board of control's office and shows a total worth of $8,489,829. The inmate population of the seventeen establishments at the same time was 6,785.

The three hospitals for insane at Hastings, Lincoln, and Norfolk are, in the order named, the largest of all the institutions both as regards population and value of their property. Together they had 3,497 inmates—more than half the total number for all the institutions—and their combined property valuations was $4,063,681, or only $181,232 less than half of the holdings for the entire group.

Lands, including miscellaneous improvements made upon them during the biennium of 1927-29, are appraised in the board of control's exhibit at the sum of $1,214,036. The gross acreage was 4,607.24.

Buildings, with improvements for the same period, are listed as being worth $5,798,880.

Furniture in the buildings is valued at $433,917, and other equipment at $1,042,996.

These items make up the grand total of $8,489,829 as given in a preceding paragraph.

Investment Is Growing.

Appropriations made by the last legislature for new buildings and permanent improvements at the state institutions, including equipment for the new structures, will add $881,500 to the foregoing amount of physical property. Some deduction, however, must be made for depreciation and removal of abandoned property. On the other hand, current appropriations for repairs and replacements must be added.

At a conservative calculation, there is no question that additions and betterments to institution plants which have been or will be made during this biennium are sufficiet to raise the state's aggregatne investment therein to over $9,000,000.

Two institutions, the Lincoln insane hospital and the Grand Island soldiers' home, each have a full section of land, 640 acres. Almost as much acreage as that is owned by the Hastings and Norfolk insane hospitals and the boys' industrial school at Kearney. All these and other institutions annually produce large crops of grain, hay, vegetables, and fruit, besides cattle and hogs, poultry and dairy products, to help feed their inmates.

The appended table shows the appraised value of the different kinds of property owned by the state at each of its institutions on June 30, 1929:

	LANDS		BUILDINGS

An exhibition of high school horses was again presented during the evening performance. Sonny Boy shown by Clyde Miller of Waterloo, Ia., and Ritzie McDonald shown by Allen Walker through the courtesy of Alfred DuTeau of Lincoln went through their paces, receiving hearty applause from the spectators. The jumping horse owned by Clyde Miller and ridden by Mary Anderson leaped over an auto loaded wtih passengers.

Trick Riding Done.

Following the exhibition by the high school horses, Miss Mercedes Augustine of Grand Island gave an exhibition with her pony of trick riding and training. The horse went through its paces to the accompaniment of rounds of applause at each successful feat.

In the owners' class of three gaited horses which was sponsored by Fenton B. Fleming, first place was awarded to an unnamed horse ridden by Miss Mary Virginia Louis for the Brandeis stables. Second place was awarded to Nancy Lee of the Foster stables, third place to Highland Mountain Rose of the Storz stable and fourth place to Lucky Strike, an L. F. Crofoot entry.

In the pony harness stake with its accompanying cash purse of $250, first place was awarded Lady Helen of the T. S. Simpson stables of Omaha. Fourth place went to Pal O'Mine of the Welty stables, fifth place to Dictator, owned by A. Sibbersen of Washington, Neb., and sixth place to Silver Irene of the Welty stables.

Black Duchess Wins.

In the three-gaited combination class first prize went to Black Duchess of the Douglass stables, second place to Midnight, owned by Brandeis. Third place was taken by Dorothy Ray, owned by Hanna and Miller of Waterloo, Ia. and fourth place by Highland Mountain Rose of the Storz stables.

In the hunters and jumpers class, Comet, owned by Mrs. O. G. Pierce of Lincoln, won first prize. Shannon, ridden by Miss Virginia Faulkner was second. Socks of the Grove M. Porter farms at Nebraska City was third and Jap, also of the Porter farms was fourth.

An exhibition of the famous six-horse hitch of the Union Stockyards at Omaha closed the evening program and the second annual Lincoln horse show.

Many at Matinee.

Despite the inclement weather conditions and the frigid atmosphere, nearly 400 Lincoln horse lovers attended the Saturday afternoon matinee.

The afternoon program featured the horse pulling contest sponsored by the Lincoln chamber of commerce. In this event there were three teams of special note. One owned by George Hedges of Lincoln, won the state fair contest last year. E. A. Fulcomer and Son of Belleville, Kas., also had a team entered. They were second at the annual American Royal horse show at Kansas City last winter. The Kansas City show's winning team was also entered in the contest. This team, Moody and Cap, is owned by Milford Gray of Haddam, Kas.

Pull Up 3,050 Pounds.

Following preliminary pulls of 1,500 pounds, each team tried loads which were increased 400 pounds after each round. The Fulcomer entry won the event when the team pulled a load up to 2,800 pounds. After the contest the team was able to pull a load up to 3,050 pounds which is 100 pounds less than the Nebraska state record.

Milford Gray's entry was second. The team went out at 2,800 pounds. A team owned by the state board of agriculture was third. Teams owned by George Hedges of Lincoln and William T. Daft of Waverly tied for fourth place. A coin was flipped and Daft won the fourth place trophy.

Juveniles Compete.

Of special interest to the younger patrons as well as the older attendants was the competition between juvenile riders. This class was for boy or girl riders from 9 to 14 years of age. The judging was based entirely upon horsemanship. Albert Sibbernsen of Washington, on Dictator, won the silver loving cup presented by Fred Gardner and Son and the blue ribbon, indicative of first honors in the class.

Second place was won by Webster Augustine of Grand Island on his own mount, Luxene Ba M. Joe Snyder of Lincoln, who was up on the Hanna and Miller of Waterloo, Ia., entry, Micky, Ch G was awarded fourth place. Robert McDurney, on Mrs. A. T. Parott's entry, Teddie B. G., of Lincoln received the third place ribbon.

Events On Schedule.

Starting at 2 o'clock with the parade of the draft horses, the entire afternoon's events were run off on exact schedule. In the draft horse parade were Percherons, Belgians, and Great Percherons.

Highland Mt. Rose and Adolph G. Storz entry in the ladies saddle horse class, won first prize in the first event of the afternoon. Peggy O'Neill owned by George Brandeis of Omaha was second, George Mac of the Faulkner Bros. stables of Lincoln was third and My Dixie Dare of the Shannon G. Douglass stables at Kansas City received fourth place. The horses in this event were judged by their gait, quality and manners. The paces required were walk, square trot and easy canter.

Brothers Win On Ponies.

In the class for ponies under saddle Albert Sibbersen of Washington rode his own mount to victory and was closely pressed by his younger brother, David on Chester, who received second honors. Albert Sibbersen was up on Dictator. Hanna and Miller's entry, Micky, was awarded third prize and John Ketterey, jr. of Havelock was up on Millers Queen to receive fourth ribbon.

One of the most closely contested classes of the afternoon's performance was that of the gaited saddle geldings. In this class the judges found it necessary to have the entrants put their horses through the various gaits time after time. Geo. Brandeis' entry, Gallant Lad, won the approval of the judges. The Plainsman, one of the Shannon C. Douglass entries was second. H. E. Sidles' Country Gentleman was third and another Douglass entry, The Ultimate, drew the fourth ribbon.

Ponies Get Applause.

Although there were no prizes involved, the showing of the hackney ponies drew rounds of applause from the spectators. In the showing were a two-pony team shown by Fred Sidles of Lincoln and two single ponies by Adolph Storz of Omaha and D. G. Wetle of Decatur, Ill.

One of the feature attractions of the afternoon was the auto jump by horse from the Clyde Miller farm at Waterloo, Ia. Miss Mary Anderson of Minneapolis was up on one of the jumping horses. Sonny Boy was also exhibited. He is the property of the Miller stables. Ritzie MacDonald, of the Al DuTeau stables of Lincoln also performed in the special exhibition of high school horses.

Douglas Entry Wins.

A spirited contest in the saddle horse class was won by Black Duchess of the Douglas stables at Kansas City. High Noon of the Brandeis stables was second. Midnight, lso of the Brandeis stables was third and Douglas' entry, My Dixie Dare was fourth.

In the five-gaited combination harness and saddle horse class George Brandeis' entry, My Mary, was first choice. Country Gentleman of the Sidles stables was second. Douglas' entry, The Plainsman, received third award and Majestic Charm, owned by Seth Lamb of Houston, Tex., was awarded fourth money.

Following the last judging event an exhibition of the famous six-horse hitch of the Union Stock Yards of Omaha was made. Throughout the afternoon the patrons of the show huddled in their overcoat and raincoats. It was not until after the horse pulling contest that any appreciable number left the stands to return to their homes. Applause was given frequently during the afternoon for outstanding performances.

sufficient amount to pay its members their salaries and expenses. Accordingly, the bureau loaned the board $700. This was done without specific authority of law, the state accountant finds, but the bureau is now crediting all reciprocity fees to the dental board, which was not done before, and its income may thereby be increased enough so that in time it can pay back the money borrowed.

Reports of Other Bodies.

Receipts of other examining bodies were as follows:

Basic science, $1,935; chiropody, $125; chiropractic, $386; embalming, $2,947; medical, $4,785; optometry, $60; osteopathy, $75; pharmacy, $1,867.50; veterinary, $1,179.50.

The tabulation also includes $2,971 of fees collected by the vital statistics division in the state health bureau and $470 license moneys paid in by maternity homes of which there are 128 paying $3 a year each.

Examining boards, in each instance are allowed to keep the regular examination fees, while the bureau spilts with them the income from annual renewals and reciprocal fees, except in the case of the dental board, which now gets all its reciprocal revenue. Miscellaneous other income is retained by the bureau.

State Accountant Sommer reports that about 20,000 items in all were handled by the bureau during the eighteen months covered by his check.

No Federal Child Hygiene Aid.

Last July the federal government withdrew all federal aid formerly given the state under the Sheppard-Towner act. In the preceding biennium, $11,000 was received from Washington for infancy and maternity work in Nebraska. The state must now rustle its own money for this activity. The work has been greatly curtailed, as only $1,641 is set aside for it in this biennium. That sum is what has been received from maternity homes since they were placed under state supervision. In the future, all such revenue will be applied in the same way.

Mrs. Clark Perkins, formerly of Beatrice, is the head of the bureau of examinations but has nothing to do with child hygiene work, which is carried on under the direction of the state health bureau.

All the activities referred to are under the state welfare department, in charge of Secretary E. M. Pollard.

The state barber and cosmetology boards are nominally under the welfare department, but actually run their own business and keep the money they collect, paying nothing to the bureau of examinations.

participation is probable. They are: Forth Worth, Tex., in class A; Mt. Clemens, Mich., and Lew Wallace high school of Gary, Ind., in class B.; Stanhope, Ia., and Flora, Ind., in class C.

Present indications are that more than 1,500 students will participate in the national contest. The East Orange orchestra is composed of eighty young musicians, and the other class A aggregations approximate it in size, according to Mr. Bimson. Local hotels are co-operating with contest officials in making arrangements to handle the large influx in the best possible manner. The different passenger associations are offering reduced fares and special accommodations to the competing orchestras.

Others May Come.

Many of the state high school contests have not been held as yet, local officials point out, making it impossible at the present time for those states to enter their representatives. Participation of a number of orchestras at Iowa City, last year was not known until they stepped from the train. Last minute entries are expected to swell the total to twenty.

Meanwhile, the Lincoln high school orchestra, national champion, is bending every effort towards annexing its second triumph, according to Charles B. Righter, jr., director, who expressed pleasure over the entries already received, and predicted that the concerts to be heard during the contest will be of exceptionally high quality. The Lincoln orchestra is composed of ninety-three players, offering complete symphonic instrumentation.

Flint Group Strong.

Flint will be represented by an orchestra of high caliber, Mr. Righter declared. Walter Bloch, nationally known musician, is director of the orchestra, which won third place in class A last year. Flint is widely known for its unique community musical organization, controlling all civic musical enterprises. A system of individual instruction in vogue at Hammond, Ind., which won second place at Iowa City, gives its orchestra a decided advantage so far as individual skill of the musicians is concerned, the Lincoln director stated.

Rudolph Seidl, director of the Lincoln little symphony orchestra is director of the Abraham Lincoln high school orchestra of Council Bluffs, entered in class A. H. S. Warren, director of the Froebel high school group of Gary is a pioneer in instrumental work. His band won third place at Denver last year, and his orchestra won first place in the Indiana state contest this year.

Russell Morgan, newly-elected president of the National Music Supervisors conference, is director of the John Adams high school orchestra of Cleveland. Waterloo, Ia., is another school with a strong orchestra. Although a small school, the orchestra is composed of 100 players. It won fourth place at Iowa City.

Additional interest is given to the concert by the fact that the Peru orchestra entered in class C will be directed by a girl student, Miss Ruby Brown of Rockport, Mo. Miss Brown is a senior in the state teacher's college there.

MISSING GIRL IS REPORTED ON TRAIN

Moroney family and walked away with the curly haired Mary Agnes, came the first definite news for the grief stricken family that their child is safe and well cared for, although traveling rapidly westward.

The couple, with a nurse maid, travelling in two Pullman compartments, was located this afternoon by Kansas City police who wired the drawing room and car number to police here. Railroad detectives promised to search the train at the next stop in Kansas.

Mrs. K. Houts, a passenger, told reporters in Kansas City that she felt certain "Julia Otis" and the child were on the train and a porter corroborated her views.

Mother 17 Years Old.

Behind her the "charity kidnaper" had left an impoverished and sorrowful home on South Wentworth Avenue where a 17-year-old mother, and a 25-year-old father grieved sorrowfully.

The father has paced the bare floors of the apartment since Thursday when the strange woman, with a well-filled purse, became first the benefactor and then the despoiler of the Moroney family.

Moroney hasn't slept or shaved since Mary Agnes went away with "Julia Otis," who won the family's confidence with groceries and a layette for another child, which is expected in a month.

His wife, Kathlyn, was restrained in her sorrow, her grief tempered by the thought that perhaps Mary Agnes is beter cared for than if she were playing on the uncarpeted floors.

Hopes Baby Fed Regularly.

"Of course, I want Mary Agnes back again," Mrs. Moroney said. "But I have a feeling that she is being well cared for. I hope the woman gives Mary Agnes her bottle of milk before she goes to sleep. She always had it, even if we had to go without food to buy it."

The chain of circumstances leading to the kidnaping of Mary Agnes started when the Moroneys, desperate in their poverty, appealed to a newspaper for aid. The first to answer was the mysterious kidnaper, who called herself "Julia Otis," and said her aged husband had died and left her a fortune. Mrs. Moroney described her as about 22, pretty and a blonde.

"Julia Otis" paved the way for her elaborate plot with charity. After the rest of the family was cared for, she suggested:

"Now I'll take Mary Agnes down town

Money For Legion Fund.

During the World war considerable money was raised by the people of Saline county to help the soldier at the front get some of the comforts of home. When the armistice was signed $995 was left on hand. The fund has been left in one of the local banks. Plans are now being made to turn the funds over to the local post of the American Legion, since the organization is building its own club house.

Over one hundred dollars was cleared by the production of a play by the faculty of the Wilber schools Thursday night. Those who attended spoke very highly of the performance, ranking it as one of the best of the many excellent home talent plays presented in Wilber. The money will be turned over to the building fund of the new community library.

Members of Supt. Montgomery's class in advertsiing took over the business houses last week, attempting to apply some of the principles studied in their text books. Some very attractive windows resulted from their efforts. The local business men have always been very willing to co-operate with the schcol in matters of this sort.

Wilber Personals.

Mrs. E. G. Hopkins and Mrs. W. E. Watkins went to Pawnee City Wednesday to attend a P. E. O. convention the remainder of the week.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

GREAT SIX MODEL OF WILLYS KNIGHT GAINS POPULARITY

Popularity of the sleeve-valve type of engine, as well as the distinctive beauty that characterizes Willys-Knight cars, has created more interest than ever before in the Willys-Knight Great Six. In comfort, style and performance, the Great Six has established a conspicuous place for itself among fine cars.

Five passenger sedan, five passenger coupe, roadster and coupe make up the Wills-Knight Great Six line. All are equipped with wire wheels, although models with wood wheels are offered at lower prices.

Each model presents a striking style development that is emphasized by the effective color treatment employed. The comfort for which Willys-Knight cars are famous is evident in the interiors with their luxurious cushions and smart appointments.

The public appeal for more power and speed is answered emphatically by the new Willys-Knight Great Six sleeve valve engine which develops 87 horsepower, resulting in a considerably higher road speed than ever before.

Cost Figures On Trucks Compiled By General Motors

With some 5,584 business firms contributing actual facts and figures on their truck operating, maintenance and depreciation costs, their use of special hauling equipment, their methods of compensating drivers, and a host of other matters in connection with their operation of some 46,017 trucks of varied makes, the national motor truck analysis, compiled by the General Motors company, is arousing nation-wide interest.

Now made available, without any charge, to all business men interested in truck operation, the book is a part of the company's research and study of commercial transportation on the broadest scale ever put into effect in the truck industry.

Boiled down for quick reading, and divided into sections according to each specialized industry or vocation, the book enables an individual business firm to make direct comparisons of its own truck costs and methods with such figures and methods of others in the same special vocation.

FIRE CHIEF MAKES 1609 MILE SPEED RUN WITH OAKLAND

The driving skill of a fire department chief and the speed of an Oakland Eight recently were combined to decrease the elapsed time on the 1609-mile road route between North Adams, Mass., and Miami, Fla., to 25 hours and 55 minutes, an average of 44.5 miles per hour.

The record time was established despite careful observance of speed and traffic laws ,a punctured tire, regular stops for meals and gasoline and the fact that the driver became lost in a tangle of roads "somewhere north of Washington."

The fire chief motorist was John E. Saulneir of North Adams. He was accompanied by Nelson S. McGraw and Valmore Monette, also of North Adams, who served as relief drivers. That the relief pilots maintained a smart pace be judged from McGraw's time on one stretch of 300 miles which he made in five hours flat. The Oakland was on the road during 33 hours of the total elapsed time which increases the actual speed to an average of nearly 49 miles per hour.

Chief Saulnier practically duplicated his schedule on the return run to North Adams. The total mileage, including short trips out of Miami, was 3,325.

Auto Notes

Protect Ignition System from Moisture.

The ignition system should be protected from short-circuiting troubles, caused by rain and fog. This can be done at a relatively slight expense. Starting is usually impossible until spark plugs are wiped dry and the distributor coil fully dried off. Occasionally the damage is dee enough so that the coil must be removed and baked or a new one substituted for it. In extreme cases, not only are ignition units, wet externally, but water follows down the cables and enters the distributor. Construction of the hood is sometimes accountable for moisture trouble, but in a heavy fog short-circuting is likely to accur independently of this. Tightly fitting, soft rubber spark plug hoods or covers drawn over cables and plugs at their points of attachment are largely used as well hoods designed to fit over the entire istributor housing ,provided with watertight entrances for the cables. Watertight coil enclosures are also provided. In inclosing the distributor it is desirable to exclude water completely, but still to permit slight air circulation through the housing so as to avoid condensation within it.

Solution in the Battery.

Never add anything to battery cells except distilled water. Battery cells are filled with a mixture of sulphuric acid and water and the correct proportion of acid in the mixture should be rather exactly maintained. The water in this mixture is constantly exaporating by heat and is also decomposed and and lost as hydrogen and oxygen gas whenever the cells are being charged and especially being overcharged. Water thus lost must be replenished to maintain the liquid level in the cells. The sulphuric acid placed in it remains there throughout its useful life. The proportion of acid water adopted in the original setup of a battery is sufficient to reduce its internal resistance to a feasible point and to render the liquid immune against freezing, but it is not sufficiently great to cause the plates to be eaten away at an excessive rate.

Never overload a running board, as it is only as strong as the brackets that hold it.

Driving fast drains a weakened battery. The charging rate increases only at a moderate speed.

Screeching brakes may be silenced by driving a short distance with the brakes lightly applied.

Old tires on front wheels are a risk. A blowout of a front tire is much more dangerous than the collapse of a rear one.

A weak battery may be saved when driving on a well-lighted highway by switching to the auxiliary lights.

A common trick among some automobile salesmen is to under-inflate tires to make a car ride more easily. It is well to note this fact before starting on a demonstration trip.

THOROUGH SPRING OIL CHANGE IS ADVISED BY HUPP

A certain manufacturer of tooth paste advertises that the film on teeth is destructive. Every motorist can well take a tip from this advice and convert it to use in the lubrication of his automobile in which the absence of a film of oil between working parts is a concrete danger.

Not only should spring demand a complete change in the grade of oil used but there are other oiling parts that should be watched closely, according to the service bureau of the Hupp Motor Car corporation.

"The entire chassis should be checked and thoroughly oiled or greased says the bureau." "Sometimes oiling connections become clogged with dirt or hardened lubricant. These should be opened so that a clear passage for the lubricant is obtained.

"It is best to remember that a cleanly, well lubricated car will not only furnish increased riding comfort and greater economy, but such precautions will assist in commanding a higher turned-in-price because of tis smoother running and riding qualities."

ARMY ENGINEER USES DODGE FOR TRIPS TO FIELDS

After the war birds arrive and the pilots are getting in some well-earned sleep, it is Lieut. Walter E. Richards who must stay awake and see that the little pursuit ships of the celebrated first pursuit group of Selfridge Field, Mich., are in condition to be on their way at a moment's notice.

Lieutenant Richards is the engineering officer of Selfridge field responsible for the functioning of more than forty ships of the group. When the group takes to the air for cross-country maneuvers, Lieut. Richards either precedes or follows with his picked crew of air mechanics in an army transport. In his wide and varied collection of duties, it is necessary for Lieutenant Richards to make many dashing trips to and from the various airports to the cities proper in which the pilots alight. For these trips which are all made with the least possible delay, Lieutenant Richards has selected a Dodge Brothers eight coupe.

Through the courtesy of Dodge Brothers dealers throughout the country, Lieutenant Richards is provided with his favorite car whenever he has important ground work to do.

Replacing Piston Rings.

Piston rings should be handled as though they were of glass, due to the metal being of cast iron and extremely brittle. The rings must be rolled around in their grooves to see that they have no wide or sticking spot. Note that the slots of the rings are of equal distance apart; the slots must not be in line. Because new rings often come oversize they must be fitted into the cylinder. This is done by inserting them deeply and evenly into the cylinder and measuring the distance the slots are open when so inserted. To allow for expansion there should be a clearance of from two to six-thousandths of an inch at the slot, depending upon the size of the cylinder. The top ring should have about one or two-thousandths more clearance than the lower ones, as it becomes hotter.

Motors and Their Care

Charging th. Battery.

A storage battery can only be charged by a direct current and when charging, the positive wire of the charging current must be connected to the positive of the battery and the negative to the negative. The voltage of the charging current should be somewhat greater than that of the battery, while the amperage should not be above one-tenth of the capacity. When a battery is charged or discharged very quickly it will overheat, and this overheating may result in the plates warping. When the plates warp, the paste fill fall out of the grids. Not only will this prevent the battery from taking a charge, but it will short-circuit the plates at the bottom. For this reason the battery must be charged slowly. Using the starting motor for a considerable time at a stretch means a quick discharging of the battery and a possible overheating and warping. Therefore, if the engine does not start quickly, do not use the starter for a long time but get out and find out why the engine does not start. Never put acid or spigot water into the battery.

Heavier Oil Necessary for Older Cars.

Selection of he proper grade of oil will make a noticeable difference in the performance of an engine. The older the car, the heavier the grade of oil should be used. It should be remembered that the car has suffered a certain amount of wear, and as a result the space between pistons and cylinder walls has increased. Actual measurements show that in the average passenger car this space increases 50 per cent. In the first 2000 miles and double in the first 12,000 miles. Since one function of the lubricating oil is to seal this space in order to prevent loss of power, the engine may need a heavier oil than the grade formerly used.

Springs Need Lubrication.

Springs must be kept sufficiently oiled to give the best possible riding comfort and to insure the least possibility of the springs breaking. Due to the fact that springs become shorter or longer, depending upon the unevenness of the highway, it is necessary that the spring hinges and spring pins be kept well lubricated, to insure the necessary spring motion. Cup grease is a good lubricant to use in this connection because it is non-fluid and will therefore remain longer in the shackles. These may be lubricated every 500 miles

Cold Cream for Dirty Hands.

A jar of cold cream, carried in one of the pockets of the car, along with a large cloth, is especially useful for women who are compelled to change a tire on the road and there is no water available to wash the hands. The cream will prevent the grime from working into the skin.

Worth Remembering.

To reduce wear and lessen noise about the car, do not fail to lubricate door latches, striker plates and other locking parts frequently. Wiping them with an oil-moistened cloth will be sufficient and does not invilve much danger of soiling clothing which may tough them.

To Remove Carbon From Spark Plugs.

Carbon will collect more quickly if the insulator of a sprak plug is scratched with a knife or sandpaper. The best way to remove carbon is to soak the plugs in denatured alcohol, cleaning the insulator with a small, stiff brush and a piece of cloth.

Unequalized brakes will cause the tread of a tire to wear out prematurely.

Pushing a stalled or parked car by the headlights will force them out of focus.

Excessive shimmy in the front wheels is often traced to tires, and the softer they are the more they shimmy.

Because metals expand when heated, adjustments to various engine parts should not be made when the motor is cold.

The life of tires is greatly lengthened if they are occassionally shifted opposite to the direction of rotation on the wheels.

A dirty spark plug will cause missing, which, in turn, will cause gasoline to enter that cylinder and wear beacuse of the cutting of the oil film.

"Inching" up in traffic may be the means of beating the other motorist off in a quick getaway, but places a strain on the engine that is likely to prove costly.

The cost of gasoline for running a light car is about 22 per cent of the total cost per mile. In a heavy car it is about 15 per cent.

Andy Kerr, canny football coach at Colgate, got his start as an obscure high school coach in Johnstown, Pa., where he taught mathematics and tutored the football, basketball and track teams on the side.

Another Step in the March of Aviation

President Hoover examining the model craft built by Donald Burnham, 15, West Lafayette, Ind Burnham was one of the winners in a model plane contest conducted throughout the country. It wa: Burnham's plane that almost hit Hoover when it launched into the air. Other young air enthusiasts wh won in the plane model contest are shown in the group. They flew to Washington in a Ford transport plane. The young builders are Donald Gardner of Detroit, Ernest Marcoulier of Chicago, Kenneth Mudie of Detroit, and the winner, Donald Burnham.

Teachers Endorse Use of "Mild Profanity"

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 17—(I. N. S.)—Slang and "mild profanity," former outlaws in the society of speech, were given social recognition by the National Council of Teachers of English, in session here recently.

Many of the teachers who were present have indorsed slang as the "resource of language" and Dr. Thomas A. Knott, of Springfield, Mass., linguist editor of Webster's dictionaries, came forward as a champion of slang and other unconventional forms of speech.

"A real lady or gentleman," said Dr. Knott, "must have perfect control of all types of language, including slang and even a little mild profanity. There is a language for every occasion and sometimes mild profanity is a person's best means of self expression."

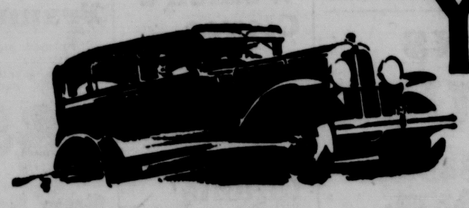

The old seventh-inning stretch was revived in Baltimore on opening day and the home team started a scoring spree in that session.

Charley Havens, Western Maryland football star, has signed to play with the Frankford Yellow Jackets next fall.

A FAMOUS NAME A FINER CAR

Smooth.... YES!

because of its rigid, counterweighted crankshaft, Harmonic Balancer and new-type engine mountings

Smoothness is an outstanding quality of Pontiac performance—because Pontiac design includes those features essential to smooth operation.

The 60-horsepower motor operates at moderate engine speed when developing maximum power. The 53-pound crankshaft is counterweighted and has the Harmonic Balancer to offset torsional vibration. The crankcase is heavily ribbed to retain the main bearings in accurate alignment. And the engine is insulated from the frame by rubber mountings.

You can sense the result of these quality features the minute you take the wheel of the Pontiac Big Six—smoothness at low speeds; smoothness when accelerating; smoothness when the throttle is open wide! And smoothness is the distinguishing characteristic of a well designed, up-to-date automobile!

Consider the delivered price as well as the list (f. o. b.) price when comparing automobile values ... Pontiac delivered prices include only authorized charges for freight and delivery and the charge for any additional accessories or financing desired.

Mail County Test Grades.—Results of the second set of eighth grade examinations taken May 9 by 352 rural school students in the county were mailed Saturday to the teachers by the office of the county superintendent of education. Applications for free high school tuition were also sent out. Practically all those who took the tests were successful. Many who took the examination sought to complete high school qualifications, and others to improve grades made in the tests held in April.

KANSAS LIQUOR DRIVE LAUNCHED

Rum Ring Claimed Smashed With Arrest of Thirty at Wichita.

TOPEKA, Kas., May 17—(UP)—A thorough investigation of "wet spots" in Kansas, which state authorities minimized when Walter Liggett, magazine writer, asserted that state was "dripping wet," was promised tonight by federal prohibition authorities here.

Continued action against illict liquor dealings in the Wichita area, where United States agents claimed they smashed a widespread liquor ring this week, seizing more than thirty principals, was forecast tonight by Dan B. Cowie, assistant United States district attorney. Cowie said he would return to Wichita Monday to push the work begun.

Cowie emphatically denied reports that he had withdrawn from Wichita when those involved in the net asserted further investigation of conditions would involve enforcement conditions which would "shock the state." He said he had come back to Topeka merely to get some clean shirts.

"There is still much to be done in the investigation already started," Cowie said.

Federal Judge Richard J. Hopkins has called a grand jury to examine the situation. It will convene the latter part of this month.

Meanwhile, Dempster O. Potts of Wichita, attorney for one of the alleged ringleaders held in the raids, issued a signed statement alleging "If they keep up this liquor probe it will reach the state house." He made specific allegations against certain officials.

French Unknown Paid Tribute By U.S. War Mothers

PARIS, May 17—(UP)—The gold star mothers of America stood in silent tribute beneath the Arc de Triomphe today and placed a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier of France, who was the comrade and ally of their sons in the World war.

"This is a climax in the lives of most of us," said Mrs. Sarah J. Thompson of New York, who placed the wreath beside the eternal flame. "It has been thirteen years since we lost our sons. We have become accustomed to grief, but never were quite satisfied.

"Now we will see the graves and the crosses over them. It is peace and quietness to know that ours ons are sleeping and well cared for among other brave boys. We will feel a great burden lifted from our hearts and return home happy."

After the ceremony at the tomb of the unknown soldier, the mothers met Ambassador Walter E. Edge at an official reception and tea at a restaurant on the Champs Elysses Gen. John J. Pershing also was present.

The first gold star mothers will visit the graves of their sons tomorrow afternoon at Suresnes cemetery, on the slope of Mount Valerian overlooking Paris, where 1,535 soldiers and sailors are buried.

EFFORTS TO CAP OIL GUSHER FAIL

Oklahoma City Well Is More Unruly Than Famous Mary Sudik.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., May 17—(U. P.)—A roaring gusher splashed its wealth of oil over the southeastern section of the Oklahoma City field tonight where a month ago a neighboring well, the famous Mary Sudik, flowed wild for eleven days.

Defying efforts of emergency crews to cap its huge flow, the No. 1 Sigmon well owned jointly by Phillips Petroleum Co., Prairie Oil & Gas and T. B. Slick, continued its rampage, started Friday when it ripped through restraining master gates.

More unruly than the Mary Sudik, it came in suddenly with a tremendous flow of oil, variously estimated from 15,000 to 24,000 barrels, and with a gas flow of from 75,000,000 to 200,000,000 cubic feet. Its production apparently increased as sand blasts that ground at shattered connections drilled the 6,610-foot hole deeper where operators had hoped to find big pay.

All drilling activity ceased in the southern section of the field. Roads were blocked for several miles.

Crews Work in Oil and Mud.

Crews labored in a slush of oil and mud. Rain that fell throughout the day added to the difficulty of removing broken connections and emplacing a new master gate.

Hazard from fire that could be caused from a stone hurled against the steel derricks was great. Seriousness of an oil fire would be greater in the field now than when the Mary Sudik threw its wealth over wide areas, because a score of large gushers have been added to the field, bringing the number of producers to 240. An equal number of wells have been drilling or locations staked.

Among the scores that plodded over muddy oil field lanes to witness the latest spectacle of nature in the great flush field was Claud T. Sigmon, who had visions of leaving his large furniture business to younger men. When Sigmon came here ten years ago he purchased a 160-acre tract in the field. That field now promises to be one of the richest leases in the prized area. Six wells are drilling on it.

TEXAS OIL FIELD HIT BY TWISTER

HOUSTON, Tex., May 17—(UP)—Two men were injured and about twelve oil derricks were leveled by a twister at Barbers Hills, in Chambers county, shortly after 5 p. m., today, according to reports from the Sun Oil Co. offices there. Neither of the men was hurt seriously.

The storm cut a path 300 yards wide through the field.

The wind came from the southwest and traveled northeastward. It lasted about twelve minutes.

The derricks were leveled like matches by the fury of the wind. Debris was hurled high in the air and strewn over a wide section of the fields.

CARVER DENIES SLAYING WIFE

Claims She and Son Killed by Negro, Whom He Shot to Death.

SEBRING, Fla., May 17—(I. N. S.)—Taking the stand in his own behalf, William R. Carver, former Stroudsburg, Pa., real estate agent and University of Pennsylvania graduate, late today protested his innocence at his trial here for the murder of his wife.

Carver is under indictment for first degree murder for the killing of his 2-year-old son and Ben Whitehead, a negro house boy. The three were found dead in the Carver bungalow here April 2.

For one hour and four minutes the defendant was on the stand, and told a story of awakening from an afternoon siesta to find Whitehead hacking to death his wife and small son.

Tells of Shooting Negro.

"Whitehead came toward me and I ran back to my own room and got a pistol from a bureau drawer and met the negro in the hallway. I then emptied my gun at the negro, shooting five times.

"The negro staggered and fell and I returned to my own room, got two more bullets, ran back to the hallway, and shot at the negro's body again. He was trying to arise, that's why I shot again. Then I telephoned for the police."

Carver underwent a rigid cross examination. He admitted that he remembered the arrival of police and neighbors on the scene, but said he did not remember conversations with the chief of police, neighbors and reporters.

When questioned by the state regarding a $10,000 double indemnity insurance policy carried on the life of his wife, he said it was taken out by his wife herself.

Insurance Plot Charged.

The state contends that Carver killed his wife to collect on the policy.

The defendant said he was educated at the University of Pennsylvania and Columbia university and that he enlisted as a volunteer at the entrance of the United States into the World war.

He outlined his training camp activities in this country before embarking for France.

Miriam Finney, formerly of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and now a practicing attorney at Miami, Fla., testified to finding empty cartridges on the floor of Carver's bedroom a week after the triple killing.

RURAL SCHOOLS CLOSING TERMS

Eighth Grade Graduation Exercises Will Be Held May 31.

Five Lancaster county rural schools closed during the past week with approximately fifty others expecting to close during the coming week, thus drawing rural school work near to a close for the 1929-30 school year. All the remaining schools will close within two weeks, the bulk completing their work the week ending May 31.

That is the date of the eighth grade graduation exercises which will be held at the student activities building on the agricultural college campus. A county rural school picnic has been planned for the afternoon, following the graduation exercises.

Many of the schools are running later this year than would ordinarily be the case because of being closed during the winter as the result of an unusually heavy amount of illness. Some schools that opened during the closing days of August will not close until the end of the coming week or even the week after. This extension of school is to make up for time lost when the schools were closed during the winter when practically all students in the affected districts were confined with contagious diseases.

Annual district school meetings in the rural sectors will be held the second Monday in June. At that time vacancies in the school boards will be filled by election of the residents of the district attending the meeting.

Those elected will take office the second Monday in July. In most districts, this year, the director of school board, who serves as secretary, is the office to be filled. In some districts, there will be two vacancies to be filled. In such districts, election of teachers is not possible until after the second Monday in July when the new board comes into office.

GRAF ZEPPELIN READY TO SOAR

South American Flight Scheduled to Start Sunday.

Four Women, Including Two Americans, To Make Trip.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, May 17—(U. P.)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, white-haired commander of the Graf Zeppelin, issued an order tonight for the dirigible's decks to be cleared for action at 4 p. m., Sunday in preparation for the first commercial flight to South America. The dirigible will fly from Brazil to Lakehurst, N. J., on the return trip.

The famous ship is scheduled, barring unexpected developments to rise from her hangar here about 5:30 p. m., enroute for the first stop at Seville. Mrs. Mary Pierce of New York and perhaps the Infanta Alfonso de Orleans, cousin of King Alfonso of Spain, are scheduled to join the passengers aboard the dirigible at the Spanish terminal. There will be twenty-two passengers on board the ship when it leaves here.

Two other women passengers, Mrs. Laura Crouse Durston of Syracuse, N. Y., and Senora Alfredo Groeschel of San Sebastian, were added to the Graf Zeppelin's passenger list tonight. Mrs. Durston is a sister of George Crouse, another passenger, and Sencra Groeschel will be accompanied by her husband, a cafe owner.

Four Women Aboard.

With Lady Drummond Hay and Mrs. Pierce there will be four women on board for the flight.

Mrs. Pierce was aboard the dirigible on one of its previous flights across the Atlantic, the protests raised by her family when it became known she would be aboard being partly responsible for the Zeppelin company's refusal to make public the passenger list for the present flight.

Capt. Ernest Lehmann, second in command on the dirigible, gave out the following revised route and time table for the flight:

Leave Friedrichshafen about 5:30 p. m., Sunday. Arrive Seville in twenty-three hours, about 4:30 p. m., Monday.

Leave Seville about dawn Tuesday on sixty-hour flight to Brazil, pausing one hour at Rio de Janeiro on Thursday. Arrive at Pernambuco Friday or Saturday for two-day stop.

Leave Pernambuco, first of next week for sixty-hour journey to Havana, where the dirigible will halt for an hour before continuing the twenty-four-hour flight to Lakehurst, N. J., where it will halt for two days before departure for Seville and Friedrichshafen.

The entire trip should take about two weeks.

William B. Leeds of New York is scheduled to join the dirigible at Pernambuco.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following statement of the purposes of the flight of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin to South America was written for the United Press by Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the dirigible and head of the Zeppelin concern. The flight will start Sunday afternoon.

BY DR. HUGO ECKENER.

(Commander of the Graf Zeppelin.)

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, May 17—(U. P.)—I have always considered the route on which the dirigible Graf Zeppelin is scheduled to start for South America Sunday the best aerial stretch for regular European-South American traffic because it has relatively steady meteorological conditions and favorable trade winds.

The main stretch from Spain to the equator is in the trade wind area. This means we have the benefit of a rear wind and also can estimate the time of the journey in advance. Hitherto, this knowledge has been theoretical and we now intend to test it practcially and examine the wind and weather conditions.

Above all we want to gather reliable data regarding the altitude to which the trade winds extend.

This is unusually important because the trade wind reaches to a low altitude (estimated between 1,000 and 2,000 meters,) above which the so-called anti-trade winds prevail.

The anti-trade winds could facilitate the reverse of the flight from South America to Europe. Our trip is destined particularly to enrich our knowledge of this topic.

The second vital purpose of the journey is to inform ourselves of the most suitable place for a landing station for regular European-South American airship service. We expect to decide whether it will be Pernambuco (Brazil), as we hitherto have assumed would be most suitable.

BRADY VERDICT TO BE APPEALED

Former Texas Judge Weeps When Jury Finds Him Guilty Of Slaying Miss Highsmith.

DALLAS, May 17—(U. P.)—John Brady, former Texas Appellate judge and once an eminent attorney, was found guilty of "murder without malice" by a District court jury here today and was sentenced to serve three years in the penitentiary for the fatal stabbing of Miss Lehlia Highsmith, court stenographer.

Judge Brady wept upon hearing the verdict. It was the second trial of the 60-year-old jurist, his first trial at Austin ending in a hung jury. His attorneys announced they would appeal today's verdict.

Three men on the jury voted for the death penalty on the first ballot, but they spent only three hours in reaching a compromise.

Testimony offered in the case was to the effect that five years ago Brady met the girl he killed and became infatuated with her. He later admitted to his wife he was having an illicit affair with the girl, but promised to break it off. It continued, however, until the night of November last when he killed her in front of her rooming house. Eyewitnesses to the killing said the girl begged for her life.

More than thirty witnesses were brought into court on behalf of the defendant, saying he had become insane. Insanity produced by the long use of alcohol was his defense. Witnesses said he had taken to excessive drink in recent years, and that in the last two or three years he did not seem to be of sound mind.

His first trial in Austin lasted twenty-three days and ended in a hung jury, with one man holding out for acquittal against eleven who wanted to give Brady death or life imprisonment. The case was transferred to Dallas on a change of venue and the trial started two weeks ago.

FIRST 16 DAYS OF MAY NET $724,000 IN COUNTY TAXES

Tax collections are much more favorable than a year ago, William Albers, county treasurer, announced Saturday after a survey of the returns of the first sixteen days in May in contrast to similar figures for 1929.

During the first sixteen days of May, the county treasurer collected a total of $724,000 on current year taxes alone, or $111,000 more than during the same days of the preceding year. In 1929, the first sixteen days of May netted $613,000 on tax collections.

The treasurer's monthly report showed that a slightly larger amount of tax money had been collected during April this year than last but the heavy increase came this month. During the first ten days, collections ran $20,000 ahead of last year. During the six business days ending Friday night, the treasurer received $91,000 more tax money than during the same period last year.

During these last six days included in the treasurer's survey, collections amounted to $272,300 as compared with $178,500 last year.

INDIANS GATHER FOR SALT RAIDS

Police Preparations Indicate Plan to Arrest Entire Bombay Band.

Natives are Determined to Force the Issue With Authorities.

BOMBAY, May 17—(U. P.)—Hundreds of Indian independence volunteers concentrated tonight near two government salt depots prepared to defy strong police guards by raids on the salt pans early Sunday.

Although the government was swift to meet the proposed raids by wholesale arrests in the Bombay region, darkness found the white clad native bands marching toward or camped near the Dharasana and Wadala depots.

Their determination to force the issue with police was indicated by the division of the raiders into many groups, part of which took a different route to the depots. They planned to raid the Wadala works from ten different directions.

This depot is twelve miles from Bombay and was the scene of the most intensive preparations on the part of both natives and police. About 300 volunteers marched out from the Bombay congress headquarters at nightfall. They were wearing the coarse, white homespun cloth advocated by their imprisoned leader, the Mahatma Gandhi, and most of them wore the small white Gandhi caps.

They marched in military formation, carrying the nationalist flag at the head of the column. The volunteer raiders carried food—a handful of parched rice or grain—and canvas water bottles.

Awaited by Police.

There was considerable uncertainty in the ranks of the raiders due to the reports of their scouts that 500 police with staves and fifty officers with revolvers were concentrated at a strategic position near the salt depot. The police had motor trucks, indicating they planned to arrest the entire band.

The police had been busy all day arresting demonstrators, most of them preparing for raids and charged with unlawful assembly in prescribed areas. Three hundred and twenty-four volunteers were arrested at Dharasana, 200 volunteers were arrested at Belgaum and many others were injured when police forcibly dispersed a group attempting to raid the Shiroda salt depot in the Ratnagiri district, while others were seized in isolated raids by police.

Although Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, the "Joan of Arc" of the independence movement, returned here today and says there was "nothing more for me to do at Dharasana," where her raid was blocked by police, the members of her camp continued their attacks on the salt works at Dharasana.

OKLAHOMA FLOOD MENACE SPREADS

High Water Disrupts Traffic; Torrential Rains Continue, and Little Hope for Relief.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., May 17—(U. P.)—The flood threat that has menaced western Oklahoma for two days was expected to reach into eastern sections of the state over the week-end as heavy rain fell in that section today.

Flat bed streams coursing through the western plains became lakes today as torrential rains continued to fill them. The Canadian and Washita rivers approached flood stage.

The North Canadian spilled over its banks between Oklahoma City and Elena and inundated hundreds of acres of low land farms.

Families living along the banks of Rock and Pole Cat creeks near Sapulpa were prepared to pack their household goods and move to higher ground if the streams continued their rapid rise.

Train service was disrupted and highways were blocked in that section of the state because of swollen streams. Portions of the city of Sapulpa were inundated.

Dirt roads were impassable throughout the state.

Floded regions were promised little relief in the weather report, which predicted thunder storms and more rain.

DENVER VICE INQUIRY OPENS

Judge Calvert Appeals To Grand Jury to Clean Up Colorado City.

DENVER, May 17—(INS)—Asserted open gambling, alleged official graft, racketeering and other forms of vice declared to be running rampant and under protection of "higher-ups" will have the searching spotlight of an official Denver county grand jury turned upon them Monday night.

The grand jury met in West Side court here today and received its instructions and the charge in the form of a scathing denunciation of vice conditions in Denver from Judge H. A. Calvert.

Declaring that graft and corruption are wide open in the city and that "this orgy has been winked at and even shielded and protected by people whose duty it is to enforce the law," the charge appealed to the grand jury to clean up the city and aid in punishing the guilty regardless of who they may be.

The grand jury probe followed in the wake of sensational charges aired when S. J. McFarland, bank bookkeeper, confessed to embezzling $50,000, most of which he claimed to have lost in local gambling houses.

Ravenna Student Advances In Music

William Bonson, High School Senior, to Study in Philadelphia for Coming Year.

(Special to The Star.)

RAVENNA, Neb., May 17—William Bonson, member of the Ravenna high school graduating class, has been called as an accepted student and participant in the Curtis School of Music at Philadelphia, and will enter upon the regular courses at that school in the fall. While a student in the local schools Bonson participated in musical activities, winning honors in state contests.

Last summer he was accepted as a student in the national student band encampment at Interlochen, Mich., and won his way to solo clarinetist. During the winter an orchestra composed of participants at Interlochen was assembled under direction of Walter Damrosch and made a two weeks tour of eastern cities. Bonson was one of those called to make this tour, and it was while playing in Philadelphia that he attracted attention of the instructors in the Curtis School of Music. He will again attend the encampment at Interlochen, and be ready for the Curtis school in the fall.

Mr. Bonson's mother, herself a musican and teacher, early recognized William's talent, and gave it careful cultivation and encouragement. To her is due much of the rapid advancement of the boy, who is now called to a place and opportunity that is the envy of almost any musician.

SPORTS

LINCOLN, NEB., SUNDAY, MAY 18, 1930.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Calif., May 17—(I. N. S.)—Eric Krenz, Stanford track captain, today broke his own record in the discus with a hurl of 167 feet 5⅜ inches in the California intercollegiate track and field meet here. Southern California carried off the championship with a total of 78 13-15 points.

Krenz' record throw was nearly four feet further than his own old world record. His throw came during a lull and he was not aided by any wind whatever. The officials immediately measured the mark with a steel tape and affidavits were signed recommending the acceptance of the mark by national and international authorities.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., May 17—(I. N. S.)—Clarence De Mar, veteran Massachusetts Marathon runner, after a narrow escape from being hit by an automobile, won the Pawtucket-Woonsocket marathon of the Novelty Park club, 26 miles, 385 yards, over hill and dale, this afternoon.

His time was two hours and 41 minutes. Jimmy Hennigan of Boston finished second.

During the race, De Mar, who was ahead of the large pack most of the way, jumped out of the path of an automobile, that came up from behind, barely in the nick of time.

Gallant Fox Writes Turf History at Churchill Downs

Preakness Winner Repeats In Derby

Proves Himself Truly Great Horse By Outclassing Field in Blue Grass Classic; Sande in the Saddle

CHURCHILL DOWNS, Louisville, Ky., May 17—(I. N. S.)—Gallant Fox, churning those shanks of his even as his immortal ancestor, Sir Gallahad III, had done in a faraway day, rewrote the history of thoroughbred racing in America today by winning the Kentucky Derby, much as he had done the Preakness at Pimlico just eight days before. It wasn't a horse race after the three-quarter pole. It was a pageant, a processional. Not a horse of the 15 starters was able to question the Fox's right to win. Not one of them could do more than keep him under surveillance. They had done their racing and were ready to call it a finish long before the Fox had definitely decided to run.

Every Inch a Champion.

Before this decision was reached, he was just a race horse going through the motions with the commoners of the track. After it was made and put into effect, he looked every inch the champion he is, in fact(he was old Sir Gallahad all over again—a horse too good for his class, his company and his year. He won by two lengths from Gallant Knight, Ned O and Gone Away in that order and if a horse can smile, the Fox must have leered knowingly when he passed the stand.

It was a good horse laugh, at that, and the joke was on the 60,000 people, including the Earl of Derby, who had beaten a path to come to see a great horse race. Instead, all they saw was cavalry maneuver, with Earl Sande on Gallant Fox carrying the company banner.

Shins of the Father.

There really must be something in this heredity business, particularly the part concerning the sins of the fathers. In life, it is the sins that go down the line, even unto the fourth generation. In horse racing, it is the shins of the fathers that are passed along to their heirs and Gallant Fox used a stout set of them this afternoon.

His time, 2:07 3-5, for the mile and a quarter distance wasn't particularly important. The fact that he won and that Earl Sande was his rider was as important as a punch on the nose. It meant that Sande had equalled the Derby record with three winners, the others being Zev in 1923 and Flying Ebony in 1926. It meant that Gallant Fox was to take his place on the pedestal with old Sir Barton as the only horses to win both the Preakness and the Derby.

Earl Sees Real Hoss.

It also meant that the Earl of Derby, having crossed the Atlantic to see how America ran stake races in his name, had not made his journey altogether in vain. He hadn't seen a race. But it was his privilege to see a real horse run and a great rider ride him and so when he presented the cup to William Woodward, the Fox's glowing owner, there was a timbre and throb in the noble voice that told of emotions the spectacle had stirred from within.

Lord Derby read his speech from a manuscript, in which the winning horse and owner seemed to have been inserted before the race, not after, indicating that if the Fox and Sande had fooled anybody, it hadn't been him. He was dressed in ministerial black, indicating also that he knew his Derby weather.

A light rain fell before, during and after the race, but didn't affect the result in any way, since the track remained hard, if slow.

As a matter of fact, the Fox and Sande fooled nobody. They were a

THE reorganized Nebraska State baseball league, said reorganization resulting largely from the personal efforts and enthusiasm of one James E. Beltzer of Lincoln, is about to hoist the curtain on the pennant drama of 1930, the approaching season being the third since the State circuit returned to the fold of so-called organized ball.

The Nebraska loop's deck of cards, it seems, has been subjected to a shuffling process during the few weeks preceding the start of the flag race. The fact that I have parted company with the league as its official statistician is not in any sense important, as it stands to reason that such an inconsequential person could detach himself from the league's official roster without provoking as much as a ripple in the even course of the State circuit's ship as it cruises the baseball seas.

In confessing that the severance of my own connection with the Nebraska league undoubtedly is a matter of indifference to the organization, I cannot but wonder if the Brutuses of the State loop who recently gave the death stab to Mr. Beltzer's presidential affiliations are right well pleased with their job.

ONLY a casual thumbing of the history pages would be required to produce the proof that Mr. Beltzer was the founder and creator of the league. He conceived the unique plan under which the circuit was organized two years ago—a plan which baseball men in general rate as the most ingenious scheme in the annals of the diamond pastime—after which he demonstrated his faith and interest in the child of his brain by investing his own money in the enterprise and, in times of financial stress, giving more of his cash and credit in order that the league might ride the waves that threatened to engulf it.

Although I was not present when the death blow was struck, I am

SENATORS MAUL TRIBE OF MACK

World Champions Take Drubbing at Hands of Washington.

WASHINGTON, May 17—(U. P.)—Walter Johnson's surprising Senators today tightened their hold on first place in the American league by swamping the world champion Athletics, 16 to 5, for the seventh straight time this year. The Senators had three big innings in which they scored six, four and five runs respectively. Sam West sewed the game up in the fifth with a home run over the right field wall with two on. A fan dropped dead during the excitement occasioned by this hit.

Sam Rice, veteran outfielder, singled in the seventh, extending to 28 the number of consecutive games in which he has hit safely. The score:

English Earl Sees Classic at Downs

CHURCHILL DOWNS, Ky., May 17—(U. P.)— Lord Derby of England witnessed his first horse race in this country today. He said in an interview with the United Press that he had "suffered his greatest disappointment" in not seeing Man O'War while in Kentucky.

"I saw one of his sons, Crusader, but I did so want to see Man O'War," he said. "Your studs in Kentucky are marvelous and made me green with envy, but I had hoped to see more of them.

"The heat in New York did me in a bit and I've been laid up in bed for a day or so. I would have been willing to have been carried on a stretcher to see Man O'War, for he certainly must be a great stallion."

Pale Hose Hand Double Trouncing to Indians of Cleveland.

CHICAGO, May 17—(UP)—The The Cleveland Indians had holes in their bats and holes in their mitts today and the Chicago White Sox took a doubleheader, barely failing to whitewash the Tribe both times. The scores were 6 to 2 and 4 to 1.

The Indians could score on nothing but home runs. Only Morgan's homer in the third accounting for two runs, saved the Tribe from a shutout in the second game. And in the first game a last inning hit by Averill accounted for the single score. Score of first game:

Hastings college retained its laurels as track champion of the Nebraska College Athletic conference Saturday afternoon, Coach "Brigham" Young's Bronchos leading the field of performers following a hectic afternoon of cinder competition. The meet was staged under most discouraging weather conditions, a cold, driving rain, which persisted throughout the meet, drenching the athletes and converting the track and field event pits into water-soaked bogs.

Although the weather tossed a wet blanket over the prospect of much record-breaking, one conference mark fell during the afternoon's competition.

Nebraska Loopers On Starting Mark

With J. Pluvius Consenting, 8 Teams of State League In Action Today In Pursuit of 1930 Pennant.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

Assuming, hopefully, that J. Pluvius may be willing to relent at least a little bit, doing a fade-out and taking his water faucet with him, the eight clubs of the Nebraska State baseball league will be on the starting mark today for the inauguration of their 1930 pennant race. Preparations for the flag campaign have been in progress at every city on the circuit, with squads of candidates varying in numbers from 50 to 75, and the get-away card provides for four doubleheaders, the opening day program being as follows:

First Day Games.

York at Lincoln, 2.
Norfolk at Fairbury, 2.
Norton at Grand Island, 2.
McCook at North Platte, 2.

Any effort aimed at analyzing the comparative strength of the teams in Neberaska loop would be an utter waste of time. Practically every club in the league has discarded numerous old players in favor of new talent and the chase may be in progress a month or more before the real contenders for the pennant will have a fair chance to establish their class.

Lincoln's Links, for instance, still are piloted by Leslie Nunamaker, former American league catcher, but the local leader has retained only six of his 1929 performers and the club will be at least half untried in beginning the 1930 pursuit.

York Has Bunch of Huskies.

A similar situation exists at York, where Manager Art Rasmussen has assembled a team of giant youngsters, mostly recruited from material entirely strange to the Nebraska circuit. Rasmussen's aggregation, in fact, will have a six-footer in almost every position on the club, so if physical dimensions count for anything, the schedule-makers picked a high hurdle for the Links in assigning the York Dukes to perform in Lincoln in the opening series.

Night baseball under floodlights, the main topic in minor league circles of late, is to have its official coming-out party Monday night, May 19, at Landis field, where the Links and the Dukes will tangle in the first nocturnal contest ever scheduled in a class D league.

The lighting plant at the local ball yard has been tested and then retested in preparing for the Monday inaugural and President Bob Robinson of the Links is confident that the illumination at Landis field will be ample for night ball purposes and that the local games will please every patron and silence every skeptic.

Added Lights Installed.

Additional lights were installed at the local park last week and the total wattage of the plant is 170,000, a figure which surpasses that at Des Moines and also at Omaha, where President Barney Burch is preparing to install night games.

President Robinson announced Saturday night that KFOR, one of Lincoln's broadcasting stations, will be on the air Monday night with a detailed report of the Lincoln-York game. The night games at Landis field are to get under way at 7:30 and no change in the starting time will be made unless President Robinson becomes convinced that the public is in favor of a switch to a later hour.

Opening Day Lineups.

The Links and the Dukes will step out at 2 o'clock this afternoon for their opening day doubleheader, the batting lineups being as follows:

York—Betts, second base; Clark, short; Bolen, center field; Smith, first base; Eash, third base; Lawrence, left; Bodine or Lassater, right, Krause or Ringhofer, catch; Mat-

GIANTS VICTIMS DOUBLE DEFEAT

National Loop Leaders Twice Knocked Off By Boston Club.

POLO GROUND, New York, May 17—(I. N. S.)—Hopes of the New York Giants to further increase their hold on first place in the National league by walking over the Braves were shattered here this afternoon when the lowly Bostons took both ends of a doubleheader, both by the score of 4 to 3. The first affair went 10 innings.

Walter Berger, rookie Brave outfielder, who won the opening game single-handed with two home runs, continued his hitting in the night-cap with another circuit clout. In addition to Berger, Terry, Hogan and Ott hit for the circuit in the second game, accounting for all the Giant runs.

Bob Smith went the route in the second game, as did Siebold in the opener. Score of first game:

Lincoln vs. Tech Game Washed Out

Lincoln high school's baseball game with Omaha Tech Saturday afternoon on the Lincoln lot was washed away by rain during the first half of the second inning, with the Omaha pastimers in front, 4-1.

Tech garnered four runs in the first inning without getting a hit, although 10 players were at bat. Two were walked, three were hit by pitcher and two lived on errors, while fielder's choices took care of the other players at bat.

The postponed game will be played as part of a doubleheader at Omaha May 29, when Lincoln is scheduled to appear against the Techsters as a feature of the school picnic. Kucera, Hamann and Glassford formed the battery for Tech, while Horn and Bork toiled for Lincoln.

Great Array of Track And Field Athletes On "Big Six" Meet Roster

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

The greatest array of track and field athletes in Missouri valley history will assemble at the University of Nebraska Memorial stadium for the annual Big Six conference championships Friday and Saturday, May 23 and 24. Preliminaries in all events, except the distance grinds and two relays will be run off Friday, the next day being given over entirely to finals.

Preliminary Performances.

Preliminary performances turned in by athletes of the six institutions during the relay carnivals and dual meets forecast a carnival of record-breaking, with the conference marks in nearly every event being threatened during the two-day cinder carnival. The Memorial stadium track is in excellent condition for the cinder burners, while the clay pits and cinder runways have been carefully groomed in the field event performers.

The Nebraska Cornhuskers, defending champions and indoor titleholders, and the Kansas Jayhawkers are considered the meet favorites in the preliminary forecasts.

Jayhawkers Coming Strong.

Kansas finished well down the list in the indoor meet, but picked up strength with the addition of the discus event and the sprints at the start of the outdoor season. Should Kansas and Nebraska slash away at each other's throats, then Oklahoma and Iowa State are figured to come in with a bid for the title. Missouri has failed to show much balanced strength in early meets, while the Kansas Aggies, although recording steady improvement, have yet to step into the titular class.

A group of fleet sprinters, headed by Meier of Iowa State, will provide the excitement in the sprints. The Ames speedster, who bettered a world record in the indoor meet at Columbia and finished second in the conference outdoor dashes last year, was nursing an injury during early meets, but is reported to be rounding into shape.

Fast Time Predicted.

The century is expected to go in 9 8-10 seconds and the furlong in 21 4-10 seconds. Leading sprinters include Meier and Wells, Iowa State Smutney and Steffen, Nebraska; Sickel and Klaner, Kansas; Elwell, Kansas Aggies; Welsh and Jackson, Missouri; Atkinson, Oklahoma. Sickel has been credited with 9 8-10 seconds, while Klaner has done 21 4-10 seconds this season.

Keith Hursley, outdoor and indoor champion, heads a bunch of Missouri quarter-milers expected to score heavily in the 440-yard dash.

Diegel Downs Old Abe to Win World's Crown In "Pro" Golf Circles

MOOR PARK, England, May 17—(INS)—Leo Diegel, smiling but determined American professional, today contributed his bit toward America's conquest of Britain's links by defeating Abe Mitchell, one up, in their 36-hole match here. While the match is a special meeting, played for a side bet, it is generally regarded as the "unofficial" professional golf championship of the world.

Both Erratic Going Out.

Both the American and the Britisher were somewhat erratic on the outgoing nine, each taking 40 for the half-round. Diegel lost the first hole with a five to Mitchell's four, but took the third with a beautiful three. The second had been halved in fours.

The American went one up on the fifth with a four to Abe's five, but got into trouble on the sixth, taking a six to his opponent's par four. The seventh was halved, but Diegel regained his advantage at the eighth. The ninth was halved in fives, and the first nine ended with the American one up.

Mitchell Squares Match.

Mitchell squared the match at the tenth with a brilliant three to Diegel's four, and the eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth were halved in fours, threes and fives respectively. Both were playing a better brand of golf and the Englishman was fighting like a wildcat to prevent Diegel form again piling up an advantage.

Mitchell went down again at the fourteenth, when he took a five, but a five for Diegel at the fifteenth to Abe's four again squared it. The American took the sixteenth with another par four to Mitchell's five, and a birdie three on the home green, after halving the seventeenth in fours, put him two up at the end of the morning round. The cards for the first holes:

Cards for First Round.

Diegel	5	4	3	5	4	6	4	4	5	—40
Mitchell	4	4	4	5	5	4	4	5	5	—40

Diegel	4	4	3	5	4	5	4	4	3	—36—76
Mitchell	3	4	3	5	5	4	5	4	4	—37—77

Diegel started the afternoon round strongly. He ran his advantage to three on the opening hole, when he took a four to Mitchell's five. After halving the twentieth and twenty-first, the American pro went four-up by getting a three to his opponent's four on the tricky twenty-second.

Diegel Turns Three Up.

Mitchell sliced this advantage to three on the twenty-fourth and became only two down when he got home in four to Diegel's five on the twenty-sixth. The American rallied to take the twenty-seventh with a four against a five and turned homeward, three up.

Diegel, to all intents and purposes, clinched the match by win-

Bishop Equal of Al Simmons

Numerous Free Passes Make Weak Hitter Fine Asset to World Champs

BY FRANK G. MENKE.

If someone pranced up and advised that Max Bishop, who smote for a mere .232 in behalf of the 1929 Athletics, was of offensive value equal to Al Simmons, who belted for the gaudy total of .365, chances are you would summon a doctor and point ominously to the bloke's thatch.

Bishop Gets to First.

Yet you would be doing the fellow an injustice. For in ratio to games played and times at bat:

Bishop reached first oftener than Simmons.

Bishop averaged far higher than Simmons in runs scores.

Best In Either League.

Bishop is the best judge of balls and strikes in either league and, year after year, collects an amazing total of passes. He never takes a swing at a ball unless he is certain it is perfect. He has no yen for base hits. His great idea is to get to first base.

"I find I get there oftener on passes than on hits, so I choose passes as the medium of getting to the initial bag," explains Bishop.

Simmons is radically different

Al Likes His Hits.

No one loves his hits better than Simmons. The giant never is happy until he has clubbed a horsehide. If it is within reach, all well and good. If it isn't within reach—well he reaches for it.

Unlike Bishop, he wants to get to first via a safely, not a pass.

After which explanation, the figures are presented to show that although a hit may be a hit, a base on balls is something of equal beauty to a manager who dreams pennant dreams:

Proving It With Figures.

	G	AB	H	BB	OB	R	Ave.
Simmons	143	561	212	31	243	102	.365
Bishop	129	475	110	128	238	114	.232

It will be noted that Bishop played in 14 less games than Simmons. If they had played in an equal number of games and had maintained their respective averages, then Bishop would have reached first oftener than Simmons, although he hit 132 points less than Simmons, and he would have scored more runs.

One of Those Other Guys.

Inasmuch as runs are the something—and the only something—that determine which team won a ball game and which lost it, Bishop would seem to be a more valuable player for the Athletics than Simmons, even though Al is supposed to be a super-offensive athlete, whereas Bishop is general regarded as just "one of those other guys in the batting order."

high hurdles. The Tiger timber-topper was clocked in 15 4-10 seconds, bettering his old mark of 15 7-10 seconds, first made in 1927 and equalled in 1928. Lauritson also captured the 220-yard low hurdles and the broad jump.

Killenger of Wesleyan provided the surprise of the meet when he defeated Kemp of Hastings in the middle distances. The Methodist runner uncorked a brilliant sprint in the last 60 yards to trim the Hastings champion in the 440-yard dash. His time of 60 6-10 seconds was excellent, considering the conditio of the track.

Killinger Repeats.

After winning the quarter, Killenger returned to the track later in the afternoon and splashed his way ahead of the field in the 880-yard run. Kemp, the defending champion, and favorite in the event, finished fourth.

Along with the middle-distance features, the sprints brought together a pair of speedsters in Sid Werner of Doane and Mercer of Hastings. Werer won by a slight margin over the 100-yard and 220-yard routes. Werner finished one point ahead of his team-mate, Lauritson, in the battle for individual honors, winning the two sprints and discus throw, and picking up a point in the shot.

Hastings rolled up its margin on the track, scoring heavily in the distance runs. The Broncho runners scored ten points in the mile run, the first event on the program, and added seven more points in the two-mile event.

KENTUCKY DERBY TO GALLANT FOX

short price all the way and finally paid $4.38 to win, $3.76 to place and $3.42 to show. It was Tannery, the Hope of Kentucky, which did the fooling. He got a strong secondary play and rewarded his cleintele only in the early running, where he was a brisk, if not convincing contender. After that, he declined to be identified with the further proceedings and finished eighth.

The complete order of the finish was: 1—Gallant Fox 2—Gallant Knight 3—Ned O; 4—Gone Away; 5—Crack Brigade; —Longus; 7—Uncle Luther; 8—Tannery; 9—Broadway Limited; 10—Alcibiades; 11—Kilkerry; 12—Breezing Thru; 13—Buckeye Poet; 14—High Foot; 15—Dick O'Hara.

Gallant night paid $14.60 for second and $8.78 for third. The "show" price on Ned O, was $10.14.

Bradley Never In It.

It was an unusual Derby in many respects, including the fact that neither the customary crowd nor the money was there. But, most singular of all, was the finish of the Bradley entry, Breezing Thru and Buckeye Poet. Bradley horses twice have run one-two in the Derby; they seldom are out of the money. This pair wasn't even close enough to meet the winner when he came back to the scales.

But if other features were extraordinary, there was nothing unique about Sande's ride. It was so good that it was commonplace; just a typical Sande effort, which meant that the legs and heart were Gallant Fox's, but the hands and head were Sande's.

World's Best Rider.

The latter had by long odds the best horse in the field, but the Fox was even luckier than that. He had the best rider in the world. Sande's effort today was consummate, no less.

They started from the stalls here for the first time in Derby history and Sande made no move on the Fox as they came thundering down the long stretch to the first turn. He knew he had the winner. Why win before the finish?

Buckeye Poet, Tannery and Alcibiades were doing all the racing at this unimportant juncture. Sande wasn't running. He was just riding. It looked like the Preakness all over again; in fact, the two victories that made the Fox heir apparent to the mantle of Sir Barton had much in common.

The Fox Going Easy.

As they swung on the first turn, Sande had to carry the Fox a bit wide to escape interference and so was nothing better than a fighting fifth when they headed up the back stretch, flanked by long lines of stables, with their trainers and swipes and exercise boys clinging to the eaves. Alcibiades still was on top at the half-mile post. The Fox still was nowhree. Buckeye was a dying second here, with Tannery hanging on.

The next quarter of a mile usually decides the Derby, but this time it didn't. It was the next few jumps that did it. Sande was making his move on the Fox. In fact, he made it so suddenly that the preceding skirmishes were made to look absurd. He and the Fox simply flashed on by. Zip, like that.

All Over In Few Jumps.

One moment they were in fourth place. The next found them leading by a half-length. In a few jumps, this margin was one length; in a few more, it was two. The race, so far as a contest was concerned, was over.

They still had a quarter mile of stretch to cover, but this was no more than formal closing of some routine matter by a business firm of good horse and great rider. Knowing his lead was safe, Sande didn't let the Fox down. He held him up in his lap, so that the Fox could win in comfort and at his convenience.

Gallant Knight, not so inaptly named either, stayed with the dubious situation to the end, proving himself to be at least a good loser. His position, like the Fox's went unchallenged, Ned O being all of two lengths back. The latter had a full length on Gone Away.

Did they see a good horse race? No, Wilmerding. But they saw a very good race horse.

DIEGEL VICTOR OVER MITCHELL

ning the twenty-eighth with a three. Four down and eight to play, Mitchell began his march on the twenty-ninth, which he won with a three, Diegel requiring a four. The thirtieth was the same. They halved the thirty-first. Mitchell then proceeded to become only one down by capturing the thirty-second with a four against a six, and on the thirty-fifth squared the match, shooting a three, whereas Diegel took a four.

Diegel Pulls a Dazzler.

In the crisis, Diegel averted an extra-hole match by executing his most spectacular shot of the day. Mitchell's shot from the tee was on the green and only nine feet from the pin, while Diegel's ball landed on the far edge of the green. The American holed his putt, a dazzling 30-footer, and Mitchell then missed, taking a three and losing the match. The cards for the second 18 holes:

Peru's New Coach.

Glenn Gilkerson, former Peru college athlete and athletic coach at Missouri Valley, Ia., high school, has been elected athletic coach at Peru Teachers college to succeed Lon Graf.

At Missouri Valley his basketball teams won four sectional, five county and two district meets in five years. He started his athletic career in Clay Center high school, under the tutorship of Ward Haylett, former Doane college mentor and at present track coach at the Kansas Aggies.

Coach Gilkerson plans to take up graduate work at Columbia university this summer.

Brass Tacks

beginning to suspect that Mr. Beltzer was a victim of the ruse that is known in baseball parlance as the "hidden ball trick."

Mr. Beltzer, it seems, was in ill health and temporarily had taken himself from the scene to consult some of the learned men of the medical profession.

During his brief absence the stratagem to undo him was hatched, and when the prexy returned to his customary haunts, he found, quite to his surprise and undoubtedly his chagrin, that the league had upset his applecart; that a new executive was on the throne.

THE information comes to me that the league, in deposing the late president, apparently is quite content to let Mr. Beltzer's money ride with the proposition, by which I mean that no definite plan has been unfolded whereby Mr. Beltzer's block of paid up stock in the State league corporation is to be retired.

The legality of the proceeding, I suspect, might be seriously questioned, due to the fact that the constitution and by-laws of the organization specifically prohibit a sudden swapping of presidents without the consent and approval of the executive whom the league has deposed.

As told to myself by none other than Mr. Beltzer, his physical trouble was an acute tonsil infection which was deftly relieved by a surgeon's knife. I suspect, however, there is at least a vague possibility that his ills may not have been completely diagnosed—that the ailment from which he suffers most could rightfully be attributed to the sting of ingratitude.

A DETERMINED effort apparently is on foot to break down the efforts of the National High School Federation to enforce its ban on the staging of so-called national basketball tournaments and track meets.

Two newspapers in the middle-west section, the Chicago Tribune and the Des Moines Register, are making common cause with the opponents of the high school authorities by conducting a poll of the high school principals and coaches of the mid-west, the purpose or desire being to demonstrate that the federation does not represent the true sentiments of the schoolmen of the nation.

The chief critic of the Federation is Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg of the University of Chicago, who protests that rival universities, jealous of Chicago U.'s success in sponsoring its basketball tournaments and track meets, inspired the federation's action.

The answer by the federation to that charge is to quote the record, which shows that the tournament nuisance has come to be so general that numerous preparatory school basketball teams have been playing 40 to 60 games, the season being almost interminably prolonged because of the demand that the winning quintets be permitted to enter tournaments here, there and everywhere.

IT is admitted that Mr. Stagg is one of the great characters in intercollegiate sport, but that concession ends his side of the argument, at least so far as I am concerned. It is a matter of record that the University of Chicago athletic department for years has been guilty of perpetrating an imposition by representing that its tournaments have been "national" events. That claim by Chicago U. has been made in the face of the fact that a "national" tournament never has been authorized or sanctioned by the National Federation.

Coach Stagg has been more than free with his criticism of the Federation, whereas I suspect that his opinions in the premises have been warped by a selfish desire. The plain facts of the case are that Chicago U. has been putting something over on the responsible high schoolmen of the nation and now is wincing when the Federation proceeds to manage and control its own affairs.

BIG SIX MEET ON THIS WEEK'S BOOK

The Tiger squad also lists Dills and Ulfers, fast at this distance. Other leaders include Beardalee, Kansas; Euhlrodt and Ostergaard, Nebraska; Abbott, Oklahoma. The event probably will produce time under seconds. Hursley has been clocked in 49 1-10 seconds this season. Fuhlrodt has done even time.

Duel Ahead In Half-Mile.

The 880-yard run will revive the argument between Bob Ostergaard, flashy Nebraska sophomore, and Rockwell Swartz, Missouri veteran. Swartz won the indoor title, but the Nebraskan reversed the result in dual meet competition and is expected to reach his peak at the time of the Big Six compet. Ostergaard did 1 minute 57 4-10 seconds in edging out a victory over Swartz in the Missouri-Nebraska dual. The Big Six race is expected to cut under 1:57.

Other leading half-milers include Moore, Oklahoma; Miller, Kansas Aggies; Hinshaw and Young, Kansas; Walters, Iowa State.

Putman Great Miler.

Ray Putman, Iowa State miler, who has been clocked in 4 minutes 19 9-10 seconds in competition this season, will be back to defend his mile title. Other leading contenders include Miller, Kansas Aggies; Richard Swartz of Missouri; Garvet, Nebraska; Dawson, Oklahoma; Mitchell, Missouri.

Fortune, Kansas distance man and two-mile champion of last year, is expected to pick up plenty of competition in Dawson of Oklahoma. Dawson lowered the Sooner record to 9 minutes 41 9-10 seconds this spring. The Big Six two-mile is expected to get well under 9:40. Other leaders include Etherton and Griffin, Nebraska.

Bunch of Fleet Hurdlers.

Nebraska with Lamson, Thompson, White and Petz should score well in the hurdles. Lamson is the outdoor champion defending his title, while Thompson is indoor titleholder over the high stickc. Hager of Ames won the indoor low hurdle title, while Carmen is the outdoor champion at the furlong distance. Lamson turned in 14 9-10 seconds for the highs at the Kansas relays.

Other leading hurdlers in Big Six competition include M. W. Soults and M. R. Soults of Iowa State; Klaner, Kansas; Hickey, Kansas Aggies. Dopesters predict the highs will go in 14 8-10 seconds and the lows in 24 2-10 seconds.

Kansas Jayhawkers will pick up plenty of points in the shot and discus events if early readings can be relied upon. Each event is expected to provide a new record, with the shot going between 49 and 50 feet and the discus around the 150-foot mark.

Hugh Rhea, Nebraska sophomore, has the best shot record with a toss of 50 feet 2 inches in the Oklahoma dual meet. Jim Bausch, Kansas sophomore, however, has been the more consistent with tosses always 48 or 49 feet. Other leaders include Rider, Oklahoma; Hokuf, Nebraska; F. Bausch, Ward, Thornhill, Kansas.

Thornhill Likely Victor.

Thornhill, Kansas weight man, has gotten the discus out 153 feet 7¼ inches in competition this spring, while Ward, his team-mate, has bettered 140 feet. Other leaders include J. Bausch, F. Bausch, Kansas; Hitch, Iowa State; Pilgrove, Missouri; Churchill, Oklahoma; Eisenhart, Hokuf, Rhea, Nebraska.

The javelin is expected to need 190 to 195 feet for a winning mark, with Faytinger of Nebraska, defending champion, among those entered. Other leaders include Hokuf, Bell, Nebraska; J. Bausch, Walton, Kansas; Livingston, Williams, Kansas Aggies.

Tomsen Back as Defender.

Cobe Tomsen will be back defending his broad jump title, with Craig, Hege and Gray as other Nebraska jumpers who have done better than 23 feet in meet competition this year. Other leaders include Lanlor, Missouri; Mell, Oklahoma; Hodges, Kansas.

Ossian of Nebraska and M. A. Soults of Iowa State, who were among the three leaders in the pole vault at the outdoor meet last year, are back again. Ossian won the indoor title last March. Other leading vaulters include Choate and Redwine, Oklahoma; Trueblood and J. Bausch, Kansas.

Shelby of Oklahoma, who has done 6 feet 4 inches this spring is expected to hang up a new high jump record. Ehrlich of Kansas Aggies, who has done 6 feet 3⅜ inches in competition, is expected to provide the main competition.

Lincoln's Debut In Night Baseball

Monday Evening, May 19, Landis Field

Baseball is no longer a strictly morning or afternoon Sport. To make this "king of sports" available to the greatest number of fans who are occupied in their daily activities, local Baseball Officials realized the need of playing the game after regular business hours.

Night Baseball is the result of careful consideration on the part of Lincoln Officials as to the best way to attract the greatest number of fans by properly equipping Landis Field for the game. The GIANT PROJECTORS make it possible to play Baseball at night with tremendous success, because the game can be carried on with the same skill as in day-time and when a greater number of fans can attend.

Exactly 150,000 watts of light are flooded on the playing field. Thirty-one Reflectors have been mounted on sixty foot poles, each Reflector holding three 1,500 watt lamps or 4,500 watts to each unit.

The Giant delivers the greatest percentage of the light generated. The small number of lighting units needed permits an even distribution of light and the elimination of shadows. The non-glare light is a result of the reflecting pigment which the base is chemically treated milk.

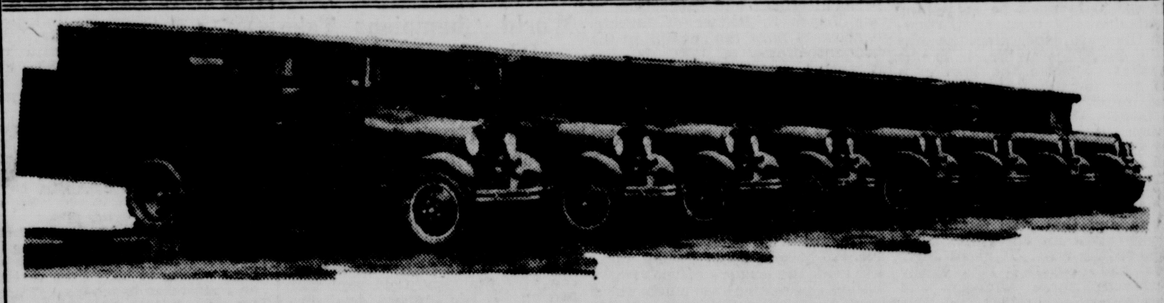

The Giant Mogul is 48½ inches across the face horizontal and 32 inches vertical. The beam spread of 113 degrees is thrown 320 feet forward and 480 feet on the sides of the projector.

The equipment necessary to properly light Landis Field is nearly four times that at use at the Creighton and Havelock Football Fields. Persons who witnessed preliminary tests, were unanimous in the opinion that the game could be played without fear of injury to the players and to the added delight and convenience of the spectators.

Ketchel's Whirlwind Offensive Conquers Harry Greb

Pride of Smoky City Knocked Down and Out In 10 Terrific Rounds

By ROBERT EDGREN.

(Fight series No. 8; continuing the Ketchel-Greb fight.)

Walking to his corner at the end of the ninth round against Harry Greb, Ketchel scowls down at the floor and pays no attention to the roaring crowd.

It reminds me of that night in Philadelphia when Sam Langford nearly knocked Ketchel's head off, and at the end of the fourth round Stanley came half reeling back to his corner, grinding his teeth and with the glare of desperation in his eyes.

A minute later he leaped from his corner fresh as ever and started a furious attack that in two rounds battered the huge black fighter to tottering defeat.

Only this time Ketchel isn't desperate, nor hurt, nor wobbly on his pins. He is simply baffled and extremely annoyed, and the grimness and gritting of teeth is rage that the bell has for the moment delayed retaliation.

Ketchel Tears In.

The tenth round, Ketchel jumps up and runs to meet Greb. In an instant he is swarming over stout Harry. His fists fly so fast that there is no possibility of avoiding them. Greb is beaten back on his heels, where he totters precariously for a moment because of his great disinclination to give even an inch of ground.

He won't go back, but he is knocked back. Greb's arms are flying like windmill vanes, and like windmill vanes they fan the air.

Ketchel is almost tearing him apart with terrific body hooks. The fight has turned. It is all Ketchel. Greb can't even clinch, so fast is he driven backward in a hurricane of blows. He can't land a single blow, because Ketchel is hitting so much harder and faster.

Greb Down for Count.

Harry crosses his forearms over his jaw, bends far over to pull his battered body back and plunges forward to hunt cover at range too close for hitting. And Ketchel, slipping deftly out of his way, swings a wet and soggy right glove clear from his heels, and lands it with a mighty thump on the only exposed target—the side of Harry's neck just behind his left ear.

Down goes Greb, headlong. With his forehead glued to the floor and his legs kicking in a violent but entirely aimless effort to jump up—when his punch-added brain doesn't know which way is up—Harry flops and flops. The good men I've seen do that! Peter Maher, and Bob Fitzsimmons and Jack Munroe. And Johnson flopped too for nine seconds when Ketchel dropped him. But they were heavyweights. Middleweight Greb is through. He's still kicking helpless on the floor at the count of "ten."

Lavigne and Batting Nelson.

THE BULL RING, MEXICO CIT, May 16—The battle between the two toughest lightweight champions in all the history of the ring, Kid Lavigne, known affectionately to ring followers of earlier days as "The Saginaw Kid," and Battling Nelson, the "Durable Dane," should be a classic. It was Kid Lavigne who whipped Joe Walcott twice and knocked out the English "lightweight" champion Dick Burge, after letting Burke come in at approximately 150 pounds ringside, the Kid being a battling mite of no more than 130.

Bat Nelson only a few years ago was smashing down all the good lightweights with ease. Not even Mexican Herrera's punches could daze him, and he knocked out Young Corbett after Corbett had broken two of Bat's ribs.

Twice Kayoed Gans.

He was invulnerable to blows in those days—even the hardest blows of Joe Gans, whom he knocked out for the title and knocked out again a month later to show the first was no fluke.

Nelson's boast was: "I'm not human; I never tire and punches don't hurt me and I can't be knocked out." He believed it absolutely.

The Nelson-Lavigne fight, both in their prime especially for this occasion, is staged below the Mexican line because it is useless to match such men of iron for a mere 10 or 15 rounds—the limit under our modern state laws. In Mexico they can fight 'til something drops and stays down.

New Idea In Referees.

They're in the ring. There is heavy betting among the old-timers, for with these dauntless fighting men back in their fighting youth both have their backers who can see only one winner.

The fight is to be refereed, a local requirement for this affair, by a Mexican general. He has entered the ring to give instructions. He calls the fighters up and speaks volubly in Spanish. With a final gesture and an outward wave of the hands he crawls back through the ropes and returns to a ringside box.

Nelson and Lavigne, puzzled, stand there a moment in midring, until Mexican Joe Rivers hops up to the edge of the platform and interprets the instructions.

"The general says you know the American rules, so you fight. If it a good fight it will be all right with him."

The Starting Bell.

Lavigne and Nelson grin and shake hands, and go to their corners. The general signals and the timekeeper pulls the bell.

The American part of the big crowd that packs the big bull ring cheerrs for the general. This looks like something novel in the fighting line.

Bat and the Kid come up cautiouly and fiddle about. Used to having plenty of time in long fights, they're in no great hurry. But you can't keep real fighters apart. In a moment Lavigne has jumped in and started tearing at Nelson, left and right. Nelson leans in against the punches, blocking with his elbows and presenting no target but the top of a busy head. He rubs his hair into Lavigne's eyes as they come to a clinch, and the Kid pushes him away.

Old Nelson Trick.

Nelson is up to his old tricks. His stiff shock of hair and the eighth of an inch of whiskers on his chin have been soaked in salt brine and dried to make them hard and as prickly as a porcupine's quills. The "whiskers punch" will show in this fight.

Beside the grim, unshaven Dane, Lavigne is a pink faced, smiling cherub. A pretty boy—but sometimes these pretty boys can fight. In build he makes the skinny, angular Nelson look gaunt. Nelson is five feet seven and a half. The Kid is four inches shorter, but built like an acrobat, chunky arms and legs, small waist, wide back and shoulders and thick neck.

Nelson A Tireless Mauler.

Nelson is trying to shove Lavigne around and get him off balance. He digs into the Kid's body with a mean little left hook. That's what he calls his "half scissors liver punch." Nelson hasn't a knockout down, knockout punch, but he is a tireless mauler. He has worn them out by the dozen. Clever men and sluggers look alike to him, and he fights them all the same way.

Nelson digs his chin into the Kid's neck and rubs with his bristly whiskers. The Kid's pink skin takes on a new flush in that one spot. Meanwhile both are hitting furiously leaning together refusing to step around. They are still at it when the bell rings.

But in the next round the action starts. They rush to the middle of the ring and begin banging away with both hands. It is slam, bang, slam again. Not a punch blocked or ducked.

Pair of Tough Cookies.

Lavingne wants to show he is as tough as Nelson, and he certainly looks it. He grins at Bat's best blows, hits when Bat hits and beats him to the punch. He's faster than Nelson and far more clever as a boxer. He likes the going. He laughs when he's fighting hardest. He fights in little quick rushes like a bull charging. The Mexicans like that.

Nelson's leaning in and continually punching and slapping and pushing and butting and mauling and wearing down tactics are less spectacular.

No use describing this fight round by round. There's not enough variety. It's steady punching all the way, with just a little clinching but both too anxious to use their fists to waste time wrestling around. No advantage for a long, long time.

Blows Topple Nelson.

In the eighth round, Lavigne slams a wicked left hook into Bat's lower ribs, and Bat's mouth opens in a gasp. Lavigne's other hand has started in a round-arm swing. Nelson sees it coming and sticks out his paw to take it. The punch fairly lifts Bat from his feet and hurls him back fully two yards. He paws at the ground for a toehold as he lands, still leaning forward, and rushes right in again. Bat wore out Gans that way. Joe's best punches couldn't keep him off and Joe tired first.

Not Lavigne, though. Laughing, he meets Bat wth another crack on the jaw.

Nelson Rides To Canvas.

This time Nelson turns half over in the air and lands on his shoulderblades. He scrambles to his feet without waiting for a count. No count, anyway. The General, in his box, merely looks interested.

The fight goes on, round after round. Lavigne is tearing in constantly with those sudden little charges, grinning, battering at Bat's body and now and then clipping him right on the whiskers with a hard hooked punch.

Lavigne Takes Punishment.

Lavigne's white skin around the body is almost beef red. The side of his face and neck look as if they had been sandpapered by that whiskers punch. His eyes are blinking from frequent wire-hair applications. He is more or less cut and bruised everywhere from the belt to the top of his head.

There's a trickle of blood that comes from up under his yellow hair and there's a cut along one eyebrow. The Kid has stopped smiling and looks grim. But he is fighting harder, round after round, and shows no sign of tiring.

Down But Far From Out.

It is up in the thirties somewhere—no rounds are announced and I've lost count—when Levigne begins knocking Nelson down. He cracks Bat squarely on the chin, once, and then again, and again. Bat staggers. Again Lavigne socks him, leaping in whit the blow, furiousy eager. Nelson reels a little, but leans in and pushes close to hammer at the Kid's body.

Nelson's eyes are nearly closed. His ears stick out like doorknobs. His mouth has no more shape than a slash in a Hallowe'en pumpkin. The left side of his face, where the Kid's right has been landing, is puffed like a miner's soda biscuit. There's a lump along the edge of his ribs where the Kid's hooks have crashed—those old ribs Corbett broke, and broken again, perhaps. If so, Nelson seems not to know it.

Nelson Down Again.

Nelson is still hitting, and his blows are still driven with that grim determination to achieve the ultimate result. Less speed, perhaps, and less accuracy, but the same intent behind them.

As Nelson spreads his legs and pushes in, leaning for forward, with no defense but the presentation of the top of his head as a target, Lavigne pushes him suddenly aside and bringing his own right arm up, like a woodchopper swinging an axe, swings it down across Nelson's shoulderblades. Wrist and forearm go with the glove. Nelson is flattened on the floor. His nose is driven into the resin.

Borrowed From John L.

That's what John L. Sullivan used to call his "back lung punch." Bat wriggles, but for an instant he shows no sign of getting up. The Kid looks around for the General, wondering why he doesn't count, but the General's box seat is empty. He must have gone out for a drink, or a shave, or to answer a telephone call.

And Nelson is up. He wasn't down 10 seconds anyway. With lips drawn tight, snarling through gritted teeth, Nelson charges at Lavigne and hammers him back. Gathering himself, Lavigne whips a furious right to Nelson's jaw and knocks him down again.

Down and Up Again.

Nelson is up, to drop instantly from another blow. He comes right up and stands for a moment, the arms that never tire dangling at his sides. Lavigne deliberately clouts him, but he doesn't fall. Again Lavigne clouts. Nelson wavers, but stands up.

There's no Eddie Smith in there to stop this fight to save Bat from being killed. Lavigne swings desperately. And Nelson's dangling arms come slowly up, to strike back! Human! He's no more human than the iron dog on Jack Dempsey's lawn.

SOMETHING like a month ago mention was made in this department of The Star of the sale by August Ribbe, Hartington, Neb., to J. B. Reynolds, Kansas City, Mo., of the young pacing stallion Peter Dale, 2:09¼, by Peter McKlyo, 2:06, dam Archdale Maid, 2:14¼, by Archdale, 37304.

A letter from Rupert L. Parker, Smithville, Mo., trainer for Mr. Reynolds, advises that he will ship to Cleveland, Ohio, about May 20, and that all his horses are training satisfactorily Mr. Parker adds:

"I like the Nebraska-bred pacer Peter Dale very much and believe he will develop into a useful race horse."

E. E. Cowdery, Fredonia, Kan., well and favorably known to horsemen living in Nebraska, under date of May 8, wrote:

"I was at Smithville early this week and had my first look at Peter Dale, 2:09¼, the pacer recently purchased in Nebraska by Rupert Parker for his employer, J. B. Reynolds of Kansas City, and I want to say that I like him very much. He is a better horse than I expected to find and I was told that he was training to order. Of course this horse is about to take to the deep water and may not make good this season. With a summer's racing in fast company and with another winter's training by Parker, Peter Dale will undoubtedly provc a good buy for Mr. Reynolds.

"I also found Leonworthy, 3, 2:03, by Edgeworthy, 2:08¼, in the Parker stable. Just how good that horse now is I did not learn, but I know this much, if he fails again this year, it will be goodbye to that trotter, the fastest three-year-old trotter yet bred in Kansas and so far as I am able to learn, the fastest yet bred in the Missouri valley country."

WESTERN harness racing starts at Bismarck, North Dakota, June 18, and among the horses named in the early closing classes were several bred in this state, namely: McCool, 2:11¼, by Judge Maxey; Maxey Lad, 2:12¼, by Judge Maxey; Kewanee Boy, 2:14, by Judge Maxey; Shadeland Silk, p., 2:12¼, by Bingen Silk; Silk The Great, p., 2:15½, by Bingen Silk, and in addition the trotter Harvest Heart, 2:09¼, by The Harvester, 2:01, brought to Nebraska by Miss Helen Hurley of Ponca and trained last year at Hartington by W. J. Conly.

McCool, one of the best gaited, as well as one of the gamest, trotters sired by Judge Maxey, was raced quite a little last year, following a rest of two years, due to a bad foot that has always troubled him. We shall watch his 1930 campaign with interest.

Teddy Jr., p., is in active training at Menlo Park, Calif., where his owner, D. L. McDonald, wintered. That hardy horse is reported in splendid condition and very likely to prove troublesome in his class at California meetings. And what a tough race-horse Teddy Jr. has proven to be. Bred in far western Nebraska and raced over poor tracks in that section of the state for several years, McDonald shipped him to Omaha and brought about a panic, as he won two races the same week with the angular appearing gelding.

Each subsequent season, Teddy, Jr., has raced the best horses in his class, winning more races than he lost and all that in spite of the bad drives McDonald gave him. He is the wonder horse of Nebraska.

THAT fast trotting mare Betty Ann Maxey, 2:03¼, by Judge Maxey, 2:24½, now owned by G. A. Davis, Tulsa, Okla., was shipped April 26 to Dr. H. M. Parshall, Urbana, Ohio, and will be raced by that successful trainer and race driver, who last year won the richest pacing stake in America with the cast-off pacer Counterpart, 2:02¼.

What a fine thing it would be if Dr. Parshall is able to drive Betty Ann Maxey to a win race record of two minutes this season and in that way give Nebraska its first member of that very select class—the two-minute trotter! The writer is hoping to learn of just that very thing and believes it is possible.

THE Western Breeders Futurity Stake No. 37, to be raced at Des Moines, Iowa, the last week of August, has several paid up starters bred and owned in Nebraska. This valuable stake was organized at St. Joseph, Mo., during the December, 1910, sale at Kink Hill stock farm, with Judge Clark A. Smith, Cawker City, Kan., president, and Arthur Caton Thomas, Omaha, Neb., secretary. Judge Smith passed on several years ago, but Mr. Thomas still is secretary of the organization.

Many thousands of dollars have been distributed since 1910 to breeders and owners, a good share of it coming to Nebraska. For the race of 1930 we find that Hon. Willis G. Sears, congressman from the Omaha district, has paid up on El Captain, by Etawah, 2:03, dam Fair Virginia, 2:07½, by Zombro, 2:11, and that Dr. Grant Williams, also of Omaha, will start The Main Maxey, by Judge Maxey, 2:24½, dam Fourth Sheet, by Mainsheet, 2:05, a filly of his own breeding, and that C. D. Bell, Omaha, names Marletta, by Etawah, dam Marley's Todd, 2:19¾, by Sorrento Todd, 2:11, bred by himself.

Elmer Kay, McCook, Neb., names Zylpha Tolus, by Bonnie Tolus, dam Bonnie Brook, by Trampfast. From this list of four Nebraska owned colts should come one or more winners of a division of that valuable stake.

H. H. SMITH, McCook, Neb., a successful breeder of fast trotters and pacers, has shipped three choice mares to Valley Center, Kan., where they will be bred to that fast trotting stallion Favonian, 2:01¾, by J. Malcolm Forbes, 2:06¾. Two of the mares shipped to Valley Center formerly were owned at Midway stock farm, Kearney, Neb., and the third is that well known dam of speed, First Gano, 3, 2:24¼, by George Gano, p., 2:02.

First Gano was bred by Mr. Smith and is the dam of Maxey Gano, 2:09½, and Gano Maxey, 2, 2:21¼, the latter raced so successfully over Nebraska tracks last season, starting in six races and winning all of them. Another foal of First Gano, by Hollyrood Peter, is highly considered by Mr. Smith.

DUDIE ARCHDALE, 2:03¼, greatest money-winning trotter bred in this state and the greatest dam of 2:10 trotters among Nebraska-bred mares, would add another 2:10 trotter in David, by Peter Duffy, 2:10¼, now racing in Germany, were that successful horse racing in America.

Only recently, David won an international event in Berlin, Germany, defeating, among others, that fast stallion Sam Williams, 2:01¾, exported to Europe early in the winter of 1929 and 1930 by George Tippling of Cleveland, O., and started a few times in France by Joe Halderman of Malvern, Ia., trainer for Mr. Tipling.

David has been a consistent winner on German tracks for three seasons past and, judging from the miles trotted, would now carry a trotting record much faster than 2:10 had he been raced over American tracks.

TROTTING races in Europe are hardly ever of mile heats and tracks are not as fast or safe as those used in America. Joe Halderman reports that in France, where he started Sam Williams several times, the tracks raced over would not be considered safe in Iowa for early spring training. For that reason they handicap a trotter trained in America and prevent fast miles.

Again, starters are handicapped by distance and not classified by records of winnings, as in this country. When David, by Peter Duffy, defeated Sam Williams in Germany April 22, he was given an advantage of 60 meters over the American stallion, trotting the 2,000 meters at the rate of 2:11¼ for a mile and was beaten by only a head at the finish. Sam Williams has been sold by George Tippling for $10,000 and remains in France, where in due time that son of Peter Scott, 2:05, will be placed in the stud.

WRITING of George Tippling and Sam Williams, brings to mind that other good trotter owned by the Cleveland, O., horseman and raced for him by Joe Halderman. We refer to Signal Spring, 2:08¼, raced at Lincoln several times, first in 1925, when he won the 2:25 trot, with the third heat trotted in 2:15¼. That season Signal Spring was a three-year-old and won four out of five starts, finishing second in the fifth race after winning first heat.

In 1927 Joe Halderman gave Signal Spring a win race record of 2:08¼ at Clarinda, Iowa, and that winter he was carefully prepared for racing through the Grand Circuit, after passing from his breeder, Charles P. Ownes, Bradford, Ill., to Mr. Tippling for $10,000.

Some infirmity affected the horse that spring and he failed to get in condition. Last year the same condition prevailed and, late in the fall, Signal Spring was sold for $200 to Dr. E. P. Clement, Elyria, O., and placed with Art Blackwell, a former western trainer now in charge of the Clement stable.

Art sent the gelding to the veterinary department of Ohio State university, where he underwent a series of treatments at the hands of experts. Right now the trotter seems perfectly sound and is in active training. This return of Signal Spring is one of the genuine surprises of 1930 and, should he stand racing, will add much to Art Blackwell's reputation as a competent horseman.

ART BLACKWELL should be well known to all readers of The Star interested in the trotting-bred horse, as he has raced in the west many years. He is an educated man, much such a personage as Arlie Frost, as he has long been handicapped by an infirmity, and that ailment was the one thing which attracted Dr. Clement to Art.

The doctor, in addition to owning what is probably the strongest racing stable in Ohio, is a very successful surgeon and operates his own hospital at Elyria. We believe it was in 1920 that Art Blackwell was so seriously injured in a race accident occurring at La Crosse, Wis., that he was confined to a hospital bed for many weeks. Eventually he was taken to Rochester, Minn., where an examination showed a separation of the pelvic bones. A stoutly built abdominal belt of leather was constructed to support the parts.

The writer campaigned with Art Blackwell six weeks during the season of 1922 and assisted him upon several occasions as he adjusted the harness to his body. This is Blackwell's second year with Dr. Clement and we understand his physical condition has improved greatly as a result of treatment suggested by his employer.

FLOYD LUCAS, training for Dr. J. M. Miller, Benton Harbor, Michigan, will race, among others, the pacing gelding Peter Sorrento, 2:12¼, by Peter McKlyo, 2:06, dam Marly's Todd, 2, 2:19½ by Sorrento Todd, 2:11, grandam Bizzy Izzy, 2:13¾, by Escobar, 2:13¾. Peter Sorrento was bred by C. D. Bell, Omaha, Neb., and given a three-year-old record of 2:16¼ at Springfield, Ill., in 1926 by Warren Dennis of David City, Neb. His record of 2:12¼ was gained at Winfield, Kan., in 1928, at which time he was driven by Mr. Dennis. As Lucas likes Peter Sorrento and plans racing the gelding extensively, it is very likely Nebraska will add another 2:10 pacer before the season of 1930 closes.

That section of Missouri immediately surrounding Kansas City is inhabited by a population that is essentially a horse-loving people, as their forbears came from those portions of the southland where the horse has always been held in high esteem. During the month of March an elaborate fox hunt was successfully put over by Kansas City people and in April a day of steeplechase sport was a pronounced success. For May, an amateur horse show is dated for the 31. That show will be conducted by the Junior League of Kansas City and held on the grounds of the country club.

Entries this year will be confined to Jackson, Clay, Platte, Wyandotte and Johnson counties, all adjacent to Kansas City, Mo. There will be 13 classes, three more than at last year's show, with the boys and girls well provided with opportunities of showing their ponies and horses. Only amateurs may take part in this out-of-door exhibition.

National League.

The National league sluggers continue merrily on. Last week there were five teams batting .300 and over and this week the same five are batting .300 and over. The New York Giants added one point to their previous batting mark, making the figure read .333. Brooklyn came up seven points to .330, while St. Louis added four, bringing its mark to .318. Pittsburgh fell off 14 points from .327 to .313 and Philadelphia five from .306 to .301. In team fielding, Cincinnati has made the fewest errors, and tops the list with a mark of .979, Brooklyn being second with .974.

Orsatti of St. Louis heads the individual batters with a .478 percentage, though he has played in only 10 games. Stephenson of Chicago is the nominal leader, compiling a mark of .458 in 18 games. Stevie has made 22 hits out of 48 tries. O'Doul of Philadelphia, who has played in 21 games and made 37 hits, has a batting mark of .451. Hack Wilson of Chicago has hit nine home runs, while Klein of the Phillies has hit eight. Cuyler of Chicago is showing speed on the bases, having swiped eight bags, while his teammate, Wilson, has driven in 28 runs.

Pitcher Benny Frey of Cincinnati added another victory to his string, making it four in a row. National league averages, Wednesday games included, follow:

American League.

The American league now can boast of only one .300 hitting team and that one is Cleveland. The Indians' batting mark is .321 in 23 games played. They made 131 hits, scored 151 runs and hit for the second highest number of total bases, 372. The Washington team tops them by four bases. Washington and Philadelphia are tied for second with .293. In fielding the Athletics stand out with a percentage of .983. The A's have made only 16 errors out of 915 chances offered.

Edgar Rice of Washington takes the honors in individual batting with a mark of .410. He has made 41 hits in 100 times at bat. Burnett of Cleveland is next with .397, making 23 hits out of 58 tries. Jimmy Foxx of Philadelphia is the leading home run hitter with six wallops, while his team-mate, Simmons, has driven in most runs, 28.

Lefty Grove of Philadelphia has won four straight games while striking out 39 batters in 48 innings. Sam Jones of Washington won three and lost none. American league averages, games of last Wednesday included, follow:

"Merkles" of Diamond Game Really Are Smart Fellows

"Boners" of Baseball Come Bouncing Along As Mind Turns Traitor

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

NEW YORK, May 17—(I. N. S.)—There apparently comes a time in the lives of men, even the most subtle of them, when the mind turns traitor and refuses to have anything further to do with the rest of the body. When that time comes, their legs start doing things at random—with the inevitable result.

Even Burleigh Pulled One.

Burleigh Grimes is known all over the baseball wheel as an intelligent ball player who is perfectly capable of doing his own pitching and hitting—and thinking. An analytical type, his opinions on ball field matters are respected, and, indeed, valued. Yet on the occasion of his first appearance in a Boston box score he committed the unpardonable sin. He very abruptly stole third with the bases filled.

As a matter of fact, it might seem that only the wise are capable of outstanding absurdities in the plain view of all that baseball affords. The dullard is a conscious painstaking thinker. He quickly settles into the groove of baseball tactics and is careful never to transgress routine. Maybe he dimly realizes that he is not quite bright and so is constantly vigilant against mental error.

Calling Roll of the Great.

How else can one account for the fact that highly intelligent men like Fred Merkle, Dave Bancroft, Lazzeri, Koenig, and others have been guilty of the immemorial bone?

I have no acquaintance personal or otherwise, with the equipment of John Anderson, the original anatomist of the diamond. All one knows is that he is famed in rhyme and sonnet as the pioneer of a play that calls for a clean steal of second with all of the bases occupied. Nor does one hear of Urban "Red" Faber, the venerable gentleman of Chicago ,as being notable for a lack of intelligence. Yet in the midst of the 1917 world series, of which he was the pitching hero, he stole third quite without warning. In fact, he even neglected to take the base runners on first and third into his confidence.

Merkle Victim of Fate.

By this time, the point about the high degree of Merkle's intelligence has been sufficiently emphasized. So has the fact that his negligence was important only because it was the means of deciding the 1908 pennant race. Likewise the fact that he only did what many other had done in similar circumstances—without, however, being apprehended. Merkle simply was the victim of fate.

Bancroft's lapse and that of Lazzeri and Koenig were far more reprehensive, yet I doubt if many now recall the former and I have talked with baseball men who never even heard of the latter, although it happened only a few weeks ago.

Koenig and Lazzeri.

It happened, as a matter of fact, on the opening day in Philadelphia Haas was on first base and was forced at second, Koenig to Lazzeri. The latter deemed the side to have been retired, and, rolling the ball into the middle of the infield, started for the bench.

Koenig was a little brighter, but not enough so. He retrieved the ball, and to the amazement of all, he started chasing Haas, the man who had been retired only a moment before, toward third. Meantime Simmons, advanced unmolested, from first base. He scored, within the minute on a clean single to the outfield.

Bancroft In Fame's Hall.

As for David J. Bancroft, admittedly one of the split-second thinkers of the profession, he was at the time of his shame McGraw's field captain and, as such, was required to be so smart that he even was expected to know what McGraw was thinking.

The Giants were playing the Cubs this time and Bancroft was on third base, with first and second also occupied. But the man on first got too frisky and was picked off, leaving that base "open."

A moment later, the batter walked, and to the astonishment of everybody, Bancroft calmly started walking toward the plate. Bob O'Farrell, then catching for the Cubs, saw him coming ,and, just as calmly, he waited, ball in hand. When Mr. Bancroft got close enough to tag, Mr. O'Farrell tagged him and the incident was closed.

PROPOSAL of the Nebraska High School Athletic association control board to enforce at county, invitation and conference meets the same rules operating at the state high school championships, will provoke objection in a good many sections of the state.

The organization, according to Secretary Walter I. Black, hopes "to require the use of a uniform entry blank, similar to the one used in the state championships and provided by the association, which will require proper eligibility and medical credentials presented by each school and also place a limit on the number of events in which each boy may participate. This limitation to be the same as it is now used in the state championships."

A majority of the meets have some sort of a limitation on the number of events in which an athlete may compete, but few, if any, are as stringent as the state meet. The reason is that county meets and invitational competes seldom provide as strenuous competition as the state classic.

THE rule, if it goes into effect, will work to the benefit of the larger schools, coaches of which are able to enter plenty of men in all events, while the smaller schools, with probably only one or two good men, will be hobbled and more or less discouraged in their efforts to bid for a county or conference trophy.

While it is admitted the association board has sufficient strength, for the present at least, to "put over" any schemes it may concoct, there is a growing sentiment throughout the membership that the association office should restrict its powers for the major part to "policing the eligibility" and less to endeavoring to jam down the throats of member schools ideas conceived in the national federation, or picked up from neighboring states.

THE boost in fees in order to bolster up the association treasury also has not served to increase the popularity of the organization at the present moment.

An entry fee is charged to the state basketball tourney program and, in addition, the association declares itself in for a cut on the gross "gate" of the district, regional and state meets. Fees are charged officials for certification before they are qualified to work high school games.

The latest addition was the tax on entries in the track, tennis and golf championships. In these meets the golf trophies were the only awards purchased by the high school association.

IN the collection of these fees, dues, etc., the association hopes to build up a "nest egg," according to Secretary Black of the association. When an organization shows an annual deficit, members lose a lot of their enthusiasm, therefore the aim appears to be a worthy one.

Once the "nest egg" is achieved, then Secretary Black proposes to suggest to the control board that entry fees on all sports be removed. This will be welcome news to some of the boys that have been having trouble making the athletic budget balance.

The matter of dues, fees, etc., however, appears to draw fire from only a few. The main bone of contention appears to be the efforts of the state association to step in and dictate to county associations, district conferences and other groups the manner in which they shall conduct their basketball tournaments, track meets and football seasons.

VICTORY by Scottsbluff in the recent state high school track meet was a great thing for Nebraska high school athletics. It was the first time a major interscholastic title had been achieved by a far western team and the triumph of the Bluffs lads should bring increased interest in that seciton.

The victory was clean-cut. The Bearcats produced a splendid competitor in Cesco Asher, the state record-holder for the half-mile, and a bunch of well-groom athletes scoring consistently in a majority of the events.

The meet laurels hinged on the relay and the Scottsbluff team had the speed and spirit to smile at apparent odds and drive home with the first place necessary to win.

Ted Swenson, Scottsbluff coach, has no adverse superstitution regarding the number thirteen. He brought 13 athletes to the state meet and bagged the victory.

"I am not the least bit superstitious regarding the number," Swenson explained. "We had 13 boys qualified to go and that constituted our squad."

UP at Burwell, they believe in doing things in a big way. The annual rodeo, well-known from coast to coast, attracts thousands of people to the county seat of Garfield county. The local Chamber of Commerce, which in the Burwell lexicon is spelled "Wranglers," during the track season, promotes a high school meet which attracts athletes and fans from the Loup Valley region and neighboring counties.

All Burwell supports the two events with labor and enthusiasm, two factors necessary to the successful staging of anything worthwhile. The major events are run off in a fashion which would reflect credit on a much larger community.

Achievements of Burwell along these lines impress the fact that much can be accomplished where the entire community puts the shoulder to the wheel in boosting a worthy civic project.

WHEN Heye Lambertus, Gothenburg athlete, stepped the 220-yard low hurdles in 24 3-10 seconds in winning the event at the Nebraska high school track meet at the Memorial stadium in Lincoln, he not only did considerable slicing of the state record, but he also neared or bettered the national interscholastic record for the furlong barriers.

The national high school record for the hurdles down a straightaway is 24 seconds. The record around a curve is 24 4-10 seconds, one-tenth second slower than Lambertus time.

Whether Lambertus lowered the national mark depends on the interpretation that is read into the record book's "around the curve" explanatory note. If it means around a "full curve" such as a quarter-mile track, then the Gothenburg boy is not eligible for national record distinction. If the "half-curve" of the Memorial stadium comes under the classification, then Lambertus is in possession of a new record.

At any rate the time turned in by the Gothenburg hurdler rates as one of the noteworthy performances on high school cinder paths made during the history of interscholastic sport.

Imperial High Has Successful Year In Athletics.

DOWN THE LINE

With Bill McGeehan

LONDON—(On Tour)—It may or may not seem incomprehensible to you, but the long drawn cricket struggle between England and Australia is exciting more world-wide interest than our own world series America. Numerically, the cricket fans are overwhelmingly stronger than the baseball fans of all nations and languages. The sun never sets on the old English game of cricket, whereas when the spoils of the world series are divided, the baseball fans gather around their hot stoves or steam radiators and meditate.

While our own world series lasts for only seven games, wind and weather permitting, the England-Australia tests last for something like five months. They might last longer, but it is doubtful if the tea, ale and Scotch and soda supply would hold out much longer. As it is, the tea cultivators of China, the brewers along the Thames and the distillers of Scotland are overworked to a superlative degree by the end of a cricket season.

You are well aware that the spoils of the world series in certified checks are distributed among the worthy young athletes, the owners of the clubs and the national baseball commission fund, while the residue goes to pay the annual salary of Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis. The finances of the world series occupy no small part of the interest in the big show of American professional sport.

IN my international ignorance I started to ask what would be the split, approximately, in the England-Australia world series or imperial series and the question was a bit incomprehensible to the gentlemen from whom I was seeking the information.

Presently Mr. Robert Champion, the sporting journalist, who speaks American quite as fluently as he does English, understood. "Oh," said Mr. Champion. "They do not have winners' and the losers' ends as they do in the United States. They are playing for the Ashes. The Ashes are now held by England and the Australians are trying to take them back to Australia. A few years ago—I think that it was the year you saw Ponsford make the century—the Australians did take the Ashes back to Australia with them.

"That, of course, meant that the English had to go to Australia to bring back the Ashes and they did it. The Ashes now remain in England, unless this Australian cricket team is much stronger than we think. Of course, all of the professionals are paid their usual salaries and their expenses, but the prize of the best matches is the Ashes. There is no money involved as far as the players are concerned. Only the glory and the Ashes."

"WHOSE Ashes?" I demanded in my insatiable thirst for information, "William the Conqueror's? Are they contained in a diamond-studded, platinum urn to enhance their value so that professional athletes will feel this much interest in them?"

Mr. Champion looked a little puzzled and hurt. "Really there are no ashes, you know," he replied, watching me intently for evidences of irreverence. "They take nothing back with them—if the Australians should win—but the imaginary ashes. Of course, as you suggest, it might have been a good idea to have an imaginary urn to contain the imaginary ashes. But that is not necessary with Britons. Everybody in the empire knows what the term, the Ashes, signifies."

"But still, I can't get it," I said in my denseness.

"Naturally there must have been some sort of ashes, some time back to establish the tradition," said Mr. Champion. "But it is immaterial. The Ashes are there even if they are imaginary."

UNSATISFIED with what seemed to me to be an evasive and incomplete answer, I sought further information in other quarters. The hall porter looked athletic and intelligent. On cross-examination he once was able to inform me concerning the person in the hotel who was authorized and licensed to sew a button on a shirt and the information was invaluable.

"What are the Ashes?" I demanded of him with the brusqueness of my breed, a brusqueness which seems to cause international annoyance.

But the hall porter is a tolerant sort of person. He looked at me with a kindly condescention.

"I suppose, sir, that you mean the Hashes, sir," he said. Naturally I felt put in my place and if you are out of your place for one fraction of a second, you might as well have both feet a block off second base.

"Yes, that's it," I said eagerly. "The Hashes?" What are the Hashes?"

"The Hashes, sir," said the hall porter. "The Hashes is," correcting the grammatical lapse, with polite but emphatic firmness. "The Hashes is what the Australians have come 'ere to get, sir, but which they will not get, sir, because Hengland expects every one of 'er cricketers to do 'is duty in the test matches."

"I see," I said gratefully. "That explains it all. I see it now very clearly. The Hashes is the cause of it all and if the Hashes is taken back by the Australians the English team will have to go to Australia and bring it back.

"That's it, sir," said the hall porter, a bit taken back by my intelligence. "But the Australians are not likely to capture the Hashes this year, sir."

MR. TREVOR C. WIGNALL of Lord Beaverbrook's "Daily Express," next took the stand for me at the Savage club. "The Ashes are part of a tradition that originated before my time," said Mr. Wignall. "I understand that once they burned a document and that the ashes of the said document became associated with the game of cricket."

"What document?" I asked. "Not the Magna Charta?"

Mr. Wignall immediately suspected me of spoofing and refused to answer on the advice of his own counsel. He said that he did not know the nature of the document which had been incinerated nor of the reason for burning it, though he implied that the grounds for the action were in accordance with British law and custom. He did not know what had become of the ashes or if the cricket ashes had the durability and other qualities of the Phoenix ashes.

In the circumstances this is all of the information I can give to my constituents as to the significance of the imaginary trophy for which the Australians and English will be engaged in the tense cricket matches which will rage through all of the counties of England during the summer, while our sterling athletes engaged in keeping life in the national pastime of America will be figuring on possible cuts in the world series.

Comparatively, we are very commercial people, which, in my opinion, is far from being a reproach. Mr. Babe Ruth, the batsman of baseball, gets his annual salary, higher than that of the president, with a chance of a slice of the world series. Mr. Jack Hobbs, the batsman of cricket, gets a tenth of Mr. Ruth's salary and a share in the glory of the imaginary Ashes.

MAX IMPRESSES FISTIC CRITICS

By BILL CORUM.

NEW YORK, May 17—This young Schmeling who came here to fight Jack Sharkey does not impress you as a fellow to be taken lightly. Consciously or unconsciously, and more likely the former, his resemblance to Jack Dempsey has increased since he was here last year.

Save in some minor details such asJack's badger haircut, I imagine Max could double very nicely today for the young Dempsey of Toledo. He has the same million dollar body, the same can't-sit-still restlessness, the same urge to get there. That's important, that last. Urge. Ambition. They mean the same. Call it what you will it's the motive power that drives men to success.

Looks Like Champion.

You can't see this latest Schmeling and not be impressed. He looks a champion even if he isn't. That's more than you can say for 99 out of a hundred of those foreign fighters. The great majority of European heavyweights who reach our shores look to be exactly what they are—deluded ditch diggers.

Not Max. He's a natural athlete. His mind is quick and his body well trained. They tell me he weighs just three pounds more today than he did the night he fought Paulino, so you see, the stories of his beer drinking orgies in the fatherland were poppy-cock. If beer does nothing else for you it makes you fat, as an old St. Louis boy I can tell you that without fear of successful contradiction.

Not Harmed By Layoff.

When Max has had a week or two of training under his belt it will be time enough to try and judge the effects, if any, of his 12-month layoff. The chances are it has not hurt him half as much as the experts would have us believe. At 24, such things make scant difference.

But so much one can tell about the Rhine Bomber at a single glance—he is chock full of health and confidence. And this much more I think I know—Sharkey cannot beat him with any such fight as he made against Phil Scott. But Sharkey isn't apt to make such a fight, if only for the reason that he never makes two fights alike.

SUNOL BOY CHAMP IN TENNIS SINGLES

CHAPPELL, Neb., May 17—Chappell high school won the South Platte Valley association high school tennis doubles title here this week, defeating Lodgepole in the finals, 6-2, 6-0.

Adolph Seda of Sunol won the singles championship by defeating Christenson of Chappell in the finals, 7-5, 6-4.

Pat Crawford is playing second base for the Giants when certain pitchers are working for the opposition. He is not as flashy in the field as Eddie Marshall, but is a more reliable hitter.

Last year the White Sox lost 35 games by one run. This year Donie Bush's club is winning one-run games.

In spite of frequent showers and a raw north wind which swept across the track, Greater Lincoln league athletes bested old man weather by cracaking nine met records and tying two others out of 14 events on the program as Havelock ran away with the annual track and field meet by scoring 60 points. Lincoln reserves were second with 37 1-3. The meet was run off at the state university stadium Saturday forenoon.

Bernhard Hansen, Havelock ace, broke one record, tied two others and ran anchor man on a record-breaking relay team. Hansen broke the 440 record, set by himself in 1929, and tied the century and furlong marks.

Bob Harrison, Engineer middle-distance man, smashed the half-mile mark when he went the distance in 2 minutes 4.5 seconds, almost two seconds better than his own mark in the state meet, which won gold medal honors.

Pixley, Jackson weight man, won the shot put by edging out Young of Havelock by the scant margin of ¼ an inch. Pixley then went on and took three more heaves in an attempt on the record, which he smashed by almost two feet on his second throw. The summary of the meet:

Bears Come East With Strong Team

BERKELEY, Cal., May 17—Four University of California tennis players and their coach will invade the east this summer to play a dozen or more matches with middle western and eastern college teams and to enter three tournaments including the national intercollegiate tournament at the Merion Cricket club near Philadelphia, June 23 to 28. The netmen will be gone more than a month, since they intend to leave Berkeley May 23.

Following is the team selected by Coach R. L. Grismer for the trip: Dolf E. Muehleisen of San Diego, Captain Martin McKee of Piedmont, Robert Muench of San Diego and Theodore Ludlow of Berkeley.

The Bears at present have 10 matches definitely arranged and expect to fill out their schedule with two more for the last weekend in May, probably with Ohio institutions. Following is their schedule:

May 23—University of Utah at Salt Lake City, Utah.
May 24—Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah.
May 26—University of Nebraska, Lincoln.
May 27—Northwestern university, Evanston, Illinois.
May 29—Notre Dame at South Bend, Indiana.
June 2—Ohio State university, Columbus, Ohio.
June 4—Pittsburgh university at Pittsburgh.
June 6—University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.
June 7—Princeton university at Princeton, N. J.
June 9 to 14—Maryland state tournament at Baltimore.
June 16 to 21—Delaware state open tournament, Wilmington, Del.
June 23 to 28—National intercollegiate tournament, at Merion Cricket club, Philadelphia.

Muehleisen has had a brilliant career in California tennis, chiefly in the southern section of the state. This year he won the intercollegiate singles title of the Pacific Coast conference. With Muench, with whom he has played doubles for several years, he was runner-up for the doubles championship of the coast.

WINGS and FINS

By J.M.M.

OF course it's tough, this time of year, to even permit one's self to think of fall days in the blind with a flock of pintails sailing in over the decoys, but just the same, with a little determination, one can give away to a few minutes of dreaming now and then, especially when one happens upon a pond and finds a flock mushing around in the shallows, turning tails up to reach a choice morsel on the bottom, or alertly erect as you approach.

It was plenty tough when millions of ducks and geese trekked through here on their northern flight—too tough, unfortunately, for a few of us who forgot or just didn't care about the sport of the future.

THERE is a lot of downright pleasure and satisfaction, though, in sitting quietly beside one of those favorite feeding grounds in the evening just watching. It's an entirely different kind of a thrill than one experiences while watching expectantly from the shelter of a blind. None of that tense excitement that never seems to dull with years.

Contemplation of the beauty, grace and color of the birds replaces that quick exercise of judgment which is so necessary to success in the fall. It would be an excellent experience for a lot of hunters. It sort of harnesses up that desire to kill and keep on killing. Ducks are no longer just targets, and Nature helps out by adding splashes of color to the winter plumage which is just beginning to disappear.

WE underwent the harnessing process quite thoroughly a few days ago when invited to spend the night at the Wahoo Creek Gun club cabin west of Ashland. The club members have spent a lot of time and no small amount of money in developing what is without a doubt the best layout of the kind in this part of the state. Ditches have been dug, dams have been built until a natural lake and a large area of low land surrounding it has been developed into a broad expanse of open water and marsh that equals the descriptive powers of the best contributor to "Field and Stream."

The mud flats, the weedy shallows and the clear stretches of open water have been the haven of thousands of ducks throughout the spring. Recently a plentiful supply of wild rice and other water plants which tickle a duck's quacker more than anything else were planted by the members of the club. There won't be room for all the applicants when the table is set next spring.

A COMFORTABLE log cabin has been built on a slope beneath a dozen ancient cottonwood trees and from the porch one looks out across the lake and on to the grassy marshes that spread a half mile to the east and north.

It was on this porch that we sat watching a flock of greenwing teal sporting around in the water not more than a hundred yards away. Across the lake was another large flock. Pairs and singles skirted around the shores or winged back and forth from one flock to another.

Toward sundown there was a general restlessness, and flocks of from three to 25 circled to the lake again and again, finally dropping into the marsh. It was worth a lot—that evening.

THE improvement of natural feeding grounds and the planting of water vegetation suitable for feeding, while primarily intended to improve the hunting for club members in the fall, at the same time plays an important part in conservation and in making better hunting in eastern Nebraska. Continued drainage of lowlands in this part of the state for farming purposes has almost destroyed the feeding grounds which once attracted a large portion of the fall flight through eastern Nebraska. The result has been that the bulk of the flight now passes through central and western Nebraska or down the Missouri river.

The rivers provide resting places during the big flight but there is little to keep the early flocks in the vicinity. Hunting clubs and other sportsmen's organizations are beginning to restore those old attractions and the results should be felt if the work continues.

OUT in western Nebraska, where nature has provided thousands of sandhill lakes, the federal government is taking steps to create a great duck and goose hostelry that Nebraska sportsmen will welcome. Surveyors are now at work plotting out approximately 40,000 acres of Garden county land which is being purchased or leased for a migratory game bird reserve.

In this area are three large lakes, Bean, Swan and Beaver, and dozens of smaller lakes. Hunting will be prohibited in the preserve throughout the year. In time, the natural feed will be increased by planting. Just south of this reserve the state has created another reserve stretching 20 miles along the Platte river.

Loop Chief Cracks Down On Umpires

CHICAGO, May 17—(AP)—Joseph Rue and W. F. Clayton, umpires in the American association, today were suspended for 10 days by President Thomas J. Hickey, for making false statements which resulted in the suspension of Casey Stengel, manager of the Toledo club.

Stengel, on the strength of statements made by the two umpires, was banished on charges that he incited a near-riot during a Toledo-Milwaukee game at Toledo April 28.

Stores Failed Dovetail.

In their first reports to President Hickey, Umpires Rue and Clayton placed the responsibility for the disturbance on Stengel. President Hickey, however, said they told an entirely different story when they appeared before Commissioner Landis Thursday, when Landis was reviewing Stengel's case.

"In justice to Stengel," President Hickey said, "I must exonerate him of causing the trouble. He was in no way responsible. The umpires' report to me and what they told Commissioner Landis was greatly at variance. Because of this I am suspending the two umpires for 10 days."

Stengel was out of the game for only three days.

From Tee to Green.

BY ROY GROVE.

ONE of the most important points in golf is wrist action. Learn to use the wrists and you learn to play golf. It is this action that sends the ball for distance and control.

The clubhead, wrists and right shoulder all come into the ball at the point of contact.

The next time you are out on the course see how far you can send the ball with the wrist action alone, using very little of the arm and weight. Snap the clubhead just as if you were cracking a whip.

It is this snap, traveling only a few inches, that puts the distance behind the ball.

Note in the illustration of Joe Kirkwood, how far the hands have traveled and how far the clubhead has moved. The wrists have moved slightly and the clubhead has been whipped some three feet.

Kirkwood at (B) has not thrown his hips into the stroke. They remain in that position throughout the action.

The point at (A) demonstrates that all-important power—the right shoulder. Clubhead, wrists and shoulder co-ordinate.

His right leg at (C) is stiff as well as his arm. Note how the wrists roll over in throwing the clubhead into the ball. There is very little difference in general appearance in Kirkwood from the time he starts to put the whip into the ball to the point of contact. The body all the way through is well balanced for the stroke.

Americans Capture Five Straight Matches In Davis Compet.

BALA, Pa., May 17—(UP)—The United States Davis cup singles teams today won the two remaining matches of the Canada-United States play of the American zone, defeating the Canadian team in straight sets in both and winning the contest in five straight matches.

Playing like veterans and having the edge on their opponents at all times, Johnny Doeg, Santa Monica, Cal., and Wilbur Allison, Cherry Tan, triumphed over Dr. Jack Wright and Marcel Rainville of Canada before a record crowd of 2,000.

The score in the Doeg-Wright match was 6-2, 6-3, 6-2. The score of the second match was 6-2, 6-2, 7-5.

Texan At His Best.

In the singles today between Wilmer Allison and Marcel Rainville, the Texan had the advantage all the way. He forced the Canadian all over the court and baffled him with his cut balls and placements. His skill was as disastrous today as it was in the doubles yesterday with Van Ryn. Again today he jumped into the air numerous times to retrieve high drives and smashed them to the court so hard they bounced clear into the spectators' laps.

The team now will journey to Chevy Chase, Md., where the Mexican team will be met next week in the last round of play in the American zone. The winning team will go to Europe in June to play the old world's champions for the right to meet France in the final round for the cup. The Frenchmen took the cup abroad by defeating the cream of America's aces at Germantown in 1927.

Rally By Pirates Beats Cincy Reds

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 17—(I. N. S.)—A three-run rally in the eighth inning gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 7 to 5 victory over the Cincinnati Reds here today.

Pete Donohue, who relieved Jakie May to start the eighth inning, after the Reds had forged ahead by one run, was the victim of the Pirate attack.

Ray Kremer hurled spotty ball in the early innings and was taken out for a pinch-hitter in the eighth. Steve Swetonic finished.

Comorosky, with a double and a triple, played a big part i nthe Pirate attack, driving in three runs. The score:

Gehrig's Home Run Wins For Yankees

FENWAY PARK, Boston, May 17—(INS)—Lou Gehrig's sixth home run of the season and strong relief pitching by Henry Johnson enabled the Yankees to trim the Red Sox here this afternoon, 3 to 2.

Gehrig's smash in the seventh inning was one of the seven the Yanks collected off Milt Gaston. The blow tied the score at two-all. The winning run came in the ninth on Lazzeri's single, Gehrig's walk and Dickey's one-timer to left. Johnson replaced Ruffing in the eighth, when the later walked Sweeney and Rhyne following Regan's single. Johnson went into the box cold, with three on and none down, he struck out Pinch-hitter Webb and forced Gaston to line into a double play.

Durst, one-time Yankee, got three hits, including a double and triple. The score:

The Phils, led by Davis, who got five out of five; O'Doul, who got three out of four, including two doubles, and Hurst, who rapped a home run, drove three Robin hurlers from the mound. Collins, though nicked for 16 hits, stayed in all the way for Philadelphia. The score:

Navy's Shell First In Eastern Contest

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 17—(I. N. S.)—Navy's powerful varsity crew defeated Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Harvard and Pennsylvania, in that order, on the Charles river here this evening.

Navy's rowing for the mile and three-quarters course was in the record time of nine minutes and 11 3-5 seconds.

The Midshipmen finished a boat length and a half ahead of the Engineers. Behind Tech trailed Harvard and then came Penn. Tech's time was 9:13, Harvard's 9:19 3-5 and Penn's 9:37.

Harvard had won the 150-pound event and the freshman race and Tech the junior varsity, with no Navy crew in either of these three races. Penn finished last in all races.

At the conclusion of the junior varsity race, the Crimson shell became swamped and the crew of nine were obliged to swim to the float of the Union Boat club.

Jayhawks Squeeze Ahead of Bengals

COLUMBUS, Mo., May 17—(U. P.)—Led by Jim Bausch, the University of Kansas eked out a three-point victory over the University of Missouri track team here today, 67 to 64. Bausch scored 18 of Kansas points, winning points in five events, including firsts in the shot and javelin, a tie for first in the pole vault, second in the high hurdles and a third in the discus.

Power in the field events enabled the Jayhawkers to pile up such an impressive lead that the Tiger runners could not overcome it. A soggy track hampered record-breaking runs, but Bausch established a new dual meet mark in the javelin with a toss of 178 feet 8¾ inches, bettering the mark set in 1927 by Brown of 171 feet, 11¾ inches.

Fast Time In Hurdles.

With a brisk wind behind his back, Welch, Missouri, sophomore, topped the low hurdles in 24 seconds to beat by four-tenths of a second the record established in 1916 by Bob Simpson. Klaner equalled the record 9.8 second mark in the century dash, held by Brenham and Schloz of Missouri.

Kansas took three places in the shot and discus, while Missouri slammed in the 440-yard dash and won the relay when Young, Kansas anchor man, was forced from the race by an injured leg.

Wolverines Swamp Gophers On Track

MINNEAPOLIS, May. 17—(UP)—Though Gopher trackmen set two new Minnesota records, Michigan swamped the University of Minnesota team, 96 1-3 to 38 2-3, in a Big Ten dual meet today.

Clarence Munn, Minnesota, set a Minnesota record in the shot put when he heaved the shot put 47 feet 9 inches. Art Wieseger, colored star, running his last race for Minnesota, broke the Minnesota mark in the 880-yard run with a time of 1:56.8.

LONGHORNS LEAD CONFERENCE RACE

AUSTIN, Texas, May 17—(U. P.)—The University of Texas baseball team made a clean sweep of the series with Southern Methodist university here today by winning, 6 to 2. The Longhorns are leading the Southwestern conference, while the Mustangs have not won a game this season.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 17

The stock market played second fiddle to other attractions in Wall street today.

Whether it was the entrance of the summer doldrums in the big speculative market, the Kentucky derby, golf, fishing, or other diversions, speculation was at a low ebb today in all of the important markets, and transactions on the big board fell well below 1,000,000 shares. Only 934,000 shares changed hands in the first 90 minutes, a record for dullness that has not been duplicated in nearly two years.

Under such conditions, price movements were necessarily narrow and unimportant. The professionals roamed around the stock exchange floor in an effort to scalp profits here and there. A few of the tobacco stocks and specialities continued the moderate rally which was in progress at Friday's close, but for the most part the speculative favorites drifted in a narrow range, with a feeble rally in the offing as the closing gong sounded.

Lacking incentive to move very far in either direction the stock market marked time in the dull and featureless week-end session. Stock sales in the first half-hour totaled only 223,000 shares, a mere handful as compared with the Saturday sessions of March and April.

The week-end business reviews of Bradstreet's, Dun's Review and the leading banking houses noted the slow pace of the business recovery, though pointing out that the trend of leading industries is upward. Meanwhile the stock market has fallen into a rut, from which it can be extricated only by a decisive buying or selling movement.

The bulk of the industrial stocks and specialties drifted off to lower price levels in the second hour, behind one of the slowest and dullest trading periods that has been witnessed on the big board since the break in November. Warner Brothers Pictures lost 1½ points at 63½; Columbia Gas settled dwon a point to 85¼. Radio and Radio-Keith gave up nearly 2 points of the ground gained earlier in the week, and big leaders like U. S. Steel and General Electric practically disappeared from the active list. A. M. Byers advanced 3½ points to 97½.

The tobacco stocks, under the lead of American Tobacco, carried to a slightly higher level the moderate rise which has been in progress all the week. American Tobacco B rose about 2½ points to 261¾. Speculative interest in the United Corporation-Columbia Gas combination appeared to have evaporated for the time being, United moving through a narrow price range.

Oils were quiet and steady. A cut in price of crude oil in Santa Fe Springs was expected to help improve the crude production situation there, but the lower prices quoted for wholesale gasoline was not so encouraging. Pan American B and Standard of New Jersey were the favorites in this division.

The restless professionals attempted to "scalp profits" in the late trading by forcing downward the industrial favorites which gained the most ground this week. When this move proved to be unsuccessful they turned to the rails, also with meagre results.

Commodity markets were also quiet, with cotton up 4 to 7 points and grain fractionally lower in the early trading.

Most of the active stocks closed the day with fractional losses. United States Steel was down ½ at 172⅛; Radio down ½ at 50¾; Sears Roebuck advanced 1½ to 86¾. American Can was down ¼ at 144¼; General Motors down ½ at 47⅜; Atlantic Refining up ½ at 43⅛.

New York Central, in the rail group, gained a point at 177⅜. Baltimore and Ohio was up ¼ at 116; Pennsylvania down ¼ at 78⅛; Katy up ⅜ at 58⅜.

Vanadium Steel closed 2 points higher, at 118½ and Canada Dry was up 1⅜ at 66⅞.

Stock sales on the big board today totalled 790,900 shares, the smallest two-hour session since August 13, 1928, when 785,600 shares changed hands. On January 11 of this year the turnover was 873,000 shares.

Irregularity with narrow price changes, featured the opening of the stock market today. Fractional declines in the speculative leaders brought prices slightly below Friday's closing level, though slight rallies took place in some sections of the list.

United States Steel dropped off nearly a point to 172½. Standard Oil of New York was down ½ at 36½; Standard of New Jersey down ⅛ at 79; Chrysler Motor down ¼ at 34⅛; Union Carbide down ¼ at 85¾.

Utilities were steady with American and Foreign Power unchanged at 84¾; North American down ½ at 118½; United Corp. up ¼ at 36⅝; Public Service of New Jersey up ⅜ at 117⅜.

Trans-America off ⅜ at 44⅜. Vacuum up ⅛ at 89⅜. Middle West Utilities up ¼ at 34⅜. American Gas & Electric up ⅜ at 144⅛, and American Superpower up ⅛ at 35.

NEW YORK CURB REVIEW.

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, May 17

The curb market found itself entirely devoid of speculative attention, in one of the smallest week-end sessions of the year today and prices of the general rank and file of stocks drifted about aimlessly with few price changes of significance in evidence.

A slightly easier tone developed in the final half hour, as some profit taking was encountered.

The usually active utility shares were extremely dull, with slightly lower closings evidenced in American Superpower, American and Foreign Power warrants, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, Electric Bond and Share, and Standard Electric. Mild strength in American Gas and Electric, Middle West Utilities, and United Light and Power brought these issues fractionally higher.

Oils were inclined to softness with declines registered in the usually active issues including Gulf, Standard of Indiana, Standard of Kentucky, Standard of Ohio, and Vacuum.

Cities Service after an early period of moderate firmness, gave up its fractional advance in the final few minutes of the day, winding up approximately unchanged.

The only signs of life in the investment trust group was active buying in American commonwealth which moved up ½ point to 27½.

Lone Star Gas reflected some group activity, and was an outstanding feature in its 3¾ point advance to 84¾.

Ford of Canada moved up 1¼ points to 37½, while a recovery of 1¾ points in National Steel to 65¼, were the only incidents of note among the industrial stocks.

Number of Dinner Parties Held Preceding Horse Show

Numerous Social Functions Given At Clubs and Hotels By Those Attending Affair; Exhibitors And Out Of-Town Guests Are Honored.

IN SPITE of all intentions to the contrary, the obstinate weather man didn't in the least dampen the ardor of the horse show enthusiasts. All performances were well attended, and preceding the show on Friday and Saturday evenings, there were any number of social affairs.

On Friday, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Faulkner entertained at a high tea for all exhibitors and out-of-town guests, and following the performance Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Pace Woods and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sidles entertained sixty guests at a buffet supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Woods.

In another box arranged for ten were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Gooch, Amsden Gooch, Miss Ann Gooch, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Webster of Omaha, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brother Towle, and Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Roth. Preceding the Saturday evening performance, Mr. and Mrs. Gooch and Mr. and Mrs. Roth presided at a dinner for ninety guests at the Country club. Dinner covers were arranged at two long tables made attractive with tall baskets filled with spring flowers. Baskets of red and ivory shaded peonies alternated with the baskets filled with purple iris and gladioli in all shades the length of each table. Between the baskets of flowers were tall white candles.

In a box placed for twenty-three were Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Edward O'Shea, Mr. and Mrs. Don Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Helen Lloyd Jones Weds Loren Graham at Wymore

Dearth of May Bridal Events Broken By Number of Attractive Ceremonies This and Last Week in Which Della Sloniger, Vera Lewis, Amelia Strauch and Lydia Butz Are Married. Elizabeth Schaaf Weds.

The exceptionally small number of weddings that have taken place in May may be due in part to the unseasonable weather, or perhaps the beckoning charm of a June ceremony. This week, however, there are to be some attractive bridal events.

Interesting in university circles will be the marriage of Miss Helen Lloyd Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Jones of Wymore, to Loren O. Graham, son of E. Graham of Fremont, which will be solemnized at 8 o'clock Saturday evening at the home of the bride's parents in Wymore. Rev. M. Trowbridge of the Methodist Episcopal church at Wymore will read the service before about fifty guests.

The wedding processional is to be played by Mrs. D. K. Windle, and immediately preceding the ceremony, Miss Gertrude Jones will sing "At Dawning." Doris and Esther Windle, nieces of the bride, will come first in the procession and will scatter flower petals. Jo Ed Windle, a nephew of the bride, will carry the rings on a white satin pillow.

Elsie Frederickson Attendant.

Attending Miss Jones will be Miss Elsie Frederickson of McCook. She will wear a modish gown of lavender chiffon, and will carry yellow roses and lavender sweet peas. James Wickman of Omaha will be best man. The bride will wear green chiffon made in silhouette lines, with a long flowing skirt. Her shower bouquet will be of Ophelia roses and lilies of the valley.

Following the service, there will be an informal reception. Miss

Business Women Advised To Form Health Program

Dr. Olga Stastny Insists "Don't Go In For Fads" And Declares Sunshine Good Food and Rest Are Essential.

Dr. Olga Stastny of Omaha, national health chairman of the Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, recently addressed members of the Nebraska unit. In part her speech follows:

"Little links make big chains." These words recall to me a scene in a village of a far away land. Five gymnasts drill patiently, day after day from written instructions, in preparation for a great meet. In 1920, I attended a great meet in Bohemia where I saw fifty thousand men and women drill as one. These were the gymnasts who drilled separately in their distant villages, yet so perfectly when met together, you could hear the sound of their motion—the swish of their arms cutting the air as they rose and fell in perfect unison. And so, I think of you who are gathered here today,—little groups from separate clubs, yet meeting here in perfect working whole. And you are a part of the 56,000 women of the national federation. Think of the power of these women banded together.

"To return you to the meeting in Czecho-Slovakia. Its origin goes back to 1850, when a band of patriotic Czechs met to discuss their fight for freedom. They said, 'Only fit bodies make fit minds' and instituted these drills to prepare strong bodies in preparation for independence. Fit bodies are necessary not only for those of Czecho-Slovakia, but for the women of this country. Hence, the necessity for a health program.

Urges Health Program.

"I am so used to working with the masses that I see not only the gain in happiness to the individual because of improved health, but I catch a vision of what it will mean when all women gain in health and happiness. Let me urge the importance of a positive health program, to keep yourselves healthy. In general, the health of business women is better than that of women in the home. They have contacts the home does not have. There is a mental stimulus in getting out every day.

"Teach yourself to think health, not sickness. The criticism is made that women are absent from work more than men. Aim to disprove this and to put the sex question out of business. The personal examination, which it is hoped all will have before April, 1931, is to improve the health by discovering ailments in time to correct them.

"The contest, 'On the Job' was instituted because of the criticism that women do not stay on the job. They marry or are off for sickness. We don't want favors because we are women. We ask only for equal rights, and trust to prove our fitness by the 'Being on the Job' statistics from 56,000 women.

Build For Health.

Know health and build for health. You further your happiness by advancing your health. A doctor knows only too well how illness is caused by mistakes of living and how, for many, there are easy adjustments. Many illnesses are caused by mental attitudes. Each of you should ask yourself, 'Where do I stand? What is undermining my health?' Go to a doctor who will help you to find defects of body and of environment. Many do not realize how much the latter counts. We should try to put into our lives just as much beauty as possible. If our surroundings irk, perhaps it is possible to change our occupation. How often there are maladjustments between you, your friends and your family. Self-sacrifice is not always constructive. Reason it out. Sometimes it is weakening to the person who receives. We owe loyalty, beauty, but not life, to people. Help them

"The old Greeks stressed the to get on their feet. body and the mental life. In modern life, we stress individual development. Our life is too fast. We need poise and leisure—leisure to stop, think and enjoy life. Use your mind.

"Our standard for women has changed. We are no longer clinging vines. And in order not to be, you must have good body mechanics. At a recent meeting, a speaker said, 'All of you hang on your spine.' Then think how important it is to have a straight spine. More grouches are caused by not standing properly than by any other cause. So follow the same rules for positive health and be happier. Sick people cannot be happy except through effort.

"Don't Go In For Fads."

"And now with regard to nutrition. Don't go in for fads. Your body needs the three classes of foods and the vitamins to maintain health. It has been proved that sunshine, good food and rest will help to prevent sinus trouble. Sunshine, nourishing food, and violet rays promote health. The styles of short skirts, etc. are healthful because they allow the sunshine to get to the body.

"Again let me urge you to find the work for which you are adapted. Don't be afraid to make the change. Learn to play. Have a hobby. There is a time for play as well as for work. Sometime or other your mental attitude towards life causes you to ask yourself questions, 'Why am I here? Where am I going?' The happiest individual will decide that each person has duties and rights.

"Since happiness depends on health, ask yourself questions about your health standing. These can best be answered by an examination by a doctor. The real object of the drive for these is not the number of examinations, but better health, and from this greater happiness, for the happy person gets the most out of life."

Drive For National Jewish Hospital To Be Held This Week

Lincoln Jewry will join other communities throughout the country this week in soliciting funds for the National Jewish hospital, a leading institution for tubercular treatment at Denver. The local committee is composed of M. Wassermann, chairman, Morris Friend and William Seelenfreund.

Although founded and maintained largely by Jewish philanthropy, it is non-sectarian in its service. It is dedicated exclusively to needy patients, and has as its motto, "No patient pays: no patient who can afford to pay is admitted."

The hospital has particularly distinguished itself in the fields of general tubercular research and in the care of tubercular children.

is expected, as usual, to furnish the real battleground.

Not many question that Gifford Pinchot, the firebrand in Pennsylvania politics, will come down to the Philadelphia line with a substantial majority for governor. Nor is there much question that Joseph R. Grundy, the famous tariff maker, will keep apace with him out in the state for the senatorial nomination.

Vare Machine Is Problem.

But here in the checkered and populous wards of Philadelphia they run head-on into the far-famed Vare machine, which is supporting Secretary of Labor James J. Davis for senator, and Francis Shunk Brown for governor. If the Vare machine holds together it is going to be a whale of a fight; if not, then almost anything may happen, but what probably will happen is the nomination of Pinchot and Grundy.

In ill-health and bitter over the senate's denying him the senate seat he won four years ago, William S. Vare has issued two personal appeals to his followers in Philadelphia to stand firm in support of his ticket of Brown and Davis.

"Vote for Jim Davis and Frank Brown as you would vote for me," is Vare's plea. "Votes for them will be a vindication of me. The real issue is the seat in the United States senate, which was stolen from me."

The efficacy of this appeal from the stricken over-lord of Philadelphia politics for these many years will be disclosed on Tuesday.

Two Main Factors.

Broadly speaking, the outcome in Pennsylvania is considered by most neutral observers to hinge upon two factors:

1.—Whether the Vare organization in the city can be made to produce an old time majority for its candidates, and,

2.—Th esize of the vote that will be cast for the out-and-out wet ticket headed by ex-Congressman Thomas W. Phillips for governor and Francis H. Bohlen, a law professor at the University of Pennsylvania, for senator.

Either, singly, may prove the determining factor; together, they will decide it. Both factors are political imponderables; it is that fact that makes the leaders so nervous and so apprehensive as the hour for firing approaches.

Wet Strength Unknown.

The Phillips-Bohlen wet ticket admittedly is going to draw a lot of votes. The question is: How many? The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment has rallied joyously to their banner and aiding them, for Grundy and Pinchot are both running as drys, and the Davis-Brown ticket has taken no positive stand on the issue one way or the other.

It is the unknown strength of this wet ticket that causes cold chills to chase up and down the spines of the Davis-Brown combination and the Vare leaders. The wet votes obviously will have to come from them, becaue they could not go to the dry combination of Pinchot and Grundy.

GRACE CHURCH PLANS TO BUILD

Sale of two lots on the southwest corner of Twentieth and Washington streets to the Grace English Evangelical Lutheran church as a site for a contemplated new church building was recorded in the office of the register of deeds Saturday. The property was sold by Alma C. and Floyd Rawlings for $9,500.

Rev. G. Kuller Rubrecht, pastor of the church, said Saturday night that the property had been acquired by a group of members of the church who would seek ratification of plans for a new church structure shortly.

Plans for a new church have been under way for some time he stated Saturday and will be presented to a general meeting of the congregation Wednesday evening, May 28. Plans of the building committee will be revealed at that time in detail, he said.

If the plans are approved, he stated Saturday night, construction of a new church will begin as quickly as preliminary preparations can be handled. This would probably be sometime next year, he said, and possibly next spring.

The Grace English Evangelical Lutheran church is at present located at Fourteenth and F streets.

COLLEGE GIRLS STUDY NURSING

Several Having Degrees Enter Lincoln General Hospital School.

Although college training is not required there are many girls who have attended universities and colleges that are taking up nursing according to J. L. Teeters, chairman of the board of the Lincoln General hospital.

The state requirement, which is higher than that of many other states, is two years of high school work. The Lincoln General, however, admits only those who have had the full four years of high school work.

Thirteen of the twenty-four members of the class which entered training in September of 1929 have had college training. One girl has a master's degree, two have bachelor degrees, five have completed two years of college work and five have completed one year of college work.

Six attended the University of Nebraska, three studied at Doane college, two at Wesleyan university and one at each of the following schools Union college at College View; Central college at McPherson, Kas., and Smith College at Northampton, Mass.

Ten of the graduates of the hospital school of nursing have had college work, two of them having attended college two years and six of them one year. The University of Nebraska, Hastings college and Nebraska Wesleyan university are among the institutions they attended.

Since 1927 there have been fifty-three graduates. Of that number twenty-five are holding institutional positions, and twenty-eight have or are doing private duty. Seven who have done private duty have married and are no longer working. Five have married and are still doing private duty.

The commencement program for the seventeen nurses who graduate this year opened May 15, with the junior-senior banquet at the Cornhusker hotel. Graduation services will be held Wednesday, May 21, at the Westminster Presbyterian church. Friday the alumnae banquet will be held at the Cornhusker hotel. Sunday, May 25, a tea for the staff and graduating class will be held in the nurses home. The school picnic will be held Monday, May 26, at the Van Dorn park.

Legislation to Relieve Unemployment Is Urged by Lincoln Welfare Society

Senators Norris and Howell have been sent copies of material collected by the social welfare society relative to unemployment conditions in Lincoln, along with a letter endorsing the principles involved in the three Wagner bills now before the senate and intended to aid in solving the unemployment problem The material gives the detailed findings of a study on unemployment here which was made by the social welfare society with the assistance of Prof. E. Glenn Callen. Copies have also been sent to the council of social agencies, community chest, and Dr. Ray E. Hunt, chairman of Lincoln's permanent committee on stabilizing employment.

Miss Ada Barker, secretary of the social welfare society, who signed the letters addressed to the Nebraska senators, says that social welfare workers all over the country are anxious that national authorities do something now to help in stabilizing employment, rather than let the matter slide until another winter with its intense condition of unemployment comes around. Her letter follows:

Endorse Wagner Bills.

"At a recent meeting, the board of directors of the Lincoln Social Welfare society unanimously endorsed the principles involved in the three Wagner bills now before the senate. I am writing to report the action of the board and to request that you work for these bills.

"I note that the senate has passed two of the bills but so far have failed to take any action on the one looking toward the establishment of employment agencies. As this bill probably furnishes the most practical form of relief, I trust you will use your influence to see that it also receives the approval of the senate.

"I am enclosing a copy of material collected by the Social Welfare society of Lincoln, relative to unemployment conditions in our city. You will note that the amount of relief given because of unemployment has materially increased in the past few winters, and that more than a third of our relief work for the past few months was because of unemployment. You will also note that 58 per cent of those unemployed were under 45 years of age, and that a large percentage are common laborers, the type most frequently utilizing employment agencies. The importance of the problem to us here in Lincoln is further emphasized when the total number in the families of the unemployed men are considered.

"Your Lincoln constituency is interested in federal action looking toward a constructive solution of the employment problem."

In compiling its statistics on unemployment in Lincoln used special questionnaires as well as data that is gathered monthly. Wage earners in families known to the social welfare society are divided into the following groups: dead, incapacitated, non-supporting, insufficient earnings, unemployed and miscellaneous. This count is made monthly and if service is being rendered the families over more than a month's period, the family will be counted in the wage earner's proper classification each month the service is rendered.

Wages Too Low.

The society finds that the minimum wage to provide a decent living for a family in Lincoln is $24.50 a week. Of the sixty-eight men for whom there is information concerning the wage received upon returning to work this spring, only ten received over $25 per week. The average wage is between $15 and $20 per week.

The society's study shows that the able-bodied unemployed composing the 120 wage earners applying to the social welfare society in January, February and March, 1930, 58 per cent were under forty-five years of age. Fifty-two of the 120 made their first application to the society this year, while of the sixty-eight remaining, forty had made previous application because of unemployment. Employment for common labor in Lincoln is for the most part seasonal and is, therefore, recurrent. Previous employers are construction companies, building and road making, and coal companies.

Sixty-four per cent of 72 of the 120 were common laborers, 18 per cent of twenty-one in the building trades, and the remainder were clerical or professional workers for the most part. Two school teachers were unemployed. Both had gone into the industrial field with the expectation of steady jobs and were laid off in November. The families of both were given relief and the wage earners were loaned money to secure and go to teaching positions the second semester of the school year.

Families Suffer.

The number of persons affected by unemployment is not appreciated until the total number in the families of these wage earners is considered and their dependence upon the job known, according to Miss Barker. In 28 per cent of the families applying to the society for relief because of unemployment there were five to seven persons in each family; 26 per cent had three to five members; 19 per cent had seven to nine members; another 19 per cent had less than two members; and 8 per cent had nine members or over.

That the families of these unemployed men are living considerably under the minimum standard for health and decency is clear by comparing wages and rents with the division of the weekly wage standard of $24.50. Forty-eight per cent or 56 families of the 120 live in houses renting for less than $15 per month only 8 per cent or ten families meet the $25 per month required for decency.

That unemployment is increasing in Lincoln is shown by statistics compiled over a period of several years. Unemployment was greatest in 1928 during February when 28 per cent of the total 236 relief cases were caused by no work. During the same month in 1929 the total number of cases was 291 of which 30 per cent was caused by unemploymnet. In January of this year there were 329 cases of which 29 per cent were caused by unemployment, 328 in February of which 25 per cent were caused by unemployment; and 295 in March of which 13 per cent were caused by unemployment. The total amount spent for relief alone during those three months of this year $6,781, and 36 per cent of this expenditure was necessitated by unemployment.

Patel, India Insurgent Leader, Thinks Gandhi Would Be Willing To Discuss "Inependence" Terms

BOMBAY, India May 17—(U. P.) The Mahatma M. K. Gandhi, imprisoned author of the India independence movement, probably would be willing to compromise with the government by participating in a round table conference on dominion status, V. J. Patel, one of the most powerful leaders of the present turmoil, revealed today.

There is a large group in India, however, which will have nothing to do with the British government and will be satisfied only with complete independence, Patel said in the first interview he has granted any foreign correspondent since he resigned the presidency of the executive assembly.

Patel, leader of the swaraj, or home rule movement, said he believed that if a question of dominion status versus independence were indicated the present struggle against Britain would be turned into a domestic issue and be fought out between two parties in India just as governmental issues were fought out in Ireland.

"If there is any further delay in solving the problem," Patel said," there will hardly be a man in India who will even talk of action with Britain."

Intensive Campaign Planned.

The leader, who arrived this morning from Allahabad, where he participated in the congress working committee's decision to intensify the campaign to undermine British authority here, is 58 years old. He is of venerable appearance, with white flowing beard and mustache, somewhat like the late John Burroughs, American naturalist. He was dressed in undyed, coarse homespun smock and loose trousers. He wore no socks, but had no low slippers.

Patel offered his visitors a well known brand of American cigarets, explaining that he refused to smoke British cigarets. He said the clothes he wore, which cost $1.44, have been adopted by millions and has severely damaged the British foreign cloth market.

"A round table conference, proposed for next September, can yield no results unless the government induces the India national congress representatives to participate," he said. "There are two opinions in congress circles.

Two Different Opinions.

"One favors participation if the British government declares the conference is for the purpose of framing a scheme for full and immediate dominion status, the other holding that we stand for complete independence and separation from Britain.

"I am inclined to think Gandhi would be willing as a matter of compromise to participate if he were assured that no other question except a grant of complete dominion status would be discussed, and the conference would be held on the full and free independence of India within the British commonwealth of nations without reservations.

"While I say this, I am not unmindful of a large body of opinion in the country which has nothing to do with the gvernment. In any case, I am certain that the movement now afoot is so deep rooted and has captured the imagination of the masses to such an extent that a representative policy will, instead of putting it down, merely stimulate it.

"I desire to pay tribute to the Indian women who for the first time in history have entered into the spirit of the struggle to such an extent that they have cast off the veil and left their seclusion and are seeking the freedom of hundreds of thousands of others."

MRS. WOOTTON TELLS MODERN IDEA OF UTOPIA

More leisure hours for the working classes and greater opportunities for cultural as well as physical development is "The Modern Idea of Utopia," which Mrs. Barbara Wootton of London, England, noted British lecturer, discussed before members of the Lincoln chapter of the American Inter-Professional institute at the Lincoln hotel Saturday night.

Mrs. Wootton, representing the Worker's Educational association, district of London, is on a five weeks tour of the United States to inquire into the nation's adult educational problems. For the past four weeks she has been lecturing in the east and last week addressed the American Association of Adult Education at its convention in Chicago. Lincoln is the western-most point of her trip and she leaves Sunday for New York where she will set sail for England within a week.

"I think Americans are charming, if that answers the question you intend to ask," she said. This is her first visit to the United States she said, declaring that she wished she had more time in which to tour the entire nation. She was impressed with Lincoln and said that the nation had appealed to her more the farther west she had traveled.

Dr. F. A. Stuff, president of the institute, presided. Musical entertainment was provided by Mrs. August Molzer, Mrs. Edith B. Ross and Miss Lillian Eiche.

Greater Lincoln

(A Song for the Pioneers)

Here is the story of how Lincoln grew:
White covered wagons, children a few,
A plow in the prairie, a sod house or two—
And then the name of Lincoln!

Refrain: O Pioneers of Lincoln Town,
Though long and hard the way—
Your children's children gather here
To honor you today!

The glory of Lincoln is not in its gold—
It shines in the story the long years unfold
Of brave men and women, with courage untold,
Who made this Greater Lincoln!

Refrain: "Press on and on to newer goals,"
We hear their voices call;
To build the City of their dreams
We labor one and all.

There's Lincoln the Old Town, and Lincoln the New;
West Lincoln, South Lincoln, East Lincoln, too;
From Burnham to Belmont, Havelock to College View
All linked up with Lincoln!

Refrain: Oh, beautiful upon the hills,
Where gold of sunlight lies,
Our homes shall cluster near and far,
Our stately towers shall rise!

CANNON TO KNOW DECISION MONDAY

Trial For Dabbling In Stocks May Face Prelate.

Three New Bishops To Be Elected This Week.

DALLAS, Tex., May 17—(U. P.)—Bishop James Cannon, jr., of Virginia, probably will know Monday whether the Methodist Episcopal church, south, is to place him on trial for his activities in the stock market.

It appeared tonight that the episcopacy committee which has been considering charges against the bishop would make its report Monday. His alleged offense is that of maintaining marginal accounts with a New York brokerage house.

Dr. F. P. Culver, Cisco, Texas, chairman of the committee, said it would hold a special meeting tonight. He declined to state the purpose of the meeting and whether it would reach any decision in the Cannon case.

Cannon May Ask Trial.

If the committee reports the Virginian for trial, the presiding bishop will name a group of twenty-five to thirty to hear the evidence. The committee can return three verdicts—acquittal, suspension or expulsion from the college of bishops. If Cannon is convicted, he may appeal to the conference as a whole. Its vote would be final.

If Cannon goes to trial, his opponents are expected to question him also on his participation in the 1928 presidential campaign and his handling of republican campaign funds.

Some of the bishop's friends are reported to be urging that Cannon himself demand trial next week. It is probable he will do so.

Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy, is leading the faction hostile to Cannon. Their main objective, it is said, is to remove Cannon from the Methodst board of temperance and social service, of which he is chairman.

City Briefs

New Jury Coming—A new jury will report in District court Monday morning for three weeks' service. No criminal cases are set for the first week of the panel. Indications Saturday were that many of the cases would be settled. This, with a smaller number of cases than usual, left doubt as to whether the jury could be kept busy the full three weeks. The last jury was released the middle of the last week of its service.

Ready for Final Drive—County extension agents are winding up their efforts for membership in 4-H clubs in the county for the coming year, preparatory to final efforts during the next two weeks to bring the 4-H membership in Lancaster county over the 900 mark. Club enrollment in the county has shown a substantial annual growth for the last seven years.

Seeking Pigs—J. F. Purbaugh, county extension agent, spent considerable time during the past week, roaming over the county seeking young gilts for use of boys in 4-H pig club work in the county.

Have Parole Forms — Printed forms for parole orders for persons paroled from the bench in District court have been prepared by the county attorney's office to facilitate handling of such orders. Judge Frost, assignment judge, who is handling most of the criminal work, had been calling on the county attorney for such orders. The printed forms permit handling of the cases when all parties are in ccurt instead of necessitating a delay while an order is being drawn in legal form.

Havelock Notes.

Mrs. Fred Ballard returned home the first of the week from Rochester, where she had been for two or three weeks.

Five Reasons Why

women prefer Milady coffee and the drip method of making it: First—the Taste—it's so good. Second—its Freshness—it's never more than a day or two after being roasted that it is on their shelves at home. Third—Convenience—it's so easy to make the "drip-o-lator.. way. Fourth—the Saving—They save 5c on the can. Fifth—their Vanity—they like their guests to consider them good cooks when they leave their tables. One reason why men like Milady coffee—"It's so darned good."

What the Mode Especially Likes for Afternoon Is the Casual Dressmaker Suit

On the whole, the afternoon ensemble belongs to the runabout, rather than to the formal type, and here again Paris indulges its liking for the dressmaker suit, how charming they are, and yet how easy to wear. And white blouses with black suits give the great note of chic for afternoon. Even the soft silk suit has a casual quality that adapts it to outdoor, rather than indoor wear ideal for luncheons and teas for the whole active life of Spring's daytime.

Goupy, Redfern, and Chantal use tweed, printed crepes, usually white on a black, dark brown, or navy-blue ground, and star-sprinkled crepes also contribute their new chic. Doeuillet-Doucet uses silk suiting with a diagonal hair-line stripe for her suits with a short peplum flounce. Peplums are often the basis of this mode. Lelong gives them a slightly drooping movement in back, and Talbot makes a smart black crepe suit with three, flat, overlapping peplum sections, rounded up in front. Watch for this up-in-front movement throughout the mode.

Tear Drops in Demand

The craze is for tear drop—beads which greatly resemble the real ones in size and color are in demand and are to be found at Gold's. Some, of course, have been colored, and others are of crystal. These are the outstanding feature of costume jewelry today and extremely popular priced for graduation gifts.

Off white—these new shades are deftly carried out in the lovely Mousquetaire gloves—so exquisitely soft and smooth, such lovely tailoring and in the most desirable of all glove styles—Pull-ons.

The May Issue

of "Everybody's Health," a magazine published by the Minnesota Public Health association for the good of the health of all, with suggested diets, etc., is available free to you, if you just write me a note that you want one. I'll send it free. This issue contains articles written by nationally recognized authorities on health, and the most eminent doctors of the country have contributed suggested diets and menus especially necessary to wives and mothers who are anxious to secure the vital information concerning necessary food elements for kiddies and her family. There are no strings to this offer. I happen to have a number of them and will be very glad to mail my reader friends copies.—"MODERN EVE."

If You Ask Me

The really hard part of housecleaning is the furnishings themselves, like drapes, curtains and blankets, and there is no need of running the risk when the Modern Cleaners are so skilful and inexpensive in their workmanship. The blankets won't shrink, and will retain that lovely new fluffiness which is impossible with home laundering.

The "Blue Moon" Contest

in search of the girl with the golden calf—like Sue Carrol displayed in last week's picture at the Stuart, Orkin's discovered a number of ladies who qualified and were awarded the prizes. These Lincoln girls were the winners:

Pauline Bilon
Beulah Trout
Florence Heyne
Winifred Haus
Ruth B. Kuhn
Mrs. P. A. Dickson.

Miss Ann Hansen

Of the Bobbette Beaute Shoppe is back from her southern trip where she has gleaned a host of new ideas which she is anxious to pass on to her old patrons. Her efficiency as an all around beauty operator will make this announcement of value to lots of folks.

Competition Between Two Silhouettes

Both agree, of course, about the full-length skirt, with even hemline and vertical fullness falling from a high point on the hips. One believes, however, that the long, straight line is the best, and the other believes that it is wise to interrupt the length.

So we have a rather bashful, but very charming little peplum that only slightly alters the vertical feeling of the dress, and a bolder, diagonally placed and pleated peplum. Lelong uses peplums and sometimes stiffens them with horsehair or through the use of semirigid failles.

Straight, unbroken fulness, however, is not downed, and it pays tribute to its classic inspiration. One of the loveliest dresses, this season, is a pale blue crepe romain. This falls in heavy folds from a draped girdle with an encrusted bow in front. This designer has another interpretation of the unbroken skirt that she gains by a full, circular cut and expresses in lace and chiffon. Lanvin uses a restrained circular cut, resulting in a very beautiful skirt that is vertical when the wearer is still and that sways lightly about the feet with movement.

Mrs. Champe Says:

"A careful analysis of each individual's hair texture and a method of treatment prescribed particularly for that hair texture, expert, licensed operators with deft, trained fingers to wrap and wave your hair, assure you the perfection of charming and distinctive permanent waves of lasting quality. The charge for the complete permanent wave is always $5.00—to pay more would be wasteful—to pay less might be risky. Test curls given on every head of hair free of charge. Shampoo and finger wave by Lincoln's best finger wavers, $1.00. Emme Champe's Beauty Shop, in Sears-Roebuck's store, 10 and O. Phone B6871.

Details Are the Links of the Mode

Clever purses and costume jewelry do much to reconcile any outfit, new or old. There can't be too many of these or too great a variety in any wardrobe now-a-days, so we lay stress on them as graduation gifts. Florentine bags carry off all honors for all 'round wear—and come in envelope and vagabond pouch styles—beige and black and white ideal for street—eggshell and white "add to" the summery frocks—while the raffia straw embroidery envelopes just call for vacation days—the voguish black patent combined with white washable calf are doomed to travel. Pastel shaded linens, fabrics and Austrian suede are others in this vast showing at Hovland Swanson's. Pastel reigns in the lovely chokers and necklaces and we find—prystaline tear drops and polka dots in the styling. Tiny graduated pearls combined even as alluringly with colored crystal. Some are one strand, others have two and three. Make her happy on her day of days with accessories from Hovland Swanson's.

People Who Select

their gift with taste and tact are envied—and remembered. Not that such friends and relatives are all divinely inspired—no, indeed! They simply have learned where to buy—Ben Simon's Gift Nook is outstanding in that distinctive class of really charming remembrances for the girl grad. Charming jewel and dresser boxes, powder boxes, stationery, lovely etchings, clever hat stands of gay colored wood, flowers—the bloom, a removable brush—so handy and so attractive. The grad soon to become a bride will be the recipient of a pair of colonial mantel lamps or superb davenport lamps, in bronze or brass. It's an education in the truly monumental as well as novelty gifts. Just rove through this department of individual gifts at Ben Simon's.

Broken Sets of Dishes

in one's cupboard are as inevitable as the seasons. Somehow they just accumulate, and after a few years of married life, one finds bits of several sets collected together for everyday use, and the really pitiful part about it—there would not be much loss if they were thrown away—since a new 32 pc. set of matched pieces can be purchased for as low as $5.95. That, however, I'd never ask since it isn't necessary. Those odd bits may be traded in on one of these sets at Hardy's and lessen the cost considerably. This trade in sale is a feature of their fine China department, and this opportunity is available on any priced set.

When We Think

of Gift buying at Schulte's, we think in terms of cents—for there are so many attractive things which can be purchased for $1 and less. Just now, for graduate gifts, their jewelry section is outstanding. Pearls of many sizes, styles, description and color are offered at prices of 20, 25 and 50c—double strands of chokers, long single strands of tiny ones, as well as unusual combinations of glass and pearl, wooden disks and beads, leathers, etc. When the kiddies beg to be "dressed up" on the last day of school, the solution is easy, for at Schulte's I found adorable silk crepes with tiny ruffles selling for $1.95 and many pastel colors were included in the assortment. While you're jaunting through this store take notice of the clever rayon pillows of many colors selling for only $1.

No Matter How High Sounding

or complicated the making of your refreshments for the bride's parties, there's nothing which can take the place of ice creams and ices—and they have a special way of adding to the attractiveness of your table when the individual moulds are used. Especially nice for the prenuptials, are the individual cupid on heart, slipper, roses, bell and heart centered bricks; or, if you like sherbets, there is nothing nicer than Kosers, pineapple, orange, raspberry and lemon. Special for next week is Koser's delicious black walnut ice cream. Kosers has become a by-word for ice cream lovers of Lincoln and should be so, for its dairy products are delivered daily to all parts of the city.

Skins You Love to Touch

don't automatically become that—it is from the use of the proper skin elements in your cosmetics. "Charles of the Ritz" creams and cosmetics are essentially based on every imaginable skin need—and a more complete line of high class and elegant line has never been heard of. This can be found at Gold's, and is just another gift suggestion for graduates.

The Boy or Girl Graduate

On the threshold of the business world could not possibly receive anything nicer as a graduation gift than a wrist watch. You may purchase them in white gold with guaranteed movement for as low as $15 at Harris Sartor's Jewelry store. See the many styles shown there.

MINERVA'S MAIL

Take Your Troubles To Minerva

Responsibility of Children to their Parents Too often overlooked by Modern Youth.

The responsibility of parents to their children is such a common theme that its soundness is taken for granted, but a sad little letter which came to me today inspires me to consider another angle of the question of responsibility, namely, the responsibility of children to their parents.

In brief, the aforementioned letter pictures a tumultous home wherein the father and mother are constantly engaged in angry quarrels while the daughter, craving peace and quiet, threatens to leave her parents and live alone. The daughter, the writer of the letters, asks if I blame her for leaving home.

If we face the facts, we must admit that there are too many homes in which the father and mother apparently find little zest in life except in hurling verbal unkind words at each other. The exuberance of youth has long left them and for one reason or another they have neglected to maintain outside social contacts. They have fallen in a rut, have become fretful with the course of life, and being bored or denied of all else, they do nothing but scold and bewail each other. In other days they may have loved each other deeply, but the passing years have found them barren of a real interest in life about them.

In such a home the children, provided they are beyond the tender years of youth, may do much to change the sordid conditions of their parents. Instead of running away to their own pleasures, the children might well give some thought to bringing pleasures to the unhappy parents. Invite father or mother, or both of them, to accompany them occasionaly to a picture show or some other form of entertainment. Tactfully bring the younger friends into the home and see how contagious fun really is, even to one's parents.

The thoughtful son or daughter may even show diplomacy in averting parental verbal battles. When a storm of words is approaching, cleverly change the subject of conversation to something more congenial. The tired and irritated parents are not quarreling really because they enjoy it but because, lamentable as it may be, they can think of nothing else to do.

It is conceivable that sometimes situations are such that a son or daughter may leave home to avoid constant quarrels, but it is certainly more inspiring when the son or daughter draws on his or her wits and diplomacy and love, to avert these unhappy affairs.

Love Without Money.

Dear Minerva: I would like your opinion about a certain matter. Do you think a man should marry if he has no money saved and is getting so small a salary that it is hard for him to save anything? My sister is engaged to a man whose circumstances are just about like that. I say that if a man really loved a girl he wouldn't think of marrying her until he had a good job and some money saved to support her within moderate means. But my husband tells my sister that if she and the man are in love, they should get married, furnish a home by buying everything on time and that both of them should go to work and make the best of things. Please give us your advice.—Mrs. K.

Answer—It is is quite useless to lay down general rules. I can imagine circumstances under which young people who are desperately in love but have little money, might do just what your husband advises, marry on credit and be very happy building up a home and bank account. I can see how the possession of such a home and the responsibility of paying for it and keeping it up and the companionship of the loved one might really be the "making" of the young couple.

But that wouldn't be saying that it would work out in the majority of cases. It might prove to be just the opposithe. Both young persons might get tired of the eternal grind and weight of their responsibilities and their nerves might get so wracked that quarrels and boredom would result and break up the home. Unexpected expenses are more likely to crop up after marriage than not, and the burden of expense make the young people wish they had never married. There is a saying, you know, that "when poverty comes in at the door, love flies out of the window."

In the majority of cases, therefore, I think the theory advanced by you would be correct. The safest and wisest course would be for the sister's fiance to have a fairly good job, one with a chance for advancement ,enough money saved to buy furniture for the home and , some additional for a "rainy day."

There is always the question nowadays of whether the girl should continue working. Unless she can have help in the care of the home I think it is very unfair for her husband to expect her to keep on with her old job and take on the duties of a new one ,that is, of home-making. But every case is a different one, and, as I said before, no general rules can be safely laid down.

Should Be Generous.

Dear Minerva: Can you help me. I lack tact. I have an acquaintance with an old maid. She is quite interesting but cares only me for the sake of being thrown in company with my husband and the possibility of meeting other men through us. From conversations with her aged mother who is quite infirm I can see that the possibility of getting my husband has crossed their minds although they are not bad sorts. They would like to discover in me some grounds for unworthiness of such a fine man as they consider my husband to be. My husband is away on business for long periods of time during which she keeps in touch with me just enough so we can't become estranged. Just about time for his arrival she perks up and—well he will be here in two weeks and she is planning a party for him.

It is for him because her mother said, "Miss —— is giving a party for your husband and will invite her chums." I wish you could see the chums, all between forty-five and fifty-five, not pretty. What I want to do is to tell this old maid in a very nice way that giving parties for men while their wives languish in loneliness for weeks and weeks is very disheartening. Of course she cannot invite him except through me and she thinks I am too polite to refuse her. I wonder if I should have my husband write her a polite note of thanks saying he is very tired after the journey and ask her to invite me some time during the long periods of time when he is away. Or what shall I do? Will you say please? A. W.

A—Oh, my dear, be charitable. It isn't going to harm you in the least bit to share your husband's companionship a bit with this woman who lives a man-less existence. The way you state the situation, it sounds more than a little absurd. However, I can see the other side, too. This unmarried woman evidently finds great pleasure and probably inspiration in the friendship of your husband. As you say, through him she has opportunity of associating with other men. She is frank about it. There is apparently no intrigue or plot to it. So long as your husband is not bored, why worry about it.

Many a woman who has somehow passed up matrimony, or been passed up, greatly misses the mental stimulus of associating with men. They lead bleak, dreary lives. If this friend of yours can enliven an otherwise dreary existence through her friendship with you and your husband, even though it does take a form of hero worship, you can afford to be generous enough to smile indulgently over it.

If she in any way encraches upon your territory—really does—you can squelch her through polite but firm refusals of her invitations. But I wouldn't do it lightly.

The Chosen Girl.

Dear Minerva: The letter from "Lenore" calls for this reply. Several times there have been letters written by girls whose lovers have married another. They have my sympathy and a bit of my envy. Let them put themselves in the other girls' shoes—in my shoes. For I am one of the girls who married a man who forsook his old love. I loved him as much as she did, and neither she nor I knew much about the other. Since my marriage I have learned of his former engagement, that perhaps he does still love her, and that I can find insufficient reason for his causing us both misery. If she could know the heartaches that it has caused me, it would make her own grief seem more bearable. I have no way to turn.

He was frightfully untrue to her and to me all the time before we were married. She does not know thus but I do. He has "told me everything" so that our life ahead may be started anew. He is trying to shut her out of his heart and mind but she is there. And what can I do? To divorce him would bring no happiness. He would be miserable and both the other girl and I place him first, though he doesn't deserve it. He would not go back to her, on my account, because I am sure that he honors me and cares enough for me to be that decent, and of course I would be unhappy without him. I have no grudge against her. If she could only realize that her sentiments are only rose-colored glasses over a hideous background she would see that she is better off.

I am twelve years younger than she is, and she is older than he I feel too inexperienced to know what to do. The whole business has set my nerves on edge, and all my happy hopes for the future have turned into disillusionment.

"Leonore," though it may not be you, remember that your sweet heart was not perfect, or he wouldn't have turned so quickly, loving you sincerely. And put yourself in my shoes, I know it all and can do nothing. RUTH.

A—Well, my dear, you mustn't permit yourself to brood over this past love. Do your part in constructing a happy life through zeal-

Prof. Gray To Offer Concert Spanish Music

Professor Herbert Gray of the university conservatory of music is to offer a musical concert Sunday afternoon, May 25, at the Robbins studio, on the works of Manuel de Falla, a modern Spanish composer who is probably one of the most outstanding and well-known composers of today.

For some time, Professor Gray has been interested in Spanish music and has as his special hobby the works of Manuel de Falla. Up to this time, he is one of the very few who has done any research along this special line. He alone has presented the sonata here in Lincoln. He also has the distinction of being the first to give it in this country. De Falla's works have been considered of such value that of late the Boston symphony devoted an entire week to the playing of them. De Falla's international reputation was established at Paris.

Professor Gray has spent a number of years in research along the various lines of Spanish music, particularly in respect to its origin and in an explanation of its peculiar forms and rhythms. He constantly keeps in touch with Spain through his friends there. He has spent a great deal of time in Latin America in trying to interpret and understand better Spanish music.

One of the most astonishing and enlightening things which Professor Gray has found out in his study is that there is a peculiar connection between modern American music or "jazz," as it is more commonly termed, and Spanish music. According to Mr. Gray, jazz has developed directly from the Moors through the Spaniards and not originally from the negroes as is generally supposed. It is an intricate rhythm which can be developed only in a highly itricate civilization.

Preceding his recital, Professor Grav will discuss briefly Spanish music in general and De Falla's in particular. The concert is to be given under the auspices of the Spanish club of which Professor Gray has been made an honorary member. This event is one of the most important undertakings of the Spanish club this year and was made possible through James Cuneo, instructor of Spanish, University of Nebraska who has been very instrumental in the development of the club. The detailed program will be announced later.

The Nebraska Boys in Blue are meeting together this week. Meeting for the fifty-fourth time since they struggled side by side more than three score years ago on the battle fields of Shiloh and Antietam, at Chickamauga and Fair Oaks.

They fight only in memory now. Two conflicts lie between the present and the day that their war was the late war. For them, time can never dim the grimness of those two or three or four years, when they went out for a cause as their grandsons were to do in the next century, but the same time can dim the reality of the years that once were so bitter, and the veterans recall them as down a long perspective of the corridor of the years.

They are remembering these three meeting days—Abe Lincoln, Andersonville, Bull Run, Emancipation, the Army of the Potomac, Appomattox, the boys who went out from Pennsylvania and Ohio and New York with them, those who never returned, those who have fallen in peace—those who were at the encampment last year—and aren't this—and never will walk in campaign hat and brass buttoned jacket in another parade.

Time Cuts State Camp To 470.

One time, it was in 1892, Nebraska had 9,235 G. A. R. members. There are only about 470 now. Of these, perhaps half a hundred will be at the McCook encampment Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. There are about seventy posts in the state, where there were 356 in the greatest days, when the G. A. R. was a young man's organization. Many of these have but one member or two. In a few cases, affiliated organizations help maintain the post, where the veterans are too ill or feeble to meet the requirements of a charter, but who are unhappy at the thought of disbanding.

Nebraska was first constituted a provisional department July 10, 1867, fifteen months after the first post had been organized at Decatur, Ill., by B. F. Stephenson. Silas A. Strickland of Omaha was appointed provisional commander and John C. Cowan of Omaha was made assistant adjutant general. As no reports were made to national headquarters, the department was dropped from the rolls.

In 1874, J. E. Philpot was appointed provisional commander, but he was relieved at his own request in August. Paul Van Der Voort, who had in February resigned as assistant adjutant general of the department of Illinois because of his removal to Omaha, was appointed.

First Meet June 11, 1877.

Otto Fink of Lincoln was appointed senior vice commander, Webster Eaton, Kearney, junior vice commander, Lee S. Estelle, Omaha, assistant adjutant general, and Alexander Schlegel, Plattsmouth, Otto F. Steen, Omaha, T. J. Majors, Peru; R. M. Grimes, Kearney, and C. J. Dilworth, Red Cloud, council of administration. At the meeting for the organization of a permanent department held in Omaha at the first encampment, June 11, 1877, the posts represented included Sedgwick No. 1, Kearney, Phil Kearney No. 2, Fort Omaha, McPherson No. 4, Fremont, Custer No. 7, Omaha, Canby No. 8, St. Paul, Baker No. 9, Columbus, and Abe Lincoln No. 10, David City. The Sedgwick, McPherson, Canby, Baker and Abe Lincoln posts still function.

The Nebraska department was the seventeenth to be admitted to the national organization. Illinois, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Ohio, New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Maine, California and Nevada, admitted the same day, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Vermont, Potomac, Virginia and North Carolina, organized simultaneously, and Maryland, reorganized, had seniority.

The first three encampments were held in Omaha in June. April 8, 1880, Lincoln had its first G. A. R. encampment, the fourth of the department.

Bates Heads Plattsmouth Post.

Milford A. Bates has been commander of John McConihie post of Plattsmouth for three years. The post, organized April 26, 1884, has seven members at present. Mr. Bates was a member of the 95th Ohio volunteer infantry, Company B.

In Arapahoe, Henry Tyler is one of three Civil war veterans living there and members of Garrett post No. 120. He and one other old soldier pay per capita tax and are considered members-at-large with the privilege of voting at encampments. Mr. Tyler, although eighty-seven years of age, attends all state meetings and many national encampments.

Buford post of Central City has Alfred Brown of Palmer, one time member of the 53rd Ohio Volunteer infantry, Company I, as its commander. Three adjoining posts have been consolidated with the Central City group, as their membership had grown so small.

Buford post No. 23, was organized in September, 1879, with twenty-seven charter members, one of whom survives. During these years, 256 men have been endorsed upon the roster, but the number has dwindled to ten, with five of them more than ninety years of age.

Commander Fifteen Years.

The nine members of the Ainsworth post have Peter D. McAndrew as their commander. For the last fifteen years, Mr. McAndrew has had this position in a post organized in 1883. During the war he was a member of the 9th Illinois cavalry, Company K.

Although John Brown post of Exeter had a membership of 137 at one time, it now has but four. Frederick Neuemann, who was ninety last September and has his mental and physical faculties, is commander of the group, organized September 8, 1881, with 18 charter members. Mr. Neumann served in Company B, 42d Illinois, and has been commander since 1923.

There are only two Civil war veterans left at Lyons, R. S. and J. D. Hart, brothers of eighty and seventy-eight years. No post has existed there for a number of years, although at one time Lyons had the largest membership in northeast Nebraska.

Dr. Garver Carries On.

Dr. W. F. Garver has been acting as commander, quartermaster, and adjutant of William Mix post at Humboldt, and performing a number of duties faithfully, to keep the charter. The post was organized in 1872, and now has but three members. Dr. Garver served in the 18th Indiana.

Only one member remains in the post at Republican City and he is James A. Smith, a member of the 22d Ohio in the war. For a score of years he has been commander of the fifty-five year old post.

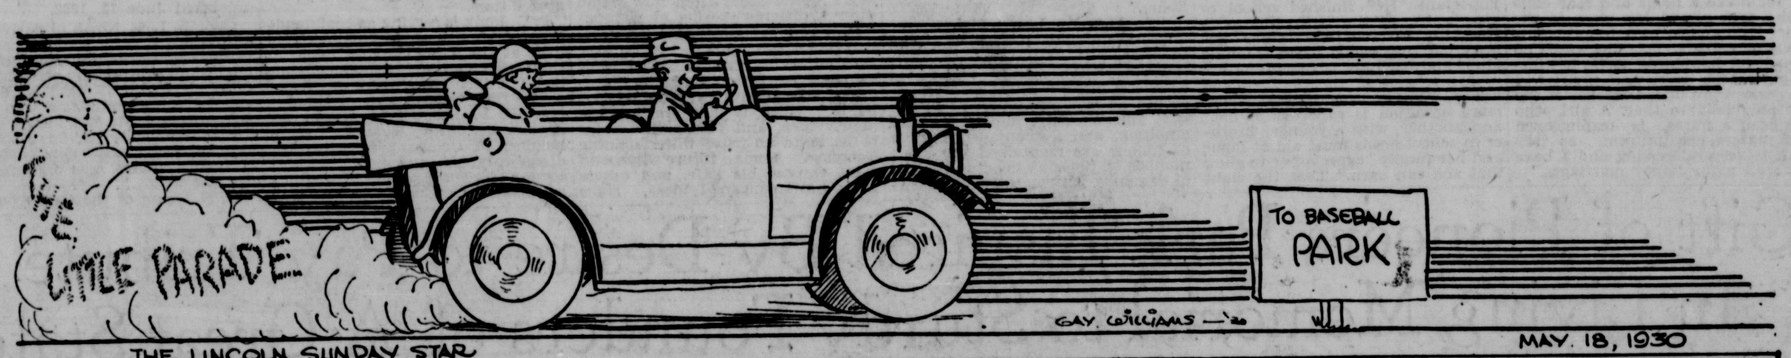

Four years ago, members of John N. Gere post of Table Rock elected John H. Lehman as commander and he has continued to serve. The post, in existence since 1883, has three on the roster, Mr. Lehman served in Company F, 118th Illinois infantry.

J. B. Archerd is commander of McPherson post of Fremont, organized March, 1876. Mr. Archerd, commander for a dozen years, was a member of the 13th Iowa. McPherson post numbers eleven in its membership.

Six Remain At Grand Island.

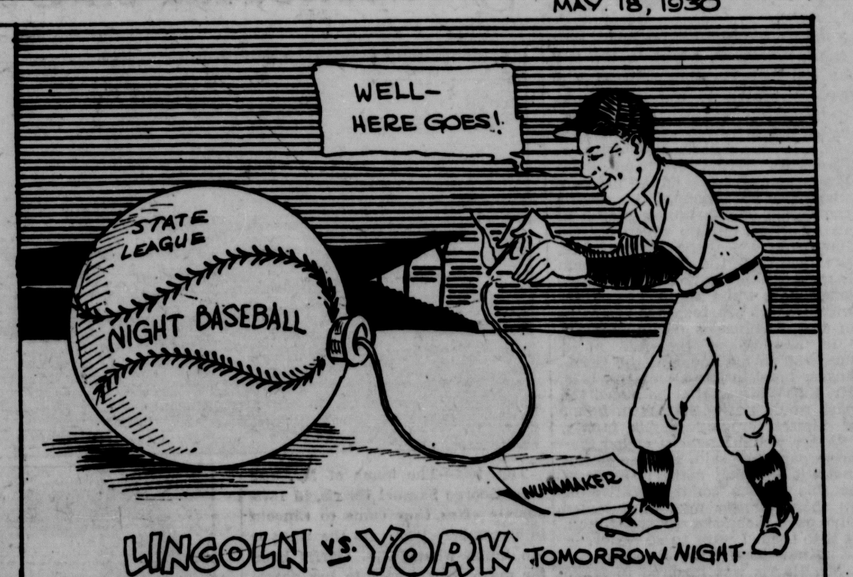

Organized August 29, 1877, Lyon post No. 11 of Grand Island has six members. For the last eleven years,

WE EXPECT TO MARRY, ADMIT NEBRASKA UNIVERSITY CO-EDS

HUSBANDS WITH THE "OLD FASHIONED" VIRTUES WILL BE IN DEMAND, SENIOR WOMEN INDICATE IN ANSWERING QUESTIONNAIRE.

University of Nebraska co-eds aren't adopting any startling professions for their more or less permanent life work.

No aviatrices. No big game hunters. No paleontologists. No astronomers.

But they will be the despair of potential employers. For the most of them, their labors are but a prelude to marriage. With the fundamentals of education theirs, they are untrue to our best feminist teachings, they are those terrible creatures who will harken to the honeyed words of some subtle youth and forget that behind the typewriter lies freedom.

Three-quarters of them admit they wouldn't be interested in a career without anticipation of marriage.

Two and one-half times as many admit that marriage is necessary to their happiness as insist in strong-minded fashion that no man is essential to their felicity.

Only the occasional one is to find a pot of gold at the end of next year's rainbow. The pot of gold—the freedom to do as they desire for twelve months— the reason that there is no gold pot—lack of gold.

Demand Old Virtues.

And they might be their grandmothers in their demands for husbandly characteristics. Little modernity is expressed in their requirements, but rather the age-old requisites of high and sturdy virtue.

These facts came out in a questionnaire sent out by The Lincoln Star to all senior women. No signatures were required and the anonymity undoubtedly led to honest answers.

On an average, seventy-three of every hundred plan to teach. The remainder are divided between a couple of dozen normal professions and marriage. The large majority will stay in Nebraska, but their work will take many into as different spots as Alabama, Ohio, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, Kansas, Washington, Iowa, New York.

With few exceptions, the girls plan to make some definite use of their education for a year or two. About 4 per cent will marry this summer or in the fall, providing the fiance's job proves profitable and the income large enough to support a wife and a home. Here and there is one who is undecided, teaching, graduate work, staying at home, tipping the mental see saw. One of the most interesting years is travel in Europe and South America, with a journalism position to follow.

Some Hope For Marriage.

Some frankly hope that work is a prelude to marriage, one admits in melancholy note that "it was," some say "it might be," or "partially," "probably," and the faint few haven't determined. Of those who take a absolute "yes" and "no" viewpoint, by far the largest number, a third say "no," the others cry "yes."

The length of the prelude is a varying thing, from June 8, which almost makes the wedding processional a continuation of the commencement parade, to ten years. Two to three years is the popular period for those who want or expect to marry, and three years definitely or one year come next in line. One doesn't crave marriage before she is 30, and another wants it "at least within the next five years."

One who doesn't know just how long she wants to wait writes that "desirable timber is scarce," and she who craves marriage at 30 says that work is not a time-filling occupation for her. Another facetiously admits her marriage date is "when I fall in love—again." One obliging young thing is willing "whenever he says 'will ya?'" and hopes her marriage and work will acccmpany each other. In another instance, a senior woman who says with exclamations that her work is not a prelude to marriage says that she expects to marry—never.

Old Arguments Revived.

Of course, those who could not make the most glittering career take the place of marriage, offer as their reasons the normality of the wedded state, the desire for a home and family, the need of companionship, the fear of old-age loneliness. The affirmative and negative sides offer interesting contrasts.

"The castle of my dreams is that I will ultimately dwell in a love nest for two" writes one who had evidently just returned from a Glyn movie. Another who finds the single state most attractive writes in modern style with the thought "I wouldn't give a tinker's dam for the best man on earth." A morbid graduate-to-be thinks a lone career satisfactory "because I have no other choice—in all probability," which is sort of a hopeful ending.

"One must live even though there's no prospect of marriage," thinks one who hopes marriage is on its way to her, and an intelligent answer runs in this fashion "Marriage is the best career, but some other career is an excellent substitute, for building, working, and achieving with no chance of morbid introspection day in and out because of lack of something to keep you busy."

Scientific Reason For Marriage.

"When we go against nature, we won't have complete happiness," says the scientist. "Marriage means more to me than a career ever could," "Marriage means nothing to me," "I want my career and then marry some one interested in having me continue it"—there are three sample answers. "Marriage should not interfere any more with a woman's career than wtih a man's," is the modern version of one girl. "Marriage is one of the richest experiences of life," "I prefer independence the career brings rather than the bondage of marriage," "Marriage is the ultimate happiness of women," "I would be satisfied with my work because of the economic future in my field, and marriage is said to be so uncertain."

It is not every girl who admits that marriage is necessary for her life's joy. Perhaps the unsigned sheet helped them to say that even in this day of financial independence that a regular pay envelope can not wholly crush a desire for the unpaid, seldom appreciated, never recognised job of combination cook, housekeeper, nurse maid, doctor, and psychologist.

"I would find other interests," one declares philosophically, a second believes that "At present nothing could induce me to marry. It would make me utterly miserable. Later I may feel differently." One girl, all of whose answers display long thought, thought going back through the years, answers that marriage is necessary to her happiness because "Because, I want the social standing it gives as well as my individual happiness." She would make it that the woman alone is condescended to quite as she was in Victoria's day. Another who has an atavistic complex, in the face of women steeple jacks and deep sea divers, admits that she finds happiness only in marriage "Because the usual type of woman can't have an interesting career."

Would Wed for Love.

No other reason than that she is "very much in love' 'serves as reason for one girl and an honest answer says that "I don't know," although she believes marriage is a real part of happiness. "I am told such is natural biology," "It is one phase of human life, and without participation in all, happiness is only half realized," "Marriage is not necessary to my happiness. I shall not allow it to be," says one who apparently knows only of emotional control, and not its loss.

"I'm single and happy," sings 20 —with the thought that she will be at 40, too. "What else can a woman do but make a home and rear children," is a companion piece to the belief that women have found no interesting careers. This girl needs no stimuli for happiness, as "It is within one's own heart and soul," and brave days are ahead for her if she can only hold to that. A girl, who has been a nurse, is disillusioned and prefers her uniform, as "My work is very interesting and I have not seen many happy marriages."

What wouldn't they do next year had they absolute freedom of choice. "Travel" say one-half of them. And the reason they don't, as is the reason so many things aren't done, lack of funds and more lack of funds, school debts to be paid, their families need them, their families want them at home for a time.

Many Want More School.

One would study music at Northwestern, another would attend a school of interior decorating, a third would write, and does not because she must first test herself and gain all varieties of experiencs, the fourth would go to New York to try for the stage, and lack of self-confidence and funds combine to put her in the school room, and numbers would continue college work.

The South American traveler is doing as she wishes. Several who plan to teach would arrange no other program. There are those who would marry, and are, so that some, if not everybody's happy. One would like to marry, but hasn't found her man, others must wait until the important "He" finished school or puts a bit in the bank. Study in Germany attracts one senior woman, but that would mean teaching later, and teaching is something not in her scheme of life. A worn and weary woman would rest, "but more ambition is expected of me," and another, with a younger brother in school needs must aid at home and her family "expects her to show that she can earn." That the right man is lacking is the only reason one co-ed isn't marrying, and another finds that retail establishments do not crave to employ both she and the husband, the fiance at the moment, and that is interfering with marriage plans.

The smart conversation of university sets sounds very well when caking, but when the girls think of husbands, they think of virtues rather than vanities. One admits that "I don't even demand a husband,' 'but the majority have some real ideas on what they will demand in the men they marry—not an Adonis chin or a cigaret ad complexion. The young lady who finds marriage an aid to social standing, but who also believes that a woman's career should not be impeded even for marriage, has a fascinating list of requirements. She might quite as easily get a rake out of her jottings, but she might also get a president or a very nice young American —"Gallanry in his outlook and actions, intelligence, love technique well developed, a cosmopolitan attitude, casualness, love of living."

Honesty Leads List.

Truthfulness or honesty leads all the rest, with faithfulness closely following. High morals and good character bring in their share of response as leading virtues of necessity, and sincerity, intelligence and ambition, and a spontaneous sense of humor are mentioned the same number of times as heading the list of demands. Although it is the fashion to scoff at anything as antique as love, numbers do not mind placing it first of the requirements, and good health is quite as popular as love with the co-eds.

"Blue eyes, originality, ambition" are the three demands of the European traveler— probably because "He" has blue eyes. A pleasant disposition isn't mentioned as often as one might think, but some of the more discerning girls place it first. A Kate Douglas Wiggin character once was made to say that her husband hadn't been much of a provider but he always had a pleasant word, and she thought that might mean more than an ever-filled wood box. While a 1930 senior probably doesn't read Mrs. Wiggin, the thought is the same.

Some Prefer Money.

"Well-groomed' 'is an initial demand of a few, and not to be scoffed at, and another few demand height, and just a few, a very few, place paramount importance on money. It is highly possible a survey a dozen years from now would offer a different rating of virtues.

One girl demands that her husband be affectionate, above all else, to another he must have "a well-rounded Christian character," another, "the ability to make a good living," which is only frosting the money idea, and personality seems to be quite an asset with feminine Nebraska. Some future husband must respect his wife, and others must have congenial ideas, show leadership, but not too much, we might suggest, be considerate, loyal, unselfish, frank, manly, or kindly. "Dutiful" to his wife,' 'says one.

But this one expresses them all in one phrase. He may be tall or short, handsome or short on looks, a future Rockefeller or a meek white collar man, but the girl who demanded that he just be "attractive to me" said a thousand demands in three words.

Nebraska "Boys In Blue" Hold Annual Reunion

Henry K. Bevier has been commander. He served in the 72d New York volunteers.

Farragut post No. 25 of Lincoln was organized September 8, 1879, with thirty-five charter members. Andrew Church, who served Company H, 86th Illinois, is the present commander. The post has a present roster of 75, although it has had more than 300 members on the roll at one time.

P. C. Funk is serving as commander of Glover post of Holdrege. He lives at the Grand Island home in the winter and at his summer home in Funk during the warm months.

The Dick Oglesby post of Huntley has W. F. Randell of Ragan for commander. Mr. Randell 'was a member of Company C, 156th Indiana infantry, and has been post commander for a decade. The Huntley post was organized in 1890 and now has but two names on the roster.

Hyatt Commander At Wayne.

Casey post No. 5 of Wayne has Jackson Hyatt, once a Union soldier of the 11th Iowa infantry, as its presiding officer. The eight present members belong to a post organized February 2, 1881.

Two former soldiers are members of N. W. Graves post of Bradshaw. For a dozen years, H. W. Fay has been commander and he served with the 47th Iowa. This post was organized June 12, 1882.

Captain L. H. North of early fame on the plains is the senior vice commander of Baker post No. 9 of Columbus. Of all present presiding officers, Captain North is distinguished as the only one who went from Nebraska to the war, a member of Company K, 2d Nebraska cavalry. Baker post, now composed of four members, was organized in the late '70s.

G. B. Chase of the Geary post at Juniata has held all offices, and has been commander for the last two years. The six members have not met for some time, but they keep their charter. Mr. Chase of the 4th Michigan cavalry is commander of a post established in 1881.

Mitchell post No. 38, G. A. R., was organized in Waverly March 6, 1898, with nineteen charter members. It now numbers four, although it has had 86 members on the roll. H. R. Beachell is adjutant and quartermaster, and has served twelve years as commander. He was with his regiment, the 15th Pennsylvania, when it aided in taking the Confederate treasury, May 5, 1865.

When Morton post was organized in Hebron, it had an original membership of fifty-six, but at this time the roster has only two names. John W. Hughes, member of the 133d Pennsylvania volunteers, Company F, for nine months, of Company A, first battalion, Pennsylvania emergency infantry for three months, and later of the 17th Illinois cavalry for two years and until the close of the war, is commander of the post, which was founded in 1880.

Charles H. Adams has been commander of Live Eagle post No. 147 of Fullerton for one year. Mr. Adams served in the 4th New York artillery from October, 1861, to the close of the war. The Fullerton post was organized about 1883.

Graves Heads Post 5 Years.

Harvey Graves has a total membership in good standing of five in his Randolph post No. 352 of Randolph. He has served in that position six years and the post was organized April 17, 1902.

For five years, F. M. Thornburg has presided over Veteran post No. 84 of Falls City, organized January 19, 1882. The post has a present membership of five, although it has had 198 names on the muster roll. Mr. Thornburg served with G company, 11th Ohio cavalry.

T. J. Smith, the present department commander, likewise served as commander of J. K. Barnes post of McCook. This post was organized August 2, 1885, and now has a membership of ten. Commander Smith, who has been the post presiding officer for twelve years, was a member of the first batallion, 13th U. S. Infantry.

For the last decade, L. D. Gray has been commander of Rawlins post of Beatrice, which was organized December 27, 1882. Mr. Gray served with the 13th Iowa volunteer infantry. Rawlins post has six members now.

Two Survive At Aurora.

Only two members remain in the Zach-Chandler post of Aurora, which was organized about 1876. John W. Grigsby, for three years commander, was a member of the 46th Illinois, Company K.

John D. Askwith, commander of Governor Harvey post No. 182 of Tilden, is the only remaining G. A. R. member in the post, and keeps up the post alone. There were on the roll call 86 members, but the number was lessened until but the one survives. Mr. Askwith is 84 years old, and has been commander for nine years. He served with the 15th Pennsylvania cavalry. The post was organized in 1884.

Heckathorn post of Tecumseh, of which J. P. Souders was commander in 1890 and again for the last few years, was organized May 8, 1880, with thirty charter members. C. H. Halsted, a charter member, the first to sign the document, is one of the nine present post members. At one time, the group had a membership of 237. Mr. Souders first enlisted at Peoria, Ill., in Company E, 139th Illinois, and later re-enlisted and saw prolonged active service in the south. He will be 85 in July.

Reaser Head At Gothenburg.

Forty years ago, Thomas W. Martin post was organized at Gothenburg, but the original membership has been reduced to four. C. Reaser has been commander for five or six years, his admittance to the group being through service with the 75th Indiana.

George Evans, who saw service with the 12th Indiana cavalry, serves as presiding officer of Richardson post of Harvard and has for ten years. The post, now numbering five members, was organized early in the '80s.

Memorial post of Shickley has as its commanding officer S. Strayer, who is the surviving member of the group. He has had the position for eighteen years in a post organized in 1883.

For the last three years, John O. Riley has been commander of S. A. Strickland post of Hastings. This is one of the larger posts under present conditions, with a membership of twenty-five, and was organized April, 1878. Mr. Riley went to war with the 28th Iowa infantry.

Commander Ten Years.

C. C. Washburn post was organized in Broken Bow August 12, 1882, and still has a membership of fourteen. M. K. Hagadorn, who served with the 97th Pennsylvania, has been commander for ten years.

The four members of the Gibbon post of the G. A. R. have Chester Holloway as their commander. Mr. Holloway, who served with the Ohio infantry in the war, has been commander for four years. The Gibbon post has existed since February 2, 1882.

In 1908, Joseph M. Mahaffey was elected commander of Elizabeth Upright post of Bennet and was chosen again in 1923, and has continued to serve for the seven years. Mr. Mahaffey was a member of the first battalion of the Pennsylvania light artillery in the war. The post was organized April 29, 1881, with thirty-seven charter members, but the present membership is but two.

George Grier has been commander of the W. T. Sherman post of Friend for a dozen years. The post was organized about forty-five years ago.

Deffer Head Since 1918.

Since December 6, 1918, Augustus Deffer has been the presiding officer of Russell post of Fairbury. Mr. Deffer's post has a membership of four and was organized in 1881. The commander served with Company A, first and second regiments, District of Columbia infantry.

John J. Walley has paid the dues of Edgar post No. 16 for the last five years, as he is the only member in good standing, and he has done double duty as commander and adjutant. Eighty-nine years old now, Mr. Walley recalls service with the 152d New York infantry in Company H. This post was established in 1885.

At one time, S. R. Curtis post No. 89 of DeWitt had ninety members, but of that number but two are left. T. U. Whiffen, being the only resident member of the post, and post adjutant for the past twenty-five years, comprises the entire executive staff of the post and keeps the post in good standing. Mr. Whiffen is 82, enlisted in

Gift of Pioneers Park Inspired By Desire to Pay Tribute In Living Memorial to Sturdy Founders of A Great State

Saturday, beginning at noon, Lincoln's new park, a gift to the city as a tribute to the pioneers who gave Nebraska to the Union, was dedicated. The tract, which comprises 500 acres of virgin Nebraska sod, is the donation of John F. Harris of New York and Palm Beach, a son of two of the pioneers whom the park honors. He also is the donor of the bronze statue of an American buffalo which centers Harris circle near the east entrance, significant of the wild life which roamed these same virgin lands long before white man ever set foot within what are today the borders of the Cornhusker commonwealth.

In announcing the gift at a luncheon in his honor at the Cornhusker hotel in late December, 1928, Mr. Harris stated that he hoped the park would not be named in honor of himself or any of his family. "Rather would I have it called Pioneers park," he said. "Please do not make it Pioneer; make it Pioneers as this gift is commemorative of all those pioneer men and women who gave Nebraska to the Union. It is to them I want to do honor."

Knew That They Endured.

Mr. Harris was inspired to make the gift, not because he spent his young manhood in Lincoln. It was because he knew the trials of the pioneers and the fortitude with which they bore their burdens, he having learned of their dauntless spirit from his parents who are numbered among the builders of this inland empire. His belief was that if honors were due to one they were due to all.

John F. Harris is the son of George Samuel Harris and Sarah Fisk Harris. In his early manhood he spent several years in Lincoln, and it was here that he learned to love the great open spaces of this vast out of doors country of the midwest. Here it was too, that he formed some of the friendships that will go ith him through life. Among these were George, Frank and Mark Woods.

Longs For Lincoln.

After living in Lincoln a few years Mr. Harris went east. And, although the most of his life since has been spent there, he has never lost his longing for Lincoln, and his love for its people. It was this that prompted him to remark, almost two years ago, that he would like to "do something big" for the city. Out of this came his donation of Pioneers park, and later his gift of the buffalo.

George Samuel Harris, father of John F. Harris, came west in 1863, going to Hannibal, Mo., where he took charge of land sales for the Hannibal & St. Joseph railroad. Mr. Harris put all his strength and energy into this project and was sucessful. During his life at Hannibal he was active in conducting a Sabbath school for negroes.

From Hannibal, Mr. Harris' business as a railroad land commissioner took him and his family to Burlington, Ia., where they lived two and one-half years. Land in Iowa selling rapidly, in December, 1872, he was transferred to Lincoln, there being in this state at that time a large body of unsold land. The same work and energy that was given to his work in Hannibal and at Burlington, was given to the task here, and soon everything was well organized.

Work Hard and Long.

In those days stenographers were not so common as now. Often he would work long into the night.

In September, 1872, while going from New York to Gloucester, he was shipwrecked and remained in the water eight hours before being rescued. He never recovered from the nervous shock, and it was this, coupled with the exhaustion of his nervous energy through close application to his work, that led to his death on June 12, 1874. He was 59 years old.

Left fatherless at five years of age, Mr. Harris' care and training in early life devolved almost entirely upon his mother. While still a youth he embraced the principles of Christianity, professed them before men and made them the governing rules of his life. In 1836 he entered Oberlin college intending to prepare for the ministry. Circumstances, however, caused him to change his purpose, but not his principles of life.

Powers Were Overtaxed.

In 1847 he moved to Boston where he was engaged in business for many years. A man of large ideas and purposes the west lured him as the only place wheer there would be full scope for their outlet. His success was marked, and when he came to Lincoln he allowed himself to be so far and so excessively engrossed in business that, strong as were his powers, physical and mental, that they were overtaxed. In his direction of the land affairs of the Burlington he presided over one of the largest land businesses in the country.

The land which yesterday was dedicated to those who, with him were pioneers of this state, was purchased by his son, from the same railroad company for which the father was land commissioner when he first came to Nebraska.

On February 12, 1845, George Samuel Harris married Sarah Fisk Bacon, at Chelsea, Vt. She was born at Southbridge, Mass., June 24, 1821, and died in Lincoln, December 28, 1912. Shortly after their marriage, with Mr. Harris she went to Indiana, where in 1846 their first child, a daughter, was born. They soon returned to the east, however, where they remained until they moved to Hannibal, Mo.

Unable to Find Home.

Coming to Lincoln, they at first had a difficult time. After some hunting, however, they managed to find a house, and their home was established at 1610 K street, this first house and the one which later replaced it, remaining Mrs. Harris' home until her death.

Her son, John F. Harris, probably best describes her as she was known, not only by her children, but also by her friends who were numbered by the legion. He says, in part, in a foreward to his mother's memoirs:

"To live to a great age requires a sound constitution, a serene mind and simple, natural, wholesome habits of life.

"She lived many years, but to the last her memory was unimpaired, her reasoning faculties were powerful, and her interest continued to be, as throughout her life, not in trivial things, but in subjects of political, commercial, philanthropic and religious importance.

The ninth letter of the alphabet might have been taken out of my mother's vocabulary almost without her knowledge or without sensibly affecting her conversation. She talked of conditions, not herself. She did for others, thought of others, not of herself. Those things strictly personal she did not deem of interest to others.

Was Great Reader.

"My mother's range of reading was wide and she read with understanding and analysis, not accepting that which met her eyes unless it also met the requirements of her judgment.

"She rarely considered the small, unworthy acts of small, unworthy people but when she did it was with a great charity, and also with great brevity; perhaps she felt quite unable to understand them or their acts.

"The mere possession of things was nothing to her. They were a burden if not capable of utilization. That was important, that was valuable, 'ich could be put to some useful purpose. Pride of possession probably never occurred to her. If it did it was immediately rejected as being unworthy. Nor did the lack of things make her unhappy. The serenity which she enjoyed and diffused came from a nature extraordinary well balanced, devoid of vanity, dignified but never repinning, hopeful of the future and thankful for the past.

"Her sane, wholesome mind, her self-abnegation, her thoughtfulness of others created a presence that was delightful, and have left with those who knew her a memory of a reverence and love that will endure with their lives."

The Man Is Revealed.

In this same forword also are thoughts expressed by Mr. Harris which explain, probably more than anything else, what he had in mind when he gave to Lincoln his gift commemorating the pioneers of this state. They reveal the man, John F. Harris. He says:

"Those in this life who seek happiness in the manner or form of consideration of self, rarely find it; those who forget self, whose thoughts are concerned with the welfare and happiness of others, find that themselves which they seek to confer upon others.

"Self-abnegation creates an atmosphere the quality of which is often unknown to many of those who are fortunate enough to breathe it. They may not realize to what they owe the sense of quietude which it gives. The wise love it understandingly; it betokens to them a capacious, sweet, noble mind."

In giving the park to Lincoln self-abnegation was to the fore in all of Mr. Harris' acts and words. He wanted solely to revere the founders of the state, he declared, at the same time giving pleasure to the living and the generations yet unborn.

Nebraska Wesleyan Senior Makes Complete Artistic Bedroom Suite While Carrying Regular College Work

To make a complete bedroom suite in a single semester, aside from carrying regular college work is quite an accomplishment in manual training. Especially is this true when one is married and the furniture must meet the exacting demands of one's wife. Lowell Welsh, of Westerville, Neb., a student at Nebraska Wesleyan university, did that very thing ,and more.

The furniture pictured above is all the work of Mr. Welsh. Every piece of furniture in the room, even to the picture frames and the banjo clock, was made by him in the Wesleyan shop. The bedroom suite consisting of the bed, the highboy, the vanity dresser and bench is finished in cream enamel with blended green trim. The shop is equipped with an air brush for this type of finish work.

The chest which may be seen in the picture is in itself a work of art. It combines the beauty of a fine piece of walnut furniture with the protection of a cedar chest by means of panels of cedar in walnut.

This roomful of furniture represents much painstaking work and is an accomplishment of which the owner may well be proud. Mr. Welsh is to be graduated this spring. He has accepted a position as instructor of manual training in both the junior and senior high schools of Nebraska City for next year.

His work is characteristic of the high grade of work done in the Wesleyan shop. Much credit must be given to the instructor, Robert A. Hardin. He has been in charge of the manual training department at Nebraska Wesleyan for six years. He is a graduate of Nebraska Wesleyan and is now working toward a master's degree in the University of Nebraska. His own collection of work is remarkable both for its quantity and quality. Under his supervision some excellent work has been done.

The shop is well equipped, unusually well for its size. Its machinery includes turning lathes for both metal and wood, band and circular saws, electric planer and sander, and other modern equipment. There is also a forge for metal work and a power drill. Both the forge and drill were made in the shop, the work of students under the supervision of Mr. Hardin. An automatic saw file that files merrily away at a hand saw, a circular saw, or a band saw blade while one cleans his finger nails or eats his lunch is a very interesting as well as very useful part of the equipment.

University Students Will Desert Classrooms to Go On 4,200 Mile Field Trip

Deserting classroom and textbook and reverting somewhat to the ways of the prospector of old, twenty student geologists at the University of Nebraska are making plans for the annual summer field trip which is to start the second week in June.

During the six weeks in the open the party of geologists, under the supervision of Prof. E. F. Schramm, will travel approximately 4,200 miles visiting many mining districts, oil fields, and studying geologic formations in seven different states. The trip will be made in cars.

Western Nebraska fossil beds will be the first field study for the party after leaving Lincoln. Oil and coal fields of northeastern Colorado and detailed studies of the structures between Cheyenne and Laramie, Wyo., will be made familiar to the men in the field. From Laramie to Rock River, the party plans to spend two days collecting in the fossil beds of the Mesa Verde formation.

Mountain Trips Planned.

At Medicine Bow, the Como and Medicine Bow anticlines will be inspected and Hanno coal mines and oil refineries will be toured. Brick plants will also be visited. The Rawlins hills and the Haystack mountains will come in for an inspection from Hanno to Rawlins. At Wamsutter, the party will cross the continental divide and will study the formations of the Red Desert.

A bit of history will be introduced into the trip when, after inspection of the Rock Springs coal mines and the oil shale deposits at Green river, the party will trek to Church Buttes and old Fort Bridger. From Evanston, Wyo., the geologists will go into the Wasatch mountains of Utah. In the vicinity of Echo, the complex faulting of the land will be studied.

Will Study Copper Mines.

Salt Lake City will be the base of operations for a week during the tour, where the geologists will study the Utah Copper company's mine at Bingham Canyon, lead silver mines at Park City and the salt mines and smelters around the Utah metropolis. The party will then go south to Provo, and thence south between the Wasatch mountains on the east and the Valley and the San Pitch mountains on the west.

Permanent camp will be made at Marysvale, Utah, for the purpose of studying and mapping the Marysvale alunite and gold bearing formations. Breaking camp, the party will travel south to Zion park, and then to Fredonia, Ariz., and the north rim of the Grand canyon.

The Colorado river will be crossed at Lees Ferry and then the party will caravan across the famous Painted desert country of northern Arizona to Flagstaff. Many other points of interest in the southwest will be visited before the party strikes for Colorado, where they will visit the Cripple Creek, Leadsville, Trinidad and Walsenburg districts. Oil fields of western Kansas will be on the last lap of the 4,200 mile jaunt.

Aurora Man Born In State Celebrates 71st Birthday

John M. Beard, a former resident of Lincoln and a veteran Burlington engineer, is celebrating his seventy-first birthday at his home in Aurora today.

"What of it?" you may ask.

Well, the answer isn't found in just a mere birthday celebration, but in the fact that it marks a life of seventy-one years continuance residence in Nebraska. Born at Brownsville on May 18, 1859, eight years before Nebraska became a state, Mr. Beard holds the distinction which few can claim today of being one of the oldest native sons.

Official records give the title of being the first white child born in Nebraska to Bill Nebraska Kinney. The son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Kinney, he came into the world on June 10, 1854 at Nebraska Center. The record of his birth is contained in an issue of The Palladian. But that first official native son left the state before he was able to look after his own future. In fact, five days after his birth his parents contniued their ox team journey on to Utah.

Born At Brownville.

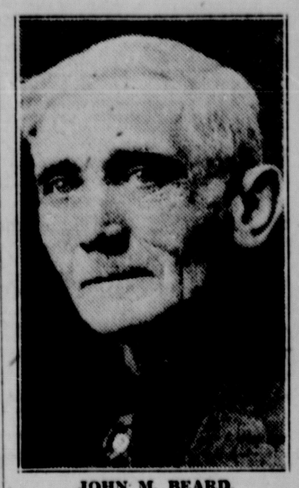

Many children were born in the wilderness territory during the six years that intervened between June 10, 1854 and May 18, 1859, but few are living today who have maintained a record for continuous residence in the state.

Mr. Beard's father, Joseph Beard went from Illinois to Atchison county Iowa and then moved to Nebraska territory in 1851. With his young wife he settled on a quarter section of land which is now the townsite of Brownville. A daughter was born in 1856. She died some years ago. The original farm was sold and the Beard family moved to a new home two miles west. There John M. Beard was born.

When Mr. Beard was nine years old his father sold the farm to Governor Furnas and it is still a part of the large Furnas estate. The Beard family moved to another farm south of Brownville. There John M. Beard grew to manhood and lived until his marriage to Miss Emma Hagadorn, the daughter of a pioneer family living near where the town of Stella now is.

Moved To Lincoln.

In 1889 Mr. and Mrs. Beard moved to Lincoln where Mr. Beard took employment with the Burlington. He later became an engineer and during the years that followed, until his retirement in 1916, he pulled trains over practically every line in the Burlington's Nebraska system. During all those years he had but one accident. That occurred near Lincoln in 1898 when the engine was derailed and he suffered a broken leg. During almost his entire service with the Burlington, Mr. Beard has made his home in Aurora. Today he and Mrs. Beard live quietly in a splendid home in west Aurora, surrounded by their six children and fourteen grand children.

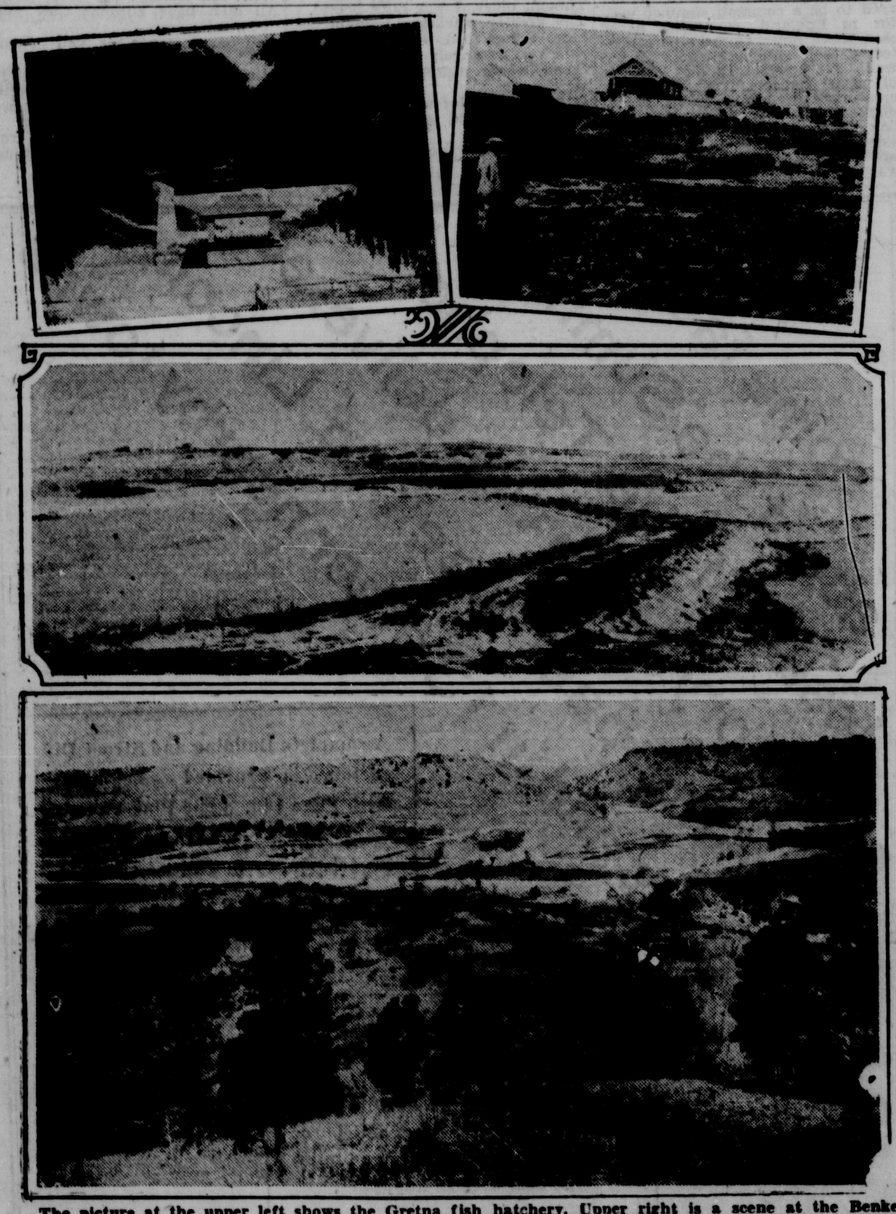

JOHN M. BEARD.

The Beard home is located on a six acre tract which has been improved and developed attractively. All conveniences necessary to comfort have been installed.

Though proud of Nebraska and his long residence in the state, Mr. Beard seldom discusses the drab, hard years of his boyhood and young manhood, when hard winters, hard work, few pleasures, and a continuous struggle to eke out a living from the soil were the largest part of living.

The reward of those struggles is found in the comfortable home in Aurora where Mr. and Mrs. Beard are today looking back at them with mellowed memories, increasing pride, and few regrets.

State-Stocked Streams and Lakes Enticing Sportsmen of Nebraska

Induced by a fixed determination in the minds of the members of the Nebraska game, forestation and parks commission that the pleasures of the great out-of-doors in Nebraska shall be conserved and multiplied for present and future citizens, the streams and lakes are being rapidly stocked with game fish. By annual planting of trout, perch, bass, crappies, catfish, bullheads, sunfish, pickerel and pike, all adapted to Nebraska waters, and the elimination of the native coarse fish—carp, buffalo, gar and suckers—which each fall are seined from lakes and streams and sold on the markets, the waters of this state are being made places of increasing interest and importance to young men and old boys and everyone else who has not lost the native impulse to drop a baited hook in the water and pull out a finny monster.

The plantings are being made from two sources—from sloughs, irrigation ditches and ponds, into which fish run at high water times, and from the four fish hatcheries located at Gretna, Valentine, Benkelman and Rock Creek in Dundy county.

Last fall a total of 1,284,530 game fish were rescued from winter destruction in sloughs, ditches and ponds by agents of the game commission and placed in deep water. Most of the rescued fish were bullheads but perch and crappie in generous amounts were in the catch.

The four fish hatcheries last year contributed 2,154,979 game fish and frogs to Nebraska lakes and streams. These were quite impartially distributed over the state in the commission's fish car Waltonia and in special tank trucks. Bullheads, a never ceasing favorite with young and old fishermen, were easily first in number planted btu trout, bass and perch were liberally provided. An invoice of the plantings show: Bass 314,384, perch 349,675, catfish 85,244, bullheads 687,141; crappies 141,174, sunfish 89,256, pickerel, 1,276, trout 415,230, pike 17,999, frogs 53,600.

The hatcheries in which the seed fish are spawned and grown to planting size are attractive places. Because of their interesting character and the wooded surroundings the hatcheries are visited yearly by thousands of visitors.

Ten Year Program.

In another decade the waters of Nebraska will teem with game fish and lovers of the rod will not need to go to distant lakes and streams in search of quarry. The program of the game commission includes a continuance of annual planting on a large scale and vigorous enforcement of game laws devised to protect fish from wanton destruction and true sportsmen from the invasions of wholesale fish hogs who have not acquired the virtues of that patron saint of outdoor sport, Izaak Walton.

"BOYS IN BLUE" PLAN A REUNION

Company A, 124th Illinois infantry, and has lived in Nebraska sixty-one years. The post was organized March 9, 1882.

Seward post has only five members left of the 186 men who once belonged to Post No. 3. This post is maintained by the ladies of the G. A. R., who pay the per capita tax and keep up the post room. Only five members remain, and one of the oldest is M. M. Campion, more than ninety-one years of age.

About the time of the departmental organization, Reno post of Lexington was established. William Horner for the last five years has served as commander for the post of three members. He went out with the 5th Wisconsin.

H. B. Jewell is acting commander of Martin Stowell post of Peru, which was organized May 16, 1890. Although the post has had a membership of thirty-two, it now numbers but five on the roster.

Adjutant Twenty Years.

Since last August, because of the illness and death of the commander, Charles Watson, for twenty years adjutant of Old Abe post of Superior, has carried on the post duties. Old Abe, which once had a membership of 160, now has but three on the rolls. Mr. Watson will be ninety his next birthday. June 11, 1877 is the organization date of the post.

The only post in western Nebraska, Gering post of Gering, has George Sowerwine for commander. The post, whose eighteen living members are living in all parts of the Platte valley, has one charter member surviving, Arthur Fuller, residing at the Burkett home. Mr. Sowerwine has been commander for seven years of the post, which was established May 30, 1888. He served with Troop A and G, 2nd California cavalry.

William Balfour has been commander of the Baumer post at Nebraska City for six years. Only two names remain on the membership rolls. Mr. Balfour enlisted with Company I, 45th Illinois. The charter of this post is in the Memorial hall at Nebraska City. Mr. Balfour has lived in Nebraska sixty-two years.

Membership Falls From 399 to 15.

Department commander from May 1904 to the following May, second commander of Robert Anderson post of York, John Lett has also served his group as commander for the last fourteen years. He went with the Union forces in Company E, 11th Iowa. The peak membership of 399 in the post has been reduced to fifteen at this time, forty-one years after its organization.

Thirteen members remain in Nebraska's earliest post, Sedgwick of Kearney. Henry Stevens is the present commander, and has held the office for eight years. He was a member of Company F, 99th Illinois in the war of the '60s.

For twenty years, Charles Potter, now ninety-one years of age, has commanded Van Meter post of Alma. Although but two remain, "we will keep our post until 'taps' are sounded for the last one," the adjutant P. P. Bentley, writes. Mr. Potter went out with the 19th Iowa infantry in Company F. The post was organized in 1870.

Sheldon Peck of Company I, 6th Iowa cavalry, enlisted in September, 1862, and served until October, 1865. He is serving as adjutant of John A. Dix post of Blair, and carries on the post duties since the resignation of the commander. The post, organized in 1880, numbers four members, although at one time 250 names were placed on the muster roll.

Post Started In Seventies.

One of the earlier posts, Abe Lincoln of David City, was organized in the '70s, and for three years Henry DeFord has been commander. Seven G. A. R. members are on the roll at this time. Mr. DeFord was a member of Henshaw's battery, light field artillery, Illinois volunteers, enlisting in November, 1862, and serving until discharged in July 1865.

H. C. Wolf has been commander of Garfield post of Red Cloud for ten years. He served with Company K, 79th regular Illinois, volunteers, during the war. Garfield post, organized in 1880 ,has but three members today.

Neligh post was organized in 1881 as the Fremont post, but was later reorganized as the Neligh post. Edward Dewey has been commander for five years and five members remain on the lists. Mr. Dewey was with the 31st Iowa.

For the last ten years, Leander Herron has been commander, adjutant, and quartermaster of Canby post at St. Paul. He served in the Civil war in Company C, 83d Pennsylvania volunteers. Canby post was one of the first organized, and from its established June 26, 1876 to the present time, 213 names have been mustered in. Five are living, but only two remain in the county, and Mr. Herron pays the per capita tax to retain the post. Mr. Herron is distinguished as a holder of the Congressional medal of honor, gained for valorous service in rescuing a group of persons surrounded by Indians beyond the last frontier of those days, out on the old Santa Fe trail beyond Fort Dodge, Kas.

PIRATES AHOY! - - By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

JEAN DUCASSE, DIRECTOR OF CORSAIRS.

Jean Ducasse is one of the French national heroes, highly honored in French books for boys. He was a patriot, a seaman of great ability, and a political administrator of the first order. He would have been made a marshal of France upon his retirement from active duty, but he was then too feeble to perform the duties of that exalted office.

He lived a long time in the service of France. He was born in 1646 and died in 1715, and he was in the French naval service as a mere boy.

It was the fortune of Ducasse to be placed in charge of important French interests in the West Indies when the Caribbean was infested with pirates, filibusters, corsairs and all kinds and degrees of buccaneers. Ducasse used these desperate fighters to forward the interests of France. With them he fought the Dutch, English and Spanish, and he was generally successful. He did not hesitate to go out with corsairs and take his chances in the forefront of the fighting. His exploits are so colorful that they serve as inspiration to many a young Frenchman who is employed in a more regular manner in his country's service today.

As a young man, Ducasse made his reputation fighting the Dutch. He performed prodigious feats of daring in the capture of a Dutch fort on the west coast of Africa in 1677, and in 1685, commanding a small fleet of corsair vessels, he captured a Dutch fleet, thereby making for himself a great reputation for bravery.

The French in San Domingo at this time were in an unhappy condition. The island was divided between the French and the Spaniards, about as it is still divided between the French-Negro republic of Haiti and the Spanish republic of San Domingo.

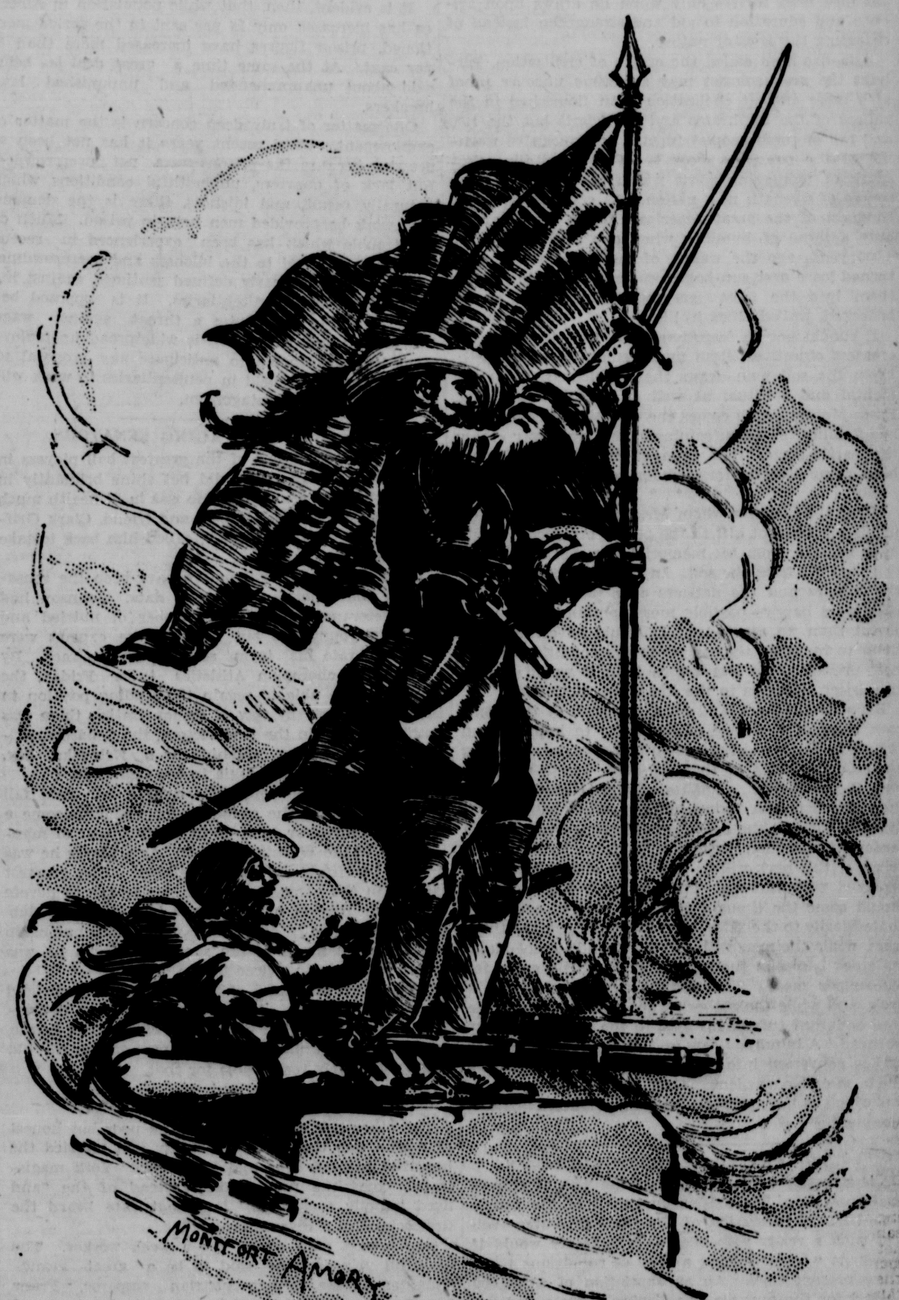

The history of this island, which was called Hispaniola by the Spaniards, has been a bloody tale from the time of its discovery by Columbus until the very latest dispatches relating to clashes between the Haitians and the United States Marines.

In 1691 the French colonists in San Domingo sent to France a petition asking that the hero, Ducasse, be sent out as their governor, to save them from the French filibusters in their midst, as well as from the Spanish, Dutch and English enemies all about them. The request was granted. Ducasse went out, with a very small squadron, and before he had even come within sight of San Domingo he learned that an English squadron was then attacking the French colony of Guadaloupe. He made directly for the harbor, and, to the amazement of the English, opened a deadly fire upon the enemy. He drove the English ships out of the harbor, and pursued them to Barbadoes.

When Ducasse arrived at Port de Paix, San Domingo, he carried with him plenty of prestige, but not a great deal of force to back up his authority. The French colony was in a state of chaos. Most of the planters had been killed in the frequent clashes with the Spaniards. An overwhelming large part of the population consisted of women and children. These could do little toward clearing the formidable jungle growth that covered the land. They wanted and prayed for only one boon: transportation back to France.

The French filibusters who occupied parts of the island were as much a problem as were the hostile neighbors. These fellow were great fighters where booty was the reward, but when the Spaniards came by land to lay waste the French towns, the filibusters were generally off at sea. They saw no profit in fighting merely for the sake of fighting, or for the defense of French colonial towns. When they were ashore, they were a lawless, roistering lot, causing much trouble to the French authorities.

One of the first cares of Ducasse was to organize the filibusters into a body of patriots. He promised them loot, but insisted that they must work under his orders. The filibusters had great confidence in this naval hero, so they undertook to obey him.

Ducasse raised the French flag.

Ducasse was a firm believer in the theory that the best defense is a strong offensive action. He concentrated many of the scattered colonists at French Cape, and placed in charge of the defenses of that place Laurent de Graff, a Walloon buccaneer whom the King of France naturalized as a French subject after a series of bold exploits against the Spaniards in which de Graff distinguished himself.

Then the new governor of the unhappy little colony sent a defiant message to the Spanish governor of Havana, telling him that the Spanish cruelty to French prisoners in Spanish San Domingo would have to be stopped, or that the French would proclaim "no quarter" for Spaniards captured in future engagements.

It takes a desperate sort of courage, for which a certain type of Frenchman has a peculiar genius, to hurl defiance at all possible enemies when you're trying to struggle to your feet after a knockdown blow on the chin, a month of typhoid and pneumonia, and a boil on the back of the neck. Ducasse was a native of the province of Gascony. If you've ever read or witnessed a performance of "Cyrano de Bergerac," you will get the significance of that circumstance. The word gasconade, meaning a boastful and defiant behavior, comes from the word Gascon, a native of Gascony. The Gascons of the more picturesque sort have a feeling for the dramatic, and they often dramatize themselves and their Cyrano ways quite successfully.

Ducasse, having looked over his sick colony, his discouraged widows and orphans, and his powerful enemies, threw down the gauntlet to Havana, and prepared to go out and capture a Spanish town.

But first, by way of giving his men a little practice, he would whip the English.

The French filibusters, apprized of Ducasse's scheme, were captivated. Here was a Gascon who could lead them to loot and glory! On to Jamaica!

Jamaica was the most prosperous of all the British colonies in the West Indies. It was already the base of operations for many successful English buccaneers.

Ducasse had three vessels, supplied by the home government. The corsairs more or less resident in French San Domingo had a few small vessels. Ducasse proposed that those who had ships join him with their own bands of buccaneers, and that those who had no ships join on as hands before the mast and landsmen. So a little fleet,

FLESH AND EARTH.

There are few who have not experienced that desire to be alone and close to Mother Earth. Perhaps it has been disappointment or sorrow which has revived that primitive bond of sympathy between flesh and earth but in it may be revealed the forces which created the finest type of citizenship in this amazing America.

Only the pioneers of every great nation fully understood and appreciated Mother Earth. Even when the wind blew mightily, the heavens were afire with lightning, and the rain beat savagely down, the pioneer found in it a challenge to his courage which lifted his spirits and gave a song to his lips. No snow was sufficiently deep and no cold bitter enough to strike fear in his heart. That is why the word "Pioneer" is one of the most glorious in the English language. It encompasses a definite quality of courage and faith and it embodies the highest ideals of humankind in their hunger for home and fireside. It calls to mind a rugged simplicity which is untarnished by artificiality.

That is a magnificent memorial which was formally dedicated to the memory of pioneer men and women in Lincoln Saturday. The gift of a distinguished American business man, John F. Harris, to the city of his early boyhood, Lincoln—Pioneers park will keep alive in the hearts of future generations of Nebraskans the splendid traditions of a great era and a mighty race. At this time we are still close enough to that epic period of pioneering in Nebraska to draw strength and virility from it. But fifty and a hundred years from now, when the towns shall have become great centers of population, when the soil shall have been robbed of its richness, and the farm shall have gone through decay, there will be need for those lessons acquired on the knee of Mother Earth.

No great civilization has died in pioneering. It has been centuries later, generally, when luxury and wealth replaced privation and poverty that nations which were mighty fell, and left only dust-covered ruins to mark the scene of early triumph. Why? Because man thrives only when he draws upon science and education to aid and strengthen instead of defeating the laws of nature.

Asia has been called the cradle of civilization. Perhaps the archaeologist may sometime uncover proof of a more ancient civilization than flourished in the valleys of the Euphrates and the Tigris but the rise and fall of these peoples furnish an impressive warning of the supreme necessity of keeping alive that spark of pioneering spirit which is the only true source of strength in a nation. By contrast with the conquest of the great American desert there can be only a sense of humility when one reads that over 4,000 years ago the waters of two great rivers were turned loose over sun-baked wastes of sand to convert them into the most gorgeous palm and flower bedecked, walled cities in history.

It should not be forgotten, then, that to realize its greatest objectives, flesh must remain close to earth. From the soil man draws that which sustains his mental and spiritual as well as his physical being. From Mother Earth comes the qualities of courage, of adaptability, of resourcefulness and simplicity. From the earth comes that urge of creation which has been going steadily forward for countless years.

What the pioneers whom Mr. Harris commemorates in his magnificent gift to the people of Lincoln would have us take from his memorial is a warning not to drift too far from the soil. In spite of the hardships, the worries and the dangers of a primitive country they were happy—possibly more contented and more joyful than we are today. It would be difficult for them to reconcile themselves to the conditions which now prevail in no less degree than it would test us to subject ourselves to the life which they lived.

Between that era and this, however, is the common bond of the hope of humanity to improve and progress. Little did the people of Lancaster, standing upon the summits of that 500-acre tract which is now Pioneers park, visualize a capital city of more than 80,000 people, living in beautiful homes, surrounded with all the conveniences of modern life, the center of a region prodigiously rich. In time the drives of this park will be lined with stately trees and bordered with flowers. Then to those who enjoy it should come the thought that the haze of campfires floated lazily to the skies, oxen browsed upon the thick grass, while the men with rifles in hands, crept along the creek banks in the hope of getting wild game for the supper meal. The wagons were drawn into a circle, and while the gathering shadows thickened, the tired emigrant turned his eyes to the glistening stars overhead. A hundred years and bleak, desolate wasteland is converted into flourishing cities and farms which resemble gardens. Only a memory—a tradition which is inseparably a part of Pioneers park—remains.

THE CRY FROM PORTO RICO.

It is sincerely to be hoped that the plea of Governor Roosevelt of Porto Rico on behalf of the people of that island possession of the United States will meet with a ready response, as it certainly would if Americans were permitted a view of conditions there at the present time. An appropriation of $3,000,000 is asked for the purpose of relieving distress and assisting in the rehabilitation made necessary by the recent terrible hurricane.

To properly understand the situation in Porto Rico it must be borne in mind that the population of the island in 1920 was 1,299,000, and that it is now probably 1,500,000. At the former figure the density was ten times that of the United States, while 78 per cent of the population is rural, there being more than 600,000 landless workers. These are almost entirely dependent upon seasonal jobs, some working in the sugar industry, some in tobacco and others in coffee.

The hurricane destroyed large numbers of the coffee plantations and sent thousands of the workers and their families to the towns and cities on the coasts, where they are living in the most abject want, some dying for the want of sustenance. There are no factories or other industries to give them employment and they are dependent upon the government and charity for support.

Tremendous progress has been made in Porto Rico since it was taken over by this country. Schools have been extended to all parts of the island, farm bureaus established and the accomplishments in sanitation and public health have been phenomenal. Governor Roosevelt says, however, that these movements must cease for the time being if help is not obtained, and to allow this to happen would be little short of disgraceful.

The Porto Ricans are full citizens of the United States, made such by an act of congress, and that they were not further advanced at the time they came under American rule was no fault of theirs. Spain provided no schools or other advantages, and paid absolutely no attention to health or sanitation. At the time of the World war Porto Ricans flocked to the American flag, and they showed that with proper food, clothing and direction they were the equals of any soldiers. They are not lacking in intelligence, and with the advantages now available to them there is good reason to believe that they will develop into Americans of as high class as any. Such result, however, cannot be expected in one generation.

The immediate need is for financial relief, that the people may be properly nourished and not allowed to starve. There are other problems, such as the introduction of industries to provide employment for the dense population, but these may be discussed after hunger has been appeased.

THE ICE CREAM INDUSTRY.

The magnitude and importance of the ice cream industry of America is not a matter of general knowledge. Even the dairy farmer, who, through it, finds a market for millions of pounds of milk and cream, has little conception of its amazing growth.

O. E. Reed, chief of the Bureau of Dairy Industry, is authority for the statement that approximately 6,000,000,000 pounds of milk are utilized annually in the manufacture of ice cream. The 4,000 factories in the United States made 1,740,000,000 pounds of ice cream, which required 6,000,000,000 pounds of milk and 209,000,000 pounds of butterfat, 243,000,000 pounds of sugar, 174,000,000 pounds of milk solids other than butterfat and 5,000,000 pounds of food gelatin.

The figures are impressive enough for they reveal the immense market furnished products of the farm. But they do not show the thousands who are furnished gainful employment as a result of the well-known American sweet tooth for ice cream.

As a matter of fact ice cream is a distinctive American institution. Its manufacture as an industry had its begining about the time of the American revolution. The first newspaper advertisement offering ice cream for sale seems to have appeared in The New York Gazette of May 19, 1777. By some authorities Dolly Madison was given credit for introducing ice cream into the social events at the White House during the administration of James Madison as president while others credit Mrs. Alexander Hamilton with being the first to serve ice cream at a notable social function. Now the urchin on the street knows what a pleasure it is to attack a dish of the frozen dainty.

THE PRISON CENSUS.

Census figures should furnish a very definite answer as to whether crime has been increasing. Unofficial tabulations indicate the number of people confined in prisons in the United States will reach upwards of 100,000. Sixteen years ago a very careful enumeration revealed 69,000 prisoners in the various penitentiaries.

It is evident, then, that while population in America has increased only 16 per cent in the period mentioned, prison figures have increased more than 80 per cent. At the same time a great deal is being said about unapprehended and unpunished lawbreakers.

One matter of truly deep concern is the matter of employment. Until recent years it has not been so pressing because the prisons were not overcrowded. But lack of quarters, unhealthful conditions which naturally result, and idleness, there is the demand that work be provided men held in prison. Much of the trouble which has been experienced in recent months is credited to the idleness and overcrowding.

Yet there is a clearly defined sentimed against industrializing the penitentiaries. It is opposed because to do so constitutes a threat against wage standards. Now that there is widespread unemployment it is reasonable to anticipate any proposal to put the thousands held in penitentiaries to work will meet with sharper antagonism.

JOHNSON'S RAMPAGING SENATORS.

Walter Johnson, one of the greatest ball players in the history of the game, did not shine brilliantly in his first year as a manager. He was in ill health much of last season but his old boss and friend, Clark Griffith,, of the Washington club, called him back to take the helm in 1930.

Under Johnson, the Senators have been the sensation of the American league to date. Johnson had some veterans and a large number of untried and unknown youngsters but none of the experts were willing to rate his team seriously in the race. By beating the champion Athletics twice Friday, the Senators were able to regain the leading position in the league. Just by way of demonstrating there was nothing flukish in the first victory, the Senators, aided by some superior pitching by a Nebraska boy, Liska, shut out Philadelphia in the night cap.

It is a long road before the curtain falls next fall but baseball fans the country over would welcome a pennant for Walter Johnson in his first year of management of the Washington club. As a player he was one of the finest figures in baseball. The greatest pitcher in the game, it was his misfortune to devote the major portion of his career to a tail-end club. Old Barney finally got into a world's championship but not until much of the speed for which he was famed had been sacrificed to age.

To Johnson goes most of the credit for the splendid showing of the club. His pitchers have been delivering the finest brand of ball of any club in the league, even including Philadelphia, and presumably the old master is largely responsible for that.

ANOTHER SIDE OF THE STORY.

The other side of the story of the poor but honest man who won the heart of nobility and married the beautiful princess was told in a New York magistrate's court the past week. Instead of the "and lived happily ever after," the magistrate heard the first echoes of a divorce proceeding.

The honest man was a $37 a week worker. The beautiful princess was said to be a great granddaughter of the former Austrian emperor, Franz Joseph. Drenched from a heavy rain, she appeared in the magistrate's court in sodden evening slippers on stockingless feet to ask for aid.

Her husband, summoned to the court, said he and his wife had separated because she insisted on having a maid and forced him to cook his own meals and to iron his own shirts.

Psychologists, who have been denying the truth of the old saying that opposites fare best in marriage, have been striking a significant truth in so far as they have been dealing with persons at extremes of the financial ladder. Customary habits of life cannot be quickly abandoned. Opposite tastes and opposite tempers are two different things. Opposite tempers are often an advantage. Opposite tastes inevitably lead to difficulties and to disharmony.

The sad story told in this New York court does not need entirely to destroy the American myth of success for the unfavored. So long as opportunity for development of the individual to his best capacities remains, the poor and the unknown may rise to the heights. But the development must come first, the success afterwards.

WOMEN USE TOO MUCH ROUGE

Los Angeles Times.)

Those Japanese girl "ambassadors of good will" are having the time of their lives traveling about from one eastern city to another and being greeted by public officials, women's clubs and other organizations. Evidently they are keeping their eyes open, and while they see much to admire in American life and were, as they put it, "greatly awed" by the president, they do not hesitate to point out what they consider the defects in our customs, especially those of the women of this country.

Speaking for the others, Miss Ashino said: "We all like the American women very much, but why will they use such a terrible amount of rouge and lipstick on their faces, particularly the older women, and why do they do it in public?"

These young women from Nippon need not think that there is the slightest touch of originality in what they say about the way our women "make up." Many Americans have made similar remarks and even stronger ones, for after all, an interrogation is a mild form of criticism, though it may imply a great deal of censure, whether merited or unmerited.

As for heavy make-up, these Japanese girls insist that in Japan it "simply isn't being done," and for a Japanese lady to powder or rouge her face or apply her lipstick in public would be a disgraceful act. And yet the women of Japan are assiduously endeavoring to gain the freedom and independence of their American sisters, and who knows but that they soon will be giving public demonstrations to how to apply the contents of a compact or how to wield the lipstick?

Here and There

England And Our Tourists.

(New York Times.)

The Earl of Derby, coming to see the Kentucky Derby run on May 17, is president of the National Travel Association of Great Britain. He sometimes makes speeches for the "Come to Britain" movement. Eighty per cent of Americans who make the eastward passage of the Atlantic go to the continent. Of the 20 per cent who visit Great Britain and Ireland, many have family connections there. Others are influenced by historic and literary associations. Shakespeare continues to be the best advertiser for England. Most traveling Americans would rather see Paris, Berlin, Rome and Madrid than London or Edinburgh; the Alps rather than the Lake Country or the Scottish highland. Yet Americans who know London own its attractions; many of them would not leave it for any other European capital. To experience the charm of the English countryside is to wonder why more Americans do not include it in their itinerary. One does not need an automobile to see rural England. Accessible footpaths are everywhere; 20,000 miles of them in Surrey and Kent alone.

Lord Derby gives one reason why some Americans avoid England. "We have got to make foreigners feel" he says, "that when they come to this country they are having the same attention and luxuries that they get in their own country." Even Baedeker remarks: "to hotel proprietors and others the editor begs to intimate that a character for fair dealing and courtesy toward travelers is the sole passport to his commendation." John Evelyn Wrench, in an article in The London Observer, has little of praise for British hotel keepers. Modern city hotels of for the others:

It is still difficult to obtain plentiful supplies of fresh fruit, iced water, good coffee served with cream (and not milk.) varied salads, properly cooked vegetables and plentiful butter at each meal.

Running water in guest rooms is generally lacking, as are central heating and enough bathrooms. The large sized closets are not provided. Welcome trifles like fresh paper in the drawers of dressing tables and waste paper baskets are not even thought of in many hotels. Poor food on through trains, gloomy railway stations and archaic handling of baggage are other counts in Mr. Wrench's indictment of the British attitude toward tourists. He dislikes the use of the word "alien" in custom house forms. "Foreigner" would be better. "Why," he asks, "do you not study the methods employed by such countries as Switzerland, which go out of their way to make the tourist feel that he is wanted?" Twelve years after the war he sees no justification for all the passport formalities still in force, with their attendant visas and minor irritations". What about hotel costs? Another Englishman declares that they are much too high as compared with charges in Continental Europe.

Inspectors on Ships.

(New York Times.)

The seven customs inspectors who are to sail for Europe next week will return, it is to be hoped, wiser than when they depart. Having spent years in dealing with tourists on arrival, they are now to gain the traveler's point of view by personal experience.

The expectation is that they will learn from their fellow-pasengers what can be done to expedite the work of customs examination. They are also to study the systems used in various foreign countries. Since ours has long had the reputation of being the most cumbersome and annoying, it is not likely that they will learn anything new about the technique of examining baggage.

Their detail to foreign ports suggests a commendable desire on the part of the Treasury Department to improve the method of handling incoming passengers and their belongings. If the inspectors manage to pick up valuable ideas, so much the better. Incidentally, if they could return disguised as ordinary passengers and be put through the mill without favor, they might learn more that would be useful by arriving in New York than during their entire stay abroad.

Pampering the Pheasants.

(New York Times)

Competition between hunters and wild birds has altered greatly in favor of the latter during the last decade or two. Not only laws but public feeling and education are opposed to any undue reduction of harmless wild life. On the side of the hunters, however, there is still some animosity toward birds of prey, which every one dislikes as enemies of songsters and insect eaters. Yet Major Anthony Buxton, who delights in all live birds and abhors the stuffed corpse, has an appeal in Bird Notes and News for the few hawks and eagles left in England.

His argument is designed to catch the eye of hunters as well as of bird lovers. In England, he says, the shooting has become "too artificial, tame and easy." If the hawks were given a decent chance to breed, the hunter might enjoy his day the more for seeing one of these handsome birds out on an errand similar to his own. Shooting in England, "with its pampered pheasants and their gaitered nursery-maids," will soon be a dull business, like butchering, if the fat birds are not given an incentive to keep their wits awake.

Many birds of prey have a reputation much worse than they deserve. The honey buzzard, which used to be a common summer visitor in England,, is almost never seen there now. Gamekeepers protected their chubby charges all too well. Yet that bird's diet consists of wasps, hornets, frogs and other creatures largely undesirable. It will dispose of a thousand wasp grubs a day. There has recently been considerable complaint, in the English press, of a strange increase of wasps.

Everyday Questions

Answered By

DR. S. PARKES CADMAN

(Copyright, 1930, New York Tribune, Inc.)

Questions from Lincoln Star readers are answered daily by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of the Federated Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

QUESTION.

Charlotte, N. C.

Do you not [illegible] Puritanism has broken down? I appreciate that you have praised its work for the foundation of our country, but surely you cannot deny that its influence is practically dead in this age.

ANSWER.

A family is not extinct until all its members are dead. The alleged disintegration of puritanism assumes that its principles have now become practically worthless. Well, to quote Governor Alfred E. Smith, "let us look into the record."

Puritanism established constitutional government in Great Britain, colonized the New England states, gave them a supremacy in education which they still maintain, shaped the policies of the northern commonwealths of our middle west and imparted a decided impetus to free speech, to a free press and to the popular sovereignty of intelligent constituencies. This, I think you will admit, is a series of remarkable achievements, the benefits of which we enjoy at the present hour.

What has broken down in this much misunderstood and abused phase of life called puritanism? Merely some of its theological and social formulas. And no one has contributed to these doctrinal changes so extensively as have Puritans themselves.

The majority of thinkers and preachers who protested against Puritanism's harsh dogmas about God, man, and his eternal future were of direct Puritan descent. The reconstruction of theology, its liberalization, the adjustments of the life or faith to the discoveries of knowledge, and the reinterpretation of the Bible upon a sound basis of historical criticism and research, are largely the works of Puritan scholars. You will see that whatever Puritanism's shortcomings are, it has been courageous enough to rectify its erroneous views of the past.

As for its social theories, I recall that as a youth I was taught to believe the theater was the devil's chapel and the novel his prayer book. Of course these beliefs and others of their kind have vanished. The benefits of the drama and of fiction are now freely acknowledged by millions who are of Puritan ancestry.

But are there no evils in the pursuits they forbade? Unquestionably there are, and they are great and serious evils. Self restraint has broken down in certain sections of modern society, and nowhere is its collapse more palpable or pitiable than in those centers where Puritanism is derided. Viscount John Morley declared that though he had renounced Puritan theology he found himself compelled to practice its ethics. He was wise to do so, and we may have to imitate him if we should save our nation from moral impotence and decay.

QUESTION.

Sayre, Pa.

I would like to find out the basic facts about peace and war. The debates on these two subjects are conflicting in their claims, which range between the extremes of pacificism on the one hand and militarism on the other, with the advocates of adequate defense" occupying an intermediate position. How do you analyze the situation?

ANSWER.

The first essential for getting at the underlying facts is overlooked by many who participate in the discussions you mention. It involves a vision of the human race as a whole which few persons have or seek to obtain. You catch its reaction in great literature and great leaders. But it is by no means common even to enlightened men and women. Many are thoroughly aware, however, that if civilization is to be

DISCIPLINE.

When I was young I sighed in vain
Because on picnic days came rain.
I grumbled when my Dad said:
"No."
To some slight joy I wished to know.
"When I grow up," I used to say,
"I'll see that things are done my way."

A little later on I found
Though older, I was duty bound.
The greater privileges brought
More things to do because I ought,
And very strangely then I knew
Some keener disappointments, too.

I used to wonder why my dad
At times seemed worried, troubled, sad.
I fancied life was good to him
And gratified his every whim.
I never dreamed when I was small
That Time deals strictly with us all.

But now I've borne enough to learn
Life's code of discipline is stern.
There's none so rich and none so shrewd
Who can indulge his every mood.
All men have burdens they must bear
And none escapes his hour of care.

Life pays no heed to tears or sighs,
It matters not who pleads for cries.
To disappointment all must bow
On some tomorrow if not now.
So build a faith in which to trust
For grieve and suffer all men must.

Description of Navy Seaplane Race To Be On National Hookup

A description of the United States navy's annual seaplane speed classic, highlight of the Curtiss Marine trophy races in Washington, will be broadcast by the National Broadcasting company through WJZ's network Saturday afternoon.

The race, in which at least thirty-eight crack navy planes are expected to compete over a twenty-mile course above the Potomac river, will be held between 2 and 2:30 o'clock, central standard time. Herluf Provensen, announcer of the NBC Washington division, will be at the microphone.

Provensen will work from a tower atop the aerological building at the naval air station near Anacostia, affording him a full view of the race, including the turns at both ends of the course. An average of 162 miles an hour was atatined in last year's races.

WEAF PLANS ADD NEW EQUIPMENT

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 17—A permit for remodeling the transmitter of WEAF, located at Bellmore, Long Island, has been granted the National Broadcasting company by the federal radio commission. The permit calls for the replacement of much of the present equipment of the station with improved apparatus, but does not provide for any increase in power.

The replacement work is expected to begin in a few days, according to NBC engineers. They estimate, however, that it will not be completed until the end of the summer, since the usual WEAF broadcasting service is not to be interrupted during the alterations.

The modern apparatus to be installed is designed to improve the quality of broadcasting.

Antonin Dvorak To Be Honored In Broadcast

The life of Antonin Dvorak, noted Czech composer, friend of the United States, whose famous "New World Symphony" was written of and in America, will be depicted in a musical drama to be broadcast over WEAF and chain Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock, central standard time.

A symphony orchestra directed by Nathaniel Shilkret will play excerpts from Dvorak's famous compositions.

"Chic" Sale to Open New Program Series On Columbia Network

All of the characters that Charles "Chic" Sale has created in his years as vaudeville and musical comedy star will be revived by the comedian during his radio series, starting over the Columbia network Sunday at 6:45 p. m., central standard time.

There will be the celebrated "Lem Putt," whose skill with hammer and saw won him such wide fame; the "Grand Army Man from Abraham Lincoln," the "Star Witness," the "Country Doctor," the "Country Minister," the "School Girl Reciting" and other additional characterizations that have made people laugh.

"Pike Peters," Sale's role in his new show, "Hello Paris," also will have his turn on the air. "Chic's" chief role in the weekly broadcast, however, is that of "Wheel" Wilkins, dispenser of oil and gas at a small town filling station.

Through The Microphone

A lot of radio entertainers should be under ether instead of on it.

Sunday forecast: American compositions will feature the Roxy symphony concert on WJZ. . . . Handel's "Messiah" will be presented in part during the Cathedral hour of WABC. . . . Jesse Crawford will inaugurate a new series of Sunday evening organ recitals on the Columbia network. . . . The Theater of the Air on WABC will feature its male quartet in a program of specially arranged numbers. . . . Canadian Ballad Operas, WJZ program, will present "Jolly Beggars" by Robert Burns. . . . Penrod and Sam on WJZ will be replaced by "The Nomads". . . . "The Atonement," sacred cantata in five parts by Samuel Coleridge Taylor, will be broadcast by the National Oratorio society on WJZ's network. . . . The great Chicago fire of 1871 will be dramatized on WABC during the "Be Square to Your Motor Club" program.

The National Broadcasting company will inaugurate a new series of talks on "Our Government" by David Lawrence through WEAF's network Sunday evening. In prior broadcasts he explained the functions of the governmental departments. The new series will be a discussion of the relationship of the federal government to basic industries and various professions.

Will Rogers, "prince of humor," who probably is scanning the papers today to "find out what little he knows," will talk on the prince of Wales in his weekly broadcast on the Columbia network Sunday night. Will's comment on the prince was scheduled for last Sunday but was postponed in favor of a special mother's day talk.

A telegram, signed by a New York attorney, suggesting use of the Legal Aid society for Andy of the "Amos 'n' Andy" team, has been received at the NBC. The wire advanced the possibility that the society could aid Andy in his entanglements with the landlord, collectors, Madame Queen, and Susie.

"The Crockett Mountaineers," a father and five sons, direct descendants of Davey Crockett, who hail from the backwoods of Kentucky, will broadcast a fifteen-minute program of typical "hilly-billy" songs and music daily except Sunday at 4:15 p. m. beginning Monday over the Columbia network.

Ossip Gabrilowitsch, world-famous pianist and conductor of the Detroit symphony orchestra, will make his first radio appearance exclusively as a soloist when he interprets the works of Chopin, Schubert and Brahms as guest artist of the Family Party on WEAF and chain Monday night.

Baby Rose Marie, five-year-old prodigy of radio, vaudeville and motion pictures, who "looks the way Helen Kane sings," will appear with Vincent Lopez and his dance orchestra on WJZ Tuesday night.

Sophie Braslau, Metropolitan Opera company contralto and a concert favorite, will present familiar numbers of Tschaikowsky and Rachmaninoff, two of Russia's foremost composers, as guest artist with the "Around the World" concert ensemble on WJZ's network Tuesday evening.

Percy Wenrich, popular composer, a native of Joplin, Mo., will be featured in a program of his ballads, including "When You Wore a Tulip" and the rollicking war-time tune, "Where Do We Go From Here?" with Happy Wonder Bakers on WEAF Tuesday evening. Wenrich will sing two of his own pieces, "Put on Your Old Gray Bonnet," composed in 1902, and "Moonlight Bay," which appeared ten years later.

Thrills which always characterize the Indianapolis speedway 500-mile race on Memorial day will be revealed by "Eddie" Rickenbacker, celebrated war ace and auto racer, in an interview with Grantland Rice during the Topnotcher's program on WEAF Wednesday night.

Station WPG, Atlantic City, will be welcomed officially by the Columbia Broadcasting system with an auspicious radio presentation Wednesday at 8 p. m. in which features will be picked up from New York, Chicago, Washington, Detroit, Philadelphia and other cities. The governor of New Jersey, mayor of Atlantic City and William S. Paley, president of CBS, will speak during the hour broadcast.

A program of music dedicated to the achievements of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh will be broadcast over WEAF's network Wednesday evening by Nathaniel Shilkret's concert orchestra.

George Dasch, director of the Chicago Little Symphony orchestra, which broadcasts on WEAF and chain every Wednesday evening, will be one of the judges in the national high school orchestra contest in Lincoln May 29 to 31.

The Maine "Stein Song," which radio has lifted from obscurity to one of the song hits of 1930, will be played by its original sponsors in native surroundings when the University of Maine band broadcasts from WLBZ, Bangor, Me., over CBS Saturday at 2 p. m.

When the "Maybelle" orchestra plays the exit march and the audience files out of Hank Simmons' Showboat at the conclusion of each broadcast over CBS, the studio floor resembles a heavy snow-fall with the microphones standing out almost like trees, stripped of their branches. The entire aspect is a wintry one and here's the reason: There are twleve thespians in the Showboat cast and each one's script consists of sixty-five pages. As each sheet is finished, it is dropped to the floor. Thus when the hour's broadcast is terminated there are 780 white sheets blanketing the studio floor.

Ace Brigode Leads Popular Orchestra

Ace Brigode is leader of the tuneful dance orchestra which broadcasts each Wednesday evening over a chain of eleven station in the middle-west, including WOW, Omaha.

"Amos" Dialect Saves New York Taxi-Driver From Prison Sentence

NEW YORK, May 17—(I. N. S.)—If Amos and Andy were not popular today, Charlie Davis would be in jail. As it is, Charlie Davis, the taxi-driver, has a new lease on life.

Recently Charlies was arranged in court here, charged with striking a young lady, who had been his girl for six years and then had left him for fourteen months. When Charlie met his girl he couldn't overcome his furious temper and, as he puts it: "I jes' got so mad I let her have it." For this, Judge Mulqueen, who tried the case, sentenced Charlie to four months in the penitentiary.

"Judge, I have a cozy little home," Charlie pleaded with Mulqueen, "do I have to sell out and lose my home now?"

The judge didn't answer him then but Charlie was on his mind that night when he went home. Mrs. Mulqueen turned on the radio after supper and the judge, like thousands of others, listened to the philosophical antics of Amos 'n' Andy. Amos impressed Judge Mulqueen especially because of his way of speaking and his ideas were peculiarly reminiscent of Charlie Davis'. The next day Judge Mulqueen called Davis before him.

"I believe you have the same outlook on life that Amos has," the judge told the prisoner, "and I'm going to revoke your sentence. Get a good woman to take care of you when you're through with your work and go ahead and be the good fellow I think you are."

So today, Charlie Davis, the taxi-driver, has a new lease on life.

Radio Digest

Stealing Reception.

Nearby antennas have the ability of "stealing" reception, causing howls and fading of signals. The best way to overcome this condition is to erect the antenna as far away from the other wires as possible and at right angles to them.

Radiograms.

King George of England has requested that all profits from the sale of phonograph records of his speech at the opening of the naval conference be given to the fund to provide for radio receiving sets for the blind.

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Dartmouth, Mass., and the Ohio State university at Columbus have been granted permits to erect experimental transmitting stations for experimental radio operations in connection with courses in radio engineering.

The Canadian National Railways are installing 12 new observation lounge cars in which a new feature in radio train equipment will be introduced. The new cars will be "train-lined," by which means radio programs received on sets installed in these new cars will be received in the compartment cars operated on the same train.

The police department of St. Louis, Mo., is installing a broadcasting station in its headquarters as an aid in apprehending criminals. Present plans call for the 64 squad cars of the department to be equipped with receiving sets. Scenes of robberies, murders and other matters demanding immediate attention of the force will be broadcast from headquarters to the squad cars.

ENTIRE HOUR OF VICTOR HERBERT MUSIC ON RADIO

A music hour devoted entirely to the melodies of Victor Herbert, favorite American composer, will be broadcast under the direction of Nathaniel Shilkret over WEAF and chain Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, central standard time.

Vocal numbers will be interpreted by favorite radio artists including Gladys Rice and Lucy Marsh, sopranos; Wilfred Glenn, bass; Lewis James, tenor, and a salon group. This is the third of a series of programs dedicated to American composers.

Among selections to be heard are excerpts from Herbert's operettas, "Princess Pat," "The Red Mill," and "Eileen;" a selection from his grand opera "Natoma," and such favorite songs as "I'm Falling in Love with Someone," "Kiss Me Again," "Italian Street Song," "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" and others.

Although ranked among American composers, Herbert was born in Dublin, Ireland, and studied music in Germany. Following wide recognition for his concert work in Europe he migrated to the United States in 1886 and took a position as 'cello player in the Metropolitan orchestra, New York. During subsequent years he conducted many of America's leading orchestras. He became an American citizen and passed his later years in New York, where he died in 1924.

James Melton Guest Soloist In Concert

Members of the famous Revellers' quartet will be featured as soloists in the A. K. summer series, which will be inaugurated with James Melton, tenor, as guest artist in an all-Franz Lehar program over NEAF's network Sunday night from 7:15 to 7:45 o'clock, central standard time. Josef Pasternack will conduct the series, in which light music, the works of operetta writers predominating, will broadcast.

Radio Digest

Impossible to Eliminate Static.

Static, a noise generated in nature, cannot be successfully eliminated by any device. There are instruments, however, which prove quite satisfactory in suppressing noise originating in electric circuits.

Choke Coil for Short Wave Set.

A choke can be made by winding from 50 to 100 turns of No. 28 to 36 D. C. C. wire on a form of from two to three inches in diameter. The coil form should be of low loss dielectric such as thin bakelite or cardboard tubing that is good and dry. Boiling the latter in paraffin will serve to dry it out and make it moisture proof.

Tube Life.

The life of a power tube is affected very materially by the filament or heater voltage. Too low a voltage greatly prolongs the life but materially decreases the power output and increases the plate resistance. Too high a voltage does not necessarily improve the operation of the receiver but it does overheat the filament or heater and greatly shortens the life of the tube.

To Trace Noise in the Set.

There are many possible causes for noise in the set. The best way to begin to look for this trouble is to first disconnect the antenna and ground. If the noise stops, it may be due to defects in the antenna system, such as shorts or loose joints, which must be found and fixed. It may also be due to outside interference, for which there is no remedy. If the noise continues, test across the different output posts of the eliminators with a pair of phones. If the noise is no longer heard, the trouble is in the set. Test the tubes, replacing any found defective, and inspect the sockets and wiring for poor contacts. If the noise is heard, test connections and condensers in the eliminators. It is also possible that the noise may be on the electric light line, in which case a "line noise filter might help.

The Modern Power Set.

Among the important units found in the modern power receiver are: The screen grid tube which provides more than enough amplification in two or three stages to bring in the weakest signals and the three shielded circuits supply the necessary selectivity. Sometimes the sensitivity is more than is good for the receiver's own reputation because improper operation gives the impression that the receiver is noisy. The power detector, so-called, is almost universally used because it can be adjusted to provide the maximum sensitivity at almost any desired signal tensity. Here, again, the adjustment is made to favor the loud signal. This is done for two reasons. First, because most of the time is spent listening to loud signals, and second, because were it adjusted for weak signals, it would easily overload and distort on the louder ones. The R. F. amplifier is relied upon to hold its output voltage up to such a high value in most cases that only a single stage of audio is required. In these receivers, the listener suffers again from this discrimination in the inability to use phonograph pick-ups without the aid of additional external amplification.

Borax Solution for Rectifier.

A concentrated borax solution is made by dissolving as much borax in water as possible. In order that there will be a concentrated solution, there should be an excess of borax that will not go into solution. This makes a cloudy mixture. However, if left standing for some time, the excess borax settles to the bottom of the container in which the solution is made. The fluid becomes clear. With care, pour off the clear portion into the rectifier jar or jars.

When To Expect Static.

"Static" or noise is more noticeable on high frequencies than on the low ones and on weak signals more than on strong ones. These two cases are related. It is to be expected, therefore, that stations nearby will be accompanied by less noise than distant ones and furthermore, stations on high frequency waves are also accompanied by more noise than those on the longer waves.

WPRC, Smallest Radio Station, Is Portable Broadcasting Outfit

NEW YORK, May 17 — Edwin H. Cohan, director of technical operations for the Columbia Broadcasting system, hasn't an extra large hand, but he did carry broadcasting station WPRC in his left hand from Times Square to the Columbia building, more than a mile distant, the other day.

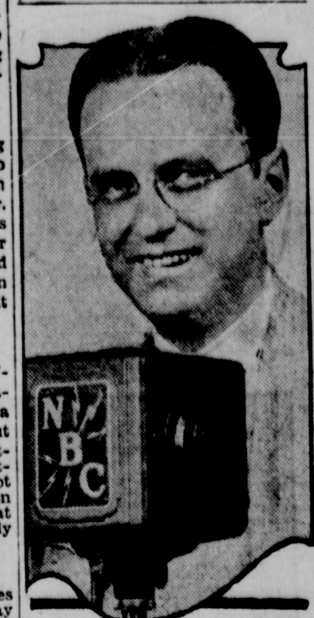

WPRC is perhaps the smallest broadcasting station in the world. It is the one from which Ted Husing described the Penn relays and which promises to create a new era in remote broadcasting.

Its aerial is nothing but a hollow brass pipe one inch in diameter and sticking out of a traveling bag a distance of two and a half feet. When strapped on the broadcaster's back the outfit looks like a soldier's pack with a rifle protruding over the head.

Cohan has arranged to have other sets constructed, for an announcer is able to describe any event without being forced to remain in one spot. He broadcasts by short wave to a rebroadcasting point where the program is put on the chain and long wave broadcast bands. Thus can big events, parades, sport events, catastrophes and the like be described to better advantage.

"Big Brother" Heads Boy Scout Program

Bob Emory, "big brother" of thousands of New England youngsters whose famous program has been transferred to the NBC network, will dedicate his broadcast Sunday to the Boy Scouts of America. Two hundred scouts from New York troops will sing the "Scout Marching Song," "Casey Jones," "Daniel Boone" and "America the Beautiful." Emory, who was featured from station WEEI, Boston, for five years is one of the country's leading radio entertainers.

Radio Bug "Gets" Dupont—And How!

PARIS, May 17—(I. N. S.)—The radio bug got Jean Dupont, and that does not mean maybe, either. Jean went insane from listening to the radio, the first recorded case of its kind in the world.

He had been a radio fan ever since static first spoiled a perfect bedtime tale in the early twenties. Every minute he could spare, Jean spent in front of his radio trying to tune in on stations far and near.

Neighbors did not attach particular significance to the queer mutterings emanating from his quarters lately. Only today when he solemnly announced to them that he had succeeded in tuning in Heaven, did they notify the authorities.

Radio Digest

For the Notebook.

All structural nuts and bolts in the receiver should be tightened to keep it from vibrating.

The 112-A is an excellent all-purpose tube. It can be used wherever the 201-A is used and in many cases with improved results.

The antenna system consists of a suspended wire, lead-in, and all the wire to the point of contact with the earth or "ground."

The ability to pick up squeals and whistles on the lower waves and to hear signals, although badly distorted, indicates that the receiver is not stable and requires adjustment of its neutralizing or stabilizing adjustments.

Radiograms.

Aproximately one in every four farms in Pennsylvania has a radio.

It costs an advertiser approximately $5,768 to broadcast a program for half an hour over a network of 42 stations in the United States, after 6 p. m. Before 6 p. m., the rate is one-half.

During the past year radio users in Montreal increased from 30,402 tot 42,116, but in spite of Montreal's larger population it falls behind Toronto, which increased its radio users from 44,172 to 58,324.

P. D. Lowell and F. W. Dunmore, two young scientists of Washington, D. C., have presented claims for $20,000,000 in royalties in radio patents. In a decision by examiner of interference in the United States Patent Office they were awarded priority in the invention of the "all-electric" radio receiving set which can be operated from house lighting circuits and without batteries.

Radio advertising on Sunday is prohibited in Germany.

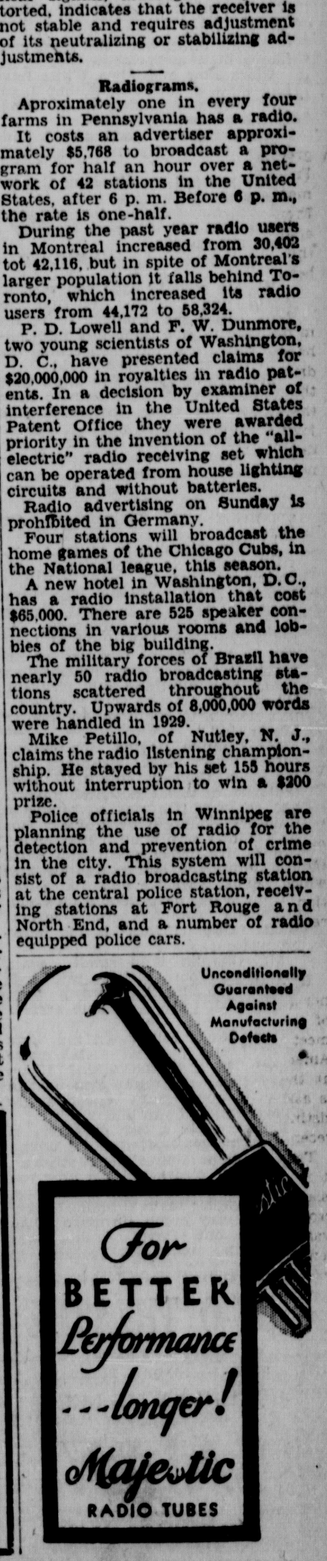

Four stations will broadcast the home games of the Chicago Cubs, in the National league, this season.

A new hotel in Washington, D. C., has a radio installation that cost $65,000. There are 525 speaker connections in various rooms and lobbies of the big building.

The military forces of Brazil have nearly 50 radio broadcasting stations scattered throughout the country. Upwards of 8,000,000 words were handled in 1929.

Mike Petillo, of Nutley, N. J., claims the radio listening championship. He stayed by his set 155 hours without interruption to win a $200 prize.

Police officials in Winnipeg are planning the use of radio for the detection and prevention of crime in the city. This system will consist of a radio broadcasting station at the central police station, receiving stations at Fort Rouge and North End, and a number of radio equipped police cars.

Answers To Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—Here I am, once more. I was reading your section this morning, as I always do on Sunday mornings, and the first one I read was signed "Irene from Superior." She was so glad that Tom Mix had retired from the screen as she did not like him, "He had just too much wild blood in him."

Well, I guess that might be all right, it is hard to please everyone, but it did not set well with me for Tom is my ideal man, and the wild blood is O. K., just so it is pure, honorable and honest, and Tom possesses all of these I sincerely believe. Anyway, I am going to believe in him until I know personally that I am wrong. Is he with the circus yet? And has his wife got her divorce yet? I suppose she has not or I would have read of it.

I am getting to like some of the new actors fine. I was afraid they would not come up with the old ones, but Gary Cooper, Buddy Rogers, Richard Arlen are very good. Ken is coming well in the western plays, too. I must say that I hope Charlie Chaplin will stay with his plan of making more silent pictures for there are so many old people that cannot understand the talking pictures that I think it is nice in one that remembers the aged ones like a little amusement, too.

Clara Bow and Alice White have had quite a few knocks, but I am glad they are making good. What is Clara's next picture?

Mary Brian is good, too. I have begun to love the new stars very well.

Can you tell me all about Charlie Chaplin?

I will quit before I tire you, and thank you for the past troubles I have put on you.

UNKNOWN.

We are glad to have you with us again, and I never feel that the fans cause me trouble. It is my pleasure to give them any information that I may have concerning the activities of the screen world.

You will be pleased to know that Mr. Mix and his wife seem to have patched up their difficulties and are living together again. Tom is still with the circus, but he considering several tempting offers to reappear on the screen.

Clara Bow has just completed "True to the Navy." She is also appearing in "Paramount On Parade."

Charlie Chaplin is putting up good money to substantiate his statement that he will continue making silent pictures. The little comedian was born in Paris, France in 1889, of English parentage. He really rose from the slums of London to his present position, as his parents were very poor and Charlie's youth was anything but pleasant. He came to America with Fred Karno's sketch, 'A Night in An English Music Hall."

Mr. Chaplin started his screen career with Mack Sennett's old Keystone Comedy company. They tell a story about his first important contract. He was to receive a thousand dollars a week salary, but he wouldn't sign it until they added twenty-five. They asked him what the twenty-five dollars was for, and he replied, "To live on."

Charlie has been heading his own producing company for several years. "City Lights" is his latest production.

Mr. Chaplin is a small man, five feet four inches tall and weighs 125. He has brown hair, mixed with gray, and blue eyes.

Dear Movie Editor—In my last letter I said I would write every month. Is that too often? How's every three months? You would have a good many questions to answer unless I ran out.

I have quite a few questions so had better get started and I advise you to make yourself comfortable.

Will you please tell me all you know about Bob Steel, if married, and to whom; his real name, etc?

I was very much surprised when I found out David Rollins was twenty-one years old, because in February you said he was twenty. When is his birthday?

Please tell me all you know about Frankie Darro and Helen Chandler, ere Frankie's parents on the screen, his real name, also Helen's ago, and if Helen is married, etc.

May I please have the cast for "The Phantom Rider" featuring Tom Tyler?

How old is Hoot Gibson? What stars birthdays are in December?

The question uppermost in my mind is this, can a person sell a story to a publishing company to be published in their magazines? And do you have to have a person draw pictures with which to illustrate your story? ?

I had better sign off for this month, for I feel the line is pushing.
JUST MICKEY of Nebraska.

There is no limit to when or how often you write to me. I am always glad to be of any assistance to you.

Mr. Steele is the son of R. N. Brandbury, and from the time he was born, his father began training him for the screen. Bob was born in Washington in 1903 with dark hair and blue eyes. He is six feet tall, and I have never heard that he was married.

David is in his twenty-first year, but he won't be able to vote until after September 2.

Frankie Darro's work with Tom Tyler in western pictures, brought him stardom under the F. B. O. banner. Frankie is said to be a natural actor, the kind that is born and not made. That is his own name, and his parents are not motion picture players. Frankie was born in 1921, and has been in pictures ever since he was seven years old.

Helen Chandler is not married. She was born in Charleston, S. C., with blond hair and blue eyes. Helen is in the early twenties, is five feet three inches tall and weighs 102.

Don't you mean "The Phantom of the Range" with Tom Tyler instead of "The Phantom Rider." The cast is "Duke Carlton," Tom Tyler; "Tim O'Brien," Charles McHugh; "Patsy O'Brien," Duane Thompson; "Spuds O'Brien," Frankie Darro; "Flash" Corbin, James Pierce; "Vera Van Swank," Marjorie Zier; "Beans, by himself.

Mr. Gibson is thirty-eight this year.

Not many birthdays in December. Ann Pennington celebrates hers just two days before Christmas. Elinor Fair was born December 21, and Sally Eilers cuts her cake December 11.

Yes, you can sell a story to a publishing company to appear in their magazines—if you are lucky, and you don't have to have it illustrated, either. But the lucky people are few and far between, and the story has to be out of the ordinary. If you have some new and original ideas for a story, and are able to write them up in an entertaining form, don't hesitate for a minute to send them in to the publishers. An agent might be able to market them for you, better than you could do yourself, but of course he would have to have his commission out of the sale, too.

Dear Movie Editor—I am very interested in movie stars. Being this is my first letter, I have very many questions.

First of all, would like to know if Rudy Vallee has been married. I have read in the papers that he has been married and divorced. Would like to have you tell me his history.

Would like to know if Jack Mulhall is married and if so to whom?

I have heard that Richard Dix was engaged. Is it so?

I am just crazy about Helen Foster. The first time I saw her was in "Gold Diggers of Broadway." Please tell me her age, birthday and if she is married and to whom.

When is Al Jolson's next picture going to be released??

I like Clara Bow very well. When is she to be married?

How many brothers and sisters does Davey Lee have?

Would like to know if there are many movie stars who are between thirteen and sixteen years old? Give me the names of them.

Hoping to see my letter in print,
PATTY OF EXETER.

It is nice to add another new member today.

Yes, Rudy has been married, so the article you read in the paper was accurate. He was born as Hubert Prior Vallee at Westbrook, Me. Rudy is the son of a French father and an Irish mother. He plays the saxophone and clarinet as easily as most of us wish we could. Rudy is a Yale graduate, tall blonde and easy to look at. His voice is another valuable asset. Altogether it's a pretty rosy looking world for Mr. Vallee.

Helen Foster is twenty-three years old, five feet tall and weighs 102. She is single at the present writing, and a little shy about justw hen her birthday comes.

Al Jolson's latest, "Mammy," has been released.

Clara may know exactly when the marriage is to take place, but if she does, she is very secretive about it. Last January was to have been the time, but Clara returned from New York without her Harry, and there's been no late news on the subject.

Davey has one brother, a former child player.

There are not very many players who could be called stars, between the ages of thirteen and sixteen. Jackie Coogan and Peggy Montgomery were both child stars, but Jackie isn't doing much in pictures now. He will be sixteen in October. We haven't seen Peggy on the screen for years, although she did play a juvenile role about three years ago. That's the "awkward" age for children on the screen. They are too old to take the role of children and not old enough to appear as leading players in pictures. Mary Kornman, who is now sixteen, is to play in some Hal Roach features. There are really no prominent players between thirteen and sixteen. Frankie Lee, Davey's brother, is eighteen.

Richard Dix is supposed to be engaged, yes. Jack Mulhall is married to Evelyn Winans. She is his second wife.

Dear Movie Editor—I am interested in movie stars and hope to see this in print. This is the first time I have written, but am movie star crazy.

I heard Tom Mix is retiring from the screen because he has too much wild blood in him. I don't think so. I hope he stays on and when and in what pictures does he play next?

These are my favorites so far, Mary Nolan, Clara Bow, Rita Lee, Tom Tyler, Tom Mix, Richard Dix, and Hoot Gibson. Please tell me if they are married, and to whom, and how old are they?

I haven't heard or seen anything of Richard Dix for a long time. Has he retired from the screen?

Do you remember the man who played the leading part in "The Mississippi Gambler?" He sure is good looking. How old is he, and is he married?

I will sign off before I write too much. Thanking you in advance.
FLORENCE, Curtis, Neb.

Now that you have found how easily it is done, we hope you will write again.

Mr. Mix is not dated up for any new picture at present, but it is understood in film circles that he has had a tempting offer to return. He is touring with a circus just now.

Clara Bow is single, and will be twenty-five her next birthday. Mary Nolan was born in 1905, and is also single. Tom Tyler, who is twenty-seven in August, and Rita Lee, in her early twenties, are both single. Tom Mox is married to Victoria Forde and was born in 1879. Hott Gibson was born in 1892, and expects to marry Sally Eilers. He has been married once before. Richard Dix, who is one of the most popular bachelors in the film colony, is thirty-six.

Mr. Dix is very much in evidence on the screen these days, as he is now an R. K. O. star. He is now working on "Square Dice."

Joseph Schildkraut is the good looking young man who played the leading role in "The Mississippi Gambler." He was thirty-three in October. Until just recently he was married to Elise Bartlett, but they are separated now. Joseph is said to have too much artistic temperament to make a perfect husband—at least that's what Elise claims.

Dear Movie Editor—This is my first visit to you and I hope the "welcome card" is to be seen for me.

My favorites are Nancy Carroll, Janet Gaynor, Clara Bow, Charles Rogers, Charles Farrell, Dick Arlen, Helen Kane, and adding a new one, Stanley Smith.

Most people I have talked to have always slammed Clara Bow, but I think she is just too sweet for words.

What is Stanley Smith's address? Please tell me his height, color of hair and eyes and his age. Also his birthday. Where does he hail from?

I am only fourteen, but am very interested in pictures.

Please tell me if any stars' birthdays fall on June 30.

I think Helen Kane is adorable.

Please tell me the history of Jack Oakie.

Who played the part of "Freddie Fry" in "Sweetie?" Please give me his age.

Please give me the cast of "The Virginian."

I will close, and thank you for your patience. SMITHY, Blue

I believe you are the first Fan from Blue Springs, and the old sign is polished to perfection.

Stanley Smith just missed being from Nebraska. He was born in Kansas City, but got some of his first experience in stock at the Brandeis theater in Omaha. He went from there to Houston, Texas, playing juvenile leads.

During a vacation spent in Hollywood, Stanley had a principal part in "The Royal Family," in Los Angeles. It was while he was singing the leading role in "Robin Hood," that Lenore Ulyric heard him and persuaded Belasco to give him the only juvenile role in "Kiki."

Stanley's first screen work was with Pathe in "The Sophomore." He is now under a long-term contract to Paramount, since he made such a "hit" in "Sweetie." Stanley is six feet tall and has blue-gray eyes and light hair.

"Your new favorite celebrates his birthday January 6. He was twenty-three. Address him at the Paramount Studio, 5451 Marathon, Hollywood, Calif.

Joseph Depew, who played the part of "Freddie Fry" in "Sweetie," is seventeen years old.

I find no player with a birthday falling exactly on June 30, but you might split the difference and celebrate with Alberta Vaughn, as her birthday is June 27.

Mr. Oakie claims Sedalia, Missouri as his birthplace. The event occurred November 12, 1903. Jack's mother ran a training school for girls, but since Jack has become a rival of William Haines as a wisecracker, his mother is taking it easy. "The Dummy" was Jack's first important screen role.

Before he decided upon the screen as a career, Jack had done a little bit of everything. He got his start on the stage as a chorus boy in Shubert's musical comedy shows. Jack is now one of the rising young stars on the Paramount lot, and he's still a bachelor.

Dear Movie Editor—This is the first time I have written you.

Please tell me all you know about Sally Blane and Ruth Mix, including addresses and all Sally Blane is my favorite actress.

What are the age, height and weight of Bill Cody, Ted Wells, Jack Holt and Katherine Crawford.

Is Katherine Crawford any relation to Joan?"

Who was the leading lady with Fred Thomson in 'The Sunset Legion?"

Well, I will saw off and hope to see this letter in your column soon, I am CURLYLOCKS, Arnold, Neb.

Seems to me we have another "Curlylocks" among our Fans, too. We shall have to call you No. 1 and No. 2.

Ruth Mix is the daughter of the popular Tom by his first wife, Olive Stokes. She is now seventeen years old, and has been following in her father's footsteps just as hard as she knew how. She played in pictures, but is now in vaudeville in London, so I really don't know how you could reach her.

Sally Blane is a Baby Wampas star of the 1929 variety. She was born in Salida, Colorado, July 11, 1910. Sally has brown hair and hazel eyes, weighs 117 and lacks a half inch of being five five, in height. Address Sally at R. K. O. Studio, 780 Gower St., Hollywood, California.

Jack Holt was born in 1889 and has grown to be six feet tall. Mr. Wells and Mr. Cody are about the same height, but they shy at the age question. Miss Crawford is in the early twenties, and five feet three in height.

Joan and Kathryn Crawford are not related. In fact, Joan's name was originally Le Seuer.

I'm sorry that I have no cast for "The Sunset Legion," so cannot tell you who Mr. Thomson's leading lady was.

Class President

Miss Madeleine Gilmore of New York City has been elected by her classmates to the presidency of next year's junior class at Barnard college.

Screen Siftings

Set Wedding Date—Bebe Daniels has set June 14 as the date of her marriage to Ben Lyon. This is the first marriage for both Miss Daniels and Mr. Lyon. They have been engaged for about a year.

Opera Stars In Cast—Lawrence Tibbett and Grace Moore, both of whom were prominent in the Metropolitan Opera Company, will co-star in a motion picture version of the Oscar Hammerstein operetta, "New Moon." Mr. Tibbett won fame overnight in his first screen attempt, "The Rogue Song." Jack Conway will direct "New Moon," at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio.

Bebe's Leading Man—Kenneth Thompson will step to the front as Bebe Daniel's leading man in her new R. K. O. picture, "Lawful Larceny." Mr. Thomson is a former stage player, but he had made several pictures before sound films became so general. Lowell Sherman will direct "Lawful Larceny," and will also play a role in the picture.

New Jolson Home—Al Jolson is building a "small house" of sixteen or twenty rooms at Palm Springs, California. This is Mr. Jolson's first experience in building, and he found himself a good architect, and now sits back to watch developments. Mr. Jolson's latest picture, "Big Boy" is now underway at the Warner Brothers' studio with Claudia Dell as the leading lady.

Has Warner Contract—James Hall didn't free-lance long. He is now under contract to Warner Brothers for the next five years. His first assignment with that company is "Maybe It's Love," in which Joe E. Brown, Joan Bennett and Laura Lee assist him. William Wellman is directing the picture.

Super-Comedy—"Strictly Dishonorable," that sensational comedy success which is now playing in New York to capacity houses, is to be transferred to the screen as one of the super-productions on the new Universal program. John Boles will take the role on the screen which Tullio Carminatti, the Italian actor, has created on the stage.

Redheads Get Break—A girl with red hair and blue eyes stands "ace high" with the color cameras, not only because red and blue reproduce better through the color films than any other colors, but the various shades of green, brown, yellow and blue, are also favorites of the technicolor process, and these are the favored hues for the frocks of the "red head." Nancy Carrlol, Zelma O'Neal and Clara Bow are the favorite ideal technicolor girls on the Paramount lot.

Pirates Ahoy!

well manned by the kind of men who would rather fight for booty than earn a living in the easiest of jobs, sailed for Jamaica.

For a week, Ducasse ravaged the coasts of that British island, attacking large towns and small settlements. Even remote farms and villages were considered fair game. The filibusters were happy. They had at last a leader who was ingenious and brave.

The loot amounted to about ten million dollars, three hundred Negro slaves that the English had imported from Africa, and fourteen English flags, each taken from a separate fort or town.

Ducasse returned to San Domingo the hero of the hour. The filibusters swore they would follow him anywhere, especially after he divided the loot liberally with them and gave them three days and nights of drunken carnival.

"So you will follow me anywhere?" said Ducasse. "And you will fight? Do you want more gold?"

The filibusters roared themselves hoarse.

"Because," said Ducasse dramatically, "we are going to capture Carthagena!"

Much time was consumed in careful preparations for the assault upon Carthagena, the rich city of the Spanish Main. The expedition set forth early in 1697, the fleet commanded by Ducasse and the soldiers by de Pontis. There were twelve ships, fifteen hundred San Domingo filibusters, a small company of soldiers, and ship's crews furnished by regular corsair recruiting agencies in St. Malo, France.

Arrived outside the harbor of Carthagena, Ducasse landed with a small contingent of buccaneers and cut off a Spanish force that was hastening to the aid of the town. De Pontis then landed his soldiers, and the four bastions overlooking the entrance to the harbor were taken without much difficulty.

Arrived before the outer walls of the town, de Pontis started a regular siege, according to the rules of warfare he had learned in Europe. The wild filibusters didn't like these tactics. They separated themselves from the soldiers, and in small bands, went forward toward a narrow breach that the cannon had made in the wall.

Suddenly there was a rush of the irregulars, led by Ducasse in person, waving the flag of the King of France. The outer wall was penetrated, and presently the buccaneers began appearing all over the fortifications, putting the defenders to the sword. Ducasse himself raised the French flag over the fort, and sustained three wounds while doing so. For a while his life was despaired of.

It took two days of fighting after the capture of this fort actually to get possession of the town.

De Pontis, who had come over from France with regular soldiers, maintained a contemptuous attitude toward the irregulars from San Domingo. Although he promised them a full share of the loot in order to induce them to do his fighting, he tried to cheat them of their shares, and sailed off with his soldiers in one of the ships, carrying over a million dollars in money, eighty bronze cannon, and all the bells from the church towers. He had got the money from the inhabitants as a ransom, and had promised to refrain from sacking and burning the town.

The filibusters, enraged by the trick their countryman had played upon them, returned from their ships to Carthagena and sacked the town. They locked all the clergy and most of the chief citizens in one of the big churches, piled gunpowder about the edifice, and threatened to set a match to the whole pile. This brought forth much more money. Carthagena gave up its last coin. Then the men gathered together everything of value they could carry to their ships, and sailed away with their fleet deep in the water with loot.

The filibusters returned to San Domingo, every man of them wealthy. And there they took a solemn oath never again to associate themselves with soldiers or other respectable forces in any enterprise whatsoever. They did not, of course, include their governor among the respectables.

De Pontis got back to St. Malo, and the corsair racketeers of that port were paid handsome dividends for their part in the enterprise of Carthagena.

Ducasse continued many years in charge of the French colony at San Domingo, and lived to take part in many battles, out of all of which he emerged with great credit to his personal courage. Returning to France, he took charge of the forces blockading Barcelona, and was obliged to retire during this campaign, on account of his Carthagena wounds.

Mrs. E. A. Holyoke of Omaha, a former resident of Chadron, is a guest of Dean Work and other friends. Mrs. Susie Boyer Clark of Scott City, Kas., is visiting her sister-in-law, Miss Myra Clark of the faculty, and other Chadron friends. A number of informal dinner parties and bridge lunches have been given in compliment to Mrs. Holyoke and Mrs. Clark.

Students who expect to be in attendance at the summer school were registering with him on Wednesday. Others will sign on June 6 and 7 for their courses.

The students of the Scottsbluff junior college were pleasant visitors on the campus Friday after they had spent the greater part of the day in the state park for their "sneak" day. They were on their way for an outing at Hot Springs but remained here with the students as guests over night. An informal dance was given in compliment to them Friday evening in the gymnasium. The house members of Zeta Alpha, Alpha Phi Pi, and Kappa Theta sororities and of Psi Beta Sigma and Delta Pi Sigma fraternities had the students as house guests.

Word has recently been received by a member of the Eagle staff that Frank Forney, a former student here whose home was at Oelrichs, South Dakota, is stationed at Fort Lawton, Seattle. Before entering West Point Mr. Forney was graduated at Spearfish teachers college and received his appointment to the military academy while his father was a state official of South Dakota. His course at West Point was interrupted for a time by an illness after recuperating from which he sailed as a seaman on board a vessel bound for England. He was permitted to direct the vessel on a part of the return voyage and also was entrusted to a similar duty while cruising on the Pacific coast later. On the completion of his course in the academy he spent some time with his friends and parents in California. His sister Margaret, also a former student, is a member of the faculty at St. Helen's Hall, Oregon.

Dr. Cladue P. Fordyce an alumnus of Nebraska Wesleyan university class of 1905, broadcasts each Tuesday at 12 o'clock noon over the Columbia broadcasting system. He speaks on health topics.

Dr. Ira M. Miller of Yakima, Washington, has just completed an independent, scientific investigation upon the eradication of the codling moth, a fruit destroying species. Dr. Miller is a former student of Nebraska Wesleyan having graduated with the class of 1924.

Miss Ada Barker, secretary of the Lincoln Social Welfare society, reviewed the problems of a social worker during the class hour of Professor E. Glenn Callen's sociology class Wednesday morning.

Chancellor Schreckengast gave the commencement address at Sutherland, Neb. last Thursday evening. He will give commencement addresses in the following towns next week: Wilsonville, Thursday; Loomis, Friday. He will speak this Sunday at the Methodist church in DeWitt.

Miss Hallie Lemon, '15, missionary on furlough from Agua Caliente, Mex., spoke at chapel Tuesday on Mexican life and people.

At chapel on Wednesday it was announced that Lauren Gilbert, senior, would be given an examination in zoology and physiology for special honors. Dr. W. R. Boyer of Pawnee and vice president of the State Medical association was the speaker of the morning.

Miss Enid Miller, head of the speech department, gave the meaning and the reason for the naming of the song "Row Out," in her chapel appearance Monday morning. She read the story, "Matter of Loyalty" from which she chose the title. A boy, true to his college, rowed for two places in the race in order that his crew might have victory.

The Oxford Fellowship, organization of ministerial students, met on Wednesday afternoon, the main feature of the program being the election of officers. The election resulted as follows: Ralph Rasmussen, Fremont, president; Kenneth McDaniel, Lincoln, vice president; Harold James, Nehawka, secretary; Gilbert Garrison, Superior, treasurer. Doane College Notes

The Faculty Women's club held its last regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Cassel Wednesday evening, May 7. Following a dinner at 6:30, officers for next year were elected. Mrs. E. B. Dean and Mrs. J. E. Taylor were re-elected president and vice-president, respectively, and Miss Edith Reeves was elected secretary-treasurer. The entertaining committee included Mrs. A. T. Cassel, chairman; Miss Edna Derby; Miss Vivian Roberts and Miss Dorothy Brandon.

The Doane student friendship drive was put on at the chapel Monday morning, May 12. Under the arrangement with Jefferson academy in Tunghsien, China, the students and faculty of the college undertake to pay the travel expenses to and from China of a Doane representative teaching in Jefferson academy. The appointment is usually for a two or three year term. Andrew E. Nuquist, '27, present representative, completes his three-year term there with the end of this school year. The present drive is to provide the funds needed for his return expenses. The total amount required is something over $350. The reciprocal arrangement with Jefferson academy is that it will have one or more graduates studying in Doane college. This year the young man who was recommended has not been able to get his passport to come to America on account of trouble with his eyes. It is expected that he or another will be in Doane next fall.

Mrs. Norval Langworthy and young son, Robert, paid a short visit to the Doane college campus Thursday, May 8. Mrs. Langworthy was formerly Miss June Judy, instructor in organ in 1927-88.

Prof. Charles V. Kettering and family drove to Kearney, May 15, with Director Amadon of York college, to meet Professor Frantz Brochowsky, the distinguished voice teacher of Chicago. Prof. Kettering studied with Mr. Prochowsky in Kansas City last year and hopes to do some work with him again this year in Chicago.

The Grinnell college paper for May carries the announcement of the engagement of Russell A. Smith and Miss Bertha Nelson. They are to be married in Grinnell, June 10. Mr. Smith, who has been teaching in the department of mathematics at Doane this year, will continue in this same field at Grinnell next year. Mr. Smith graduated from Grinnell in 1929 and Miss Nelson, who will also be in the employ of her alma mater next year, will receive her degree in June.

District Nurses In Meeting at Beatrice

Between sixty and seventy nurses attended the quarterly meeting of the third district of the Nebraska State Nurses association Friday afternoon at Beatrice.

Luncheon was held at noon at the Y. W. C. A. A short business meetinb opened the program. Miss Anna Krauss talked on "Nursing in the Mountains of Kentucky." Dr. J. A. Burford, superintendent of the state hospital for the feeble minded at Beatrice, gave a talk following which the high school glee club sang. Miss Rollenhagen, a nurse in the Lutheran hospital, talked on student government and Dr. F. W. Buckley gave a lecture. The program closed with a tea at the Mennonite deaconess' home.

But peace does not indicate that strife and conflict are to be eliminated from life. On the contrary, they are necessary for its education and discipline. Peace without right and justice is neither possible nor desirable. But war seldom establishes either right or justice. It perverts and dislocates life, and is exposed today as the fertile source of demoralization and unfitness both in the individual and in society. We reap the bitter harvest of previous sowings by men who had an utterly mistaken faith in the values of militarism. Its fell consequences have created the deep revulsion now widely felt against physical force as an instrument for the settlement of disputes between nations.

The League of Nations, the World court, the Locarno compacts and the pact of Paris are the products of a determined will to peace on the part of the peoples of civilized states which have enforced their creation by their political representatives. They are experimental adventures that reverse the ageless methods of armed states bent on conflict at any hazard. In brief, we are on the way from chaos to cosmos in our human intercourse, and a long and arduous journey lies ahead. But those who retreat from that way must encounter dangers which the worst kind of peace cannot produce. "Unite or perish" is the motto of the pilgrimage toward the new international order. In this connection read "The Ordeal of This Generation," by Gilbert Murray, published by Harper & Sons, New York.
